Prowler Cagers to Play Fertile Friday Evening

Will Mark Third Time Two Teams Have Played; Local Lineup Changed

When the basketball Prowlers travel to Fertile on Friday night for a game against the Falcons, it will be only the third time that the two schools have met in cage competition. In a game played here in 1952, the Prowlers defeated Fertile, 49 to 30; while in 1950 the Falcons scored a four point win over the locals, edging out the Prowlers, 51 to 47.

Forward Ken DeLap and guards Mickey Hanson and Jones are expected to see considerable action on Friday night, too. Forward Dick Hanson has been handicapped by an ankle injury, but he may see limited action.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Not Too Fearsome

We made an extra-curricular trip on Saturday night, traveling the 92 miles to Bemidji to watch coach Bun Fortier's regional basketball champion Bemidji Lumberjacks in a game against the International Falls Broncos. Except for a few moments in the first half, the game was never in doubt, and the Jacks won by a comfortable 72 to 53 score.

The starting lineup for Bemidji had Fred Swenson at left forward, Marc Kolden at right forward, all-state Ray Cronk at center, chunky Larry Rybak at left guard, and slender Bob Engle at right guard. This unit carried through most of the first half, with the only substitutions being Dick Anderson for Rybak, and Gary Strowbridge for Swenson.

The Bemidji style of plays follows the same pattern of previous years. On defense, the Jack press, with Rybak and Engle, the two up-court men, being quite aggressive. On offense, the three "big" men in the Bemidji lineup, Cronk, Swenson, and Kolden, weave in and around the basket. The 12-foot lane did not appear to trouble the Jacks very much, for these boys, Cronk, Swenson, and Kolden, are quite mobile. Cronk, of course, in the most polished up-front man, and on Saturday night he was particularly effective on a one-handed jump shot taken from the lane.

Bemidji's pressing defense didn't bother the Broncos to any extent, but this may have been due to the fact that International Falls had a pair of capable dribblers and floor men in guards Harry Arch and Bill Elliot.

Bemidji has been installed as the regional favorite, and rightly, but they aren't too fearsome. From last years' regional tournament team, the Jacks lost such players as Bill Lawrence and Jim Johnson, with Lawrence's loss being especially grievous. Lawrence, at times, was an uncanny outside shooter. Remember that game here last February when Lawrence dumped eight field goals into the basket and all of these goals were of the long shot or jump shot variety.

Nothing but Scholins

It was hard to see Irv Wilson's number three and four alleys on Monday night because of all of the Scholins. Bowling with Groslies' Pure Oil team in a Service league match against the Jaycees were Mel, Einar, Arlo, and Mauritz Scholin. And they are all cousins. Mel added that the team could get Vernon Scholin, another cousin, and then the squad would be an all-Scholin outfit.

The lone "foreigner" in the Groslie's lineup on Monday night was Kermit Finstad.

A Slight Revision

While our "horses" in the city's four bowling leagues — KTRF, V.F.W., Post Office, and Argyle State Bank — are showing fine speed and staying power, being either in first place or in the runners-up positions in their respective leagues, we've been alerted to watch the Viking Tavern team in the Tuesday night bowling.

This Viking Tavern team, and here's the roster — Dean Anderson, Mike Poole, Fred Jensen, Pat Poole, Don Haugen, Otto Myhrer, and Elmer Poole — is tied for third place in the league standings, being but two games out of the lead.

There is plenty of substance to the Viking's threat to win the league championship, for the team's regulars — Anderson, Pat and Mike Poole, Jensen, and Haugen — are high schoolers, or just out of high school, and they will improve as bowlers. Here are their respective, and respectable averages: Anderson, 160; Mike Poole, 148; Jensen, 159, Pat Poole, 162; and Haugen, 169.

We are giving the Vets fair warning.

Sportsmen's Club Asks Later Deer Season for 1959

Resolution Points out 1957 Season Too Early to Permit Good Shooting

A resolution to formally request that a later deer season be set by the legislature during the 1959 session was the main business conducted at the regular meeting of the Pennington County Sportsmen's club Tuesday evening in the downstairs room of the city auditorium. President Raymond Johnson presided.

Deer hunters in the club reported only poor to fair success in the 1957 hunt and most of the blame was laid to the early season, which made conditions to favor the game.

The club's resolution will be sent in a letter to James Kimball, state game and fish commissioner, asking that he recommend a later season to the legislators in their next session. The 1958 season dates are already set and cannot be changed.

The meeting was opened with a film on shooting.

Preliminary plans for a dinner meeting, set tentatively for Jan. 14, were laid and a committee appointed to make arrangements. Purpose of the meeting is to kick off the Sportsmen's Club 1958 membership drive, and paid-up members and their wives are to be admitted free, according to present plans.

Named to the arrangements committee were Herb Meyer, Carl Sundstrom, Vernon Sorenson and Mack Draper.

Refreshments were served following the business meeting.

State Due for Record Traffic Death Total

Minnesota motorists will have a bloody red Christmas gift if the present toll of traffic fatalities continues through December. With the total deaths continuing at about 30 more than 1956, this year could be the bloodiest in Minnesota's motoring history.

This warning was issued today by Harry A. Sieben, state highway safety director in reviewing the traffic picture.

"Traffic deaths have been holding from 25 to 30 more than a year ago," Sieben said. "If this increase is added to the 1956 total of 640 persons killed, it could mean that Minnesota may rack up its highest total of traffic deaths since records have been kept."

Sieben pointed out that the five highest death total years to the present were: Highest, 1936—649 fatalities; second, 1954—643; third, 1934—641; fourth, 1956—640; fifth, 1953—638.

He added that with 1957 deaths near the previous full year's totals, Minnesota could very well add last December's high figure of 62 deaths to the possible 1957 total and come up with the most terrible total of all times.

"An extended period of bad weather, always possible during December, may reduce the accident picture somewhat by reducing the number of cars on our highways," Sieben said. "However, this same bad weather could account for more serious accidents when drivers fail to adjust to those changes.

"In either event, the usual annual parade of holiday shoppers and traditional holiday celebrations will end in death or injury for many who hope to be home for Christmas."

Sieben called for full support for the continuance of the nation wide Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents campaign. This 1957 program will be stepped up this month and carried through 1958 under the direction of the National Association of State Safety Coordinators in which Sieben is Minnesota's representative.

U. S. Education Group Points out Teacher Shortage

Association Says Supply is up 4.2 Per Cent This Year, Still Lacks Many

The National Education Assn. estimated Thursday in Washington that American public schools have 4.2 per cent more teachers this year than last year—but that they still are short 227,500 qualified teachers.

In its annual "Advance Estimates" the NEA research division set the 1957-58 supply of teachers at 1,240,244, compared to 1,190,865 last year.

However, it said this year's roster includes 87,319 not meeting full-scale teacher standards in their own states and that three-fifths of these have less than four years of college training.

The 227,500 additional teachers, the NEA said, are needed to replace improperly prepared teachers, to replace those leaving the profession, to relieve overcrowding, to serve added enrollment and to add services.

Services which need to be added in some localities, it said, include such special items as remedial work as well as regular subjects like mathematics.

The NEA estimated total enrollment in public schools at 33,508,814 for the school year. Of these, it said, nearly 24 million are elementary and over nine million secondary children. The total was close to that estimated earlier this fall by the U. S. Office of Education, but the NEA gave secondary schools a slightly heavier split.

"Every man will have his own criterion in forming his judgment of others. I depend very much on the effect of affliction. I consider how a man comes out of the furance; gold will lie for a month in the furnace without losing a grain."

—Richard Cecil

Dividing Responsibility

President Eisenhower's recent physical relapse brought forth a fresh flood of suggestions for a new approach to the problem of succession in the event the chief executive should become incapable of meeting his many responsibilities. Maybe one good solution would be to relieve the President of a part of the burden.

This could be done by limiting the responsibility of the president to his duties as an executive officer. As the chief executive, in charge of administration, he still would have one of the biggest jobs in the country.

To congress could properly be given the responsibility for electing the head of the policy making department of our government. He would have the status of a prime minister. Elected by a majority in congress, he would have authority only as long as he had majority support.

This would follow the pattern that is common in the governments of most other free nations. The big advantage this system offers is top-level unity. The executive who speaks for the policy-making branch of the government speaks with the assurance that he has the support of the majority group in the law-making body.

In setting up our government our forefathers did a good job of pioneering, and much of what they adopted in their division-of-powers plan has served as a pattern for free governments that have been established since then. In our present dilemma however, it may be well to note that the "prime minister" idea, and its recognition of executive duties as a separate responsibility, has generally been favored.

A Million Less Dairymen

Family size farms are getting bigger. So are family size dairy operations. The trend is to fewer, but larger herds.

Since 1944 the number of farmers selling milk or cream in the United States has declined from 2,840,000 to 1,250,000, according to Hoard's Dairyman. Commenting on the trend editor Knox makes this interesting observation:

> We have no way of knowing how far this concentration of dairy farming will go. Obviously, a true revolution in dairy production has been taking place. It is true, too, that it can continue for several years and we may still have a surplus of dairy products.
> For example, our present milk production could be easily provided by only 325,000 dairy farmers with 40-cow herds averaging 10,000 pounds of milk per cow. This only serves to indicate how far the specialization in dairy farming can go.

Sound Pictures & Teaching

A complete course in high school chemistry will be filmed at the University of Florida and will be available for 16 mm projectors next September, according to the New York Times. The entire course will consist of 160 half-hour lectures. Most of the filming will be done in a special laboratory studio, but some scenes will be made on location in chemical plants and other places "where the practical application of the lessons can be better demonstrated".

According to the Times the series is designed to serve these four purposes:

(1) Teaching of chemistry in high schools with no chemistry instructors.

(2) Providing supplementary aid to trained teaching personnel in schools where science teachers carry heavy loads in other areas.

(3) Providing the opportunity for teachers in training to watch a top instructor and view expertly directed laboratory demonstrations.

(4) Enabling adults now in industry to get basic training in chemistry which they missed in high school.

The project, costing $500,000, will be financed by the Ford Fund for the Advancement of Education. The cost of the completed films to high schools will be $12,500 in black and white and $25,000 in color. Spread over a period of years that cost, for a fair sized school system, would not be great.

With a service of this kind available to them, one qualified instructor and a couple of assistants could provide superior chemistry instruction to a large number of students.

A comparable film in high school physics is now being used with excellent results in schools thruout the country. It is an interesting development that probably will make possible the overcoming of some of the most critical shortcommings of our education system.

Ridiculous Ruling

Members of the state investment board have rejected a gift to the Mankato State College because it carried the stipulation that it be made available to student nurses of a certain religious faith. Board members agreed with Governor Orville Freeman that the gift was discriminatory and therefore could not be administered by the state.

We will all agree that bequests for educational purposes are desireable and should be encouraged. Most of us, we think, will agree that the person making a bequest should have the right to prescribe reasonable rules under which such a grant should be administered.

To rule that a bequest to students of a particular race or religion is discriminatory in an evil sense appeals to us as bordering on the absurd. The University of Minnesota, for instance, solicits contributions for many various funds, among which is one for scholarships for Indian youths. As intergreted by the members of the investment board it would be wrong to contribute to such a worthy cause.

The law to which the Governor has referred is of doubtful merit to start with, and a nonsensical interpretation of course does not improve it. The ruling of the investment board should not go unchallenged. The questions involved are of sufficient importance to justify an opinion by the Supreme Court.

Lice and Mites

These tiny parasites can cause a heap of trouble in a laying flock. Lower production, poor rate of feed conversion, and weak disease resistance may be results of lice and mites.

My Recommendation:

After thoroughly cleaning the laying house, spray Dr. Salsbury's Pest Spray over all — floor, walls, roosts, nests etc. Pest Spray kills all common external parasites. Spray birds if lice or feather mites are present. One application lasts a long time. Use Pest Spray.

SCHOOL NEWS

Grades 1 and 2

There are now only 18 pupils in our room. We were very sorry to see Loid Trockmen and Bonnie Mosinski leave. These past weeks we have had bulletin boards of Halloween, Book Week and Thanksgiving. We also had a bulletin board of "clouds" which the second graders made for science. The second graders have new books entitled "The Friendly Village" and the first graders have new books about Alice and Jerry. In art we have been making turkeys and pilgrims for Thanksgiving. We all have our parts for The Christmas program and are very busy learning them. Teacher, Miss Jo-Ann Ness.

Grades 3 and 4

This month we have a bulletin board in our room with the title "Let Us Give Thanks". On it are pictures of Thanksgiving activities. We also have one for Book Week. On it are some of the covers of our new library books. Last week during art class the children drew pictures from one of their favorite library books. In fourth grade we have started our new reading book, "Roads to Everywhere". We are making a booklet in third grade Social Studies on the materials from which our clothes are made. The boys and girls are busy learning their parts for the Christmas program, which will be held December 18. We invite all of you to attend. Teacher, Mrs. Halward Anderson.

Grades 5 and 6

The last six weeks have been spent doing a variety of things such as picture exchanging, Halloween Party and getting ready for Christmas, plus the ordinary lessons. The room decorations have varied according to the season with pilgrims, turkeys etc. In reading, drawings were made by the sixth grade of Inscription Rock. In 6th grade science we have been studying about man's simple machines. The 5th grade finished studying about artificial heating of the home in winter. Our science bulletin board seems to be full of news of Sputnik, balloon rides, and strange objects. Most of the parts for our Christmas program have been given out. Some practice has also been started. Teacher, Mrs. Larry Layman.

Grades 7 and 8

Our enrollment is growing smaller. Marilyn Trochman left our school to attend the Fergus Falls school on October 28 so now we have an enrollment of 16. We have been busy with many things besides our ordinary school work this six weeks. We had our Halloween party, and then, of course, there was a big day when our pictures arrived and the exchange of them began. At the present time we are busy working on our plays for Christmas. During the past six weeks our school has been decorated for the following observances: Halloween, Book Week and Thanksgiving. We have been busy with our lessons too. In their Social Studies class, the 7th grade has just finished a skit entitled "The Government Meets Its First Tests". In this unit the Constitution is established and put into effect. We found its many weaknesses, and that one of them leads to the formation of the different political parties, still another leads to the differences between nations and the War of 1812. The ship, the Constitution of which the children drew a picture was engaged in this war. In their Social Studies, the 8th grade have been studying about minerals. They have learned about the different kinds of minerals, where they are located, how they are mined and the different uses man puts to them. In Arithmetic the 7th grade is busy with fractions and the 8th grade are working with percentages. Teacher, Miss Carol Leining.

The only 1958 car that offers more of everything you want... yet is priced lower than in '57

Here's great news! While prices of 1958 cars of other manufacturers are up, the price of Ford's exciting new Custom 300 Series is down. A brand-new 58 Ford Custom 300 with all of its exciting new styling and engineering advances is priced lower than a '57 model, similarly equipped!

World approved styling. A Custom 300 brings you styling that is dramatically new. With its Honeycombed grille, Slipstream roof, Deep-Sculptured rear deck, and Safety-Twin headlights and taillights, Ford styling drew admiring glances from Paris to Saigon . . . yet it's yours now in any 58 Ford Custom 300 without extra cost!

New handling ease. Slide behind the wheel of a Custom 300 and you'll soon discover just how much fun driving can be. Notice how smoothly it handles. That's Ford's new feather-touch Magic-Circle steering, the next best thing to power steering.

New riding comfort. Notice, too, the solid comfort of your ride. That's Ford's [illegible] front and rear suspensions. They soak up the bumps before they reach you.

Thrifty, new engines. You have a wonderful choice of new, more efficient power plants . . . designed for real gas-saving economy plus greater performance. Six or V-8, they give you more power, smoother power, from less gas!

Priced as much as $50 lower. A comparison of manufacturer's suggested retail delivered prices shows that a 58 Ford Custom 300 is priced as much as $50 less than the same model for '57! You'll wonder how Ford can offer so many of the things you want in a car priced so low. One big reason: Ford gives you more car for less money because Fords sells more!

See and drive a Custom 300 and we believe you'll agree that these Fords give you more real value for your car-buying dollars than any car on the American road today.

Scientist Proposes 5½-day School Week

Nobel prize winner Dr. Harold C. Urey urged schools Saturday to adopt a 5½-day week, a six-hour day, a 10 months a year program and regular homework.

He listed these and other drastic changes in this country's educational system to cope with "these dangerous times."

Urey also said a new respect for the intellectual is essential. He continued:

"It seems to me that the population of this country has a considerable predilection for trusting essentially stupid people and mistrusting those who are brilliant."

The University of Chicago professor and scientist warned in a paper read Friday night to 1,000 members of the Central Association of Science and Mathematics Teachers meeting in Chicago.

"Possibly our unintellectualism is something which could kill us all."

He declared that "Fallacious assumptions" dominating American education have been a major drawback in training scientists. Among the fallacies he outlined were these:

That the higher the age limit for compusory education the better. He explained that our entire approach to compulsory education needs to be re-examined because many youngsters cannot profit from the prolonged attendance now legally required.

That all children get the same basic education, regardless of capacity. Because of this fallacy, he said, superior children have to adjust their pace to be less capable and learn to be indolent. Urey suggests grouping children on the basis of their intellectual ability.

That the purpose of education is to develop personality and not primarily to acquire knowledge.

Urey also was critical of college students, saying that most of them have limited knowledge of English; their vocabularies are filled with slang; their mathematics is weak; their knowledge of languages, science and literature is inadequate.

He added that they have no effective study habits, little idea of thoroughness; read no books or seldom do and do not enter into conservation.

Bagley Man Head of N.W. School Parents

The 38th annual Parents' Day was held at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, with about 400 parents of students as guests of the students and faculty for the day's program.

Receiving the awards were: Lyall Bjornson of Arvill, N. Dak., $25, first; Mylo Carlson of Angus, $15, second; and Keith Miller of rural Crookston, $10, third.

Traffic Accident Cost Estimated at Seven Billion in '57

Figures out at $42.23 for Each Citizen, Say Insurance Companies

The nation was handed its 1957 traffic bill today by Thomas N. Boate, manager of the accident prevention department of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, and it came to a staggering grand total of $7,255,600,000!

That is the estimated cost of a single year's traffic mayhem based on figures for the first nine months of this year and a protection through December 31. It is the highest figure in the history of the automobile.

"The pro rata share borne by each of the nation's 171,790,000 citizens amounts to $42.23," Mr. Boate said, "while the cost for a family of four is $168.92. Included in the sum are charges for property damage, automobile repair, legal and medical fees, insurance expenses and loss of income through absense from work."

He added that in amassing this bill the nation's traffic losses will reach an estimated total of 38,300 deaths, 1,850,000 injuries and 11,700,000 accidents. An extended period of bad weather during the month of December could reduce this toll some by reducing the number of cars on the highway. Otherwise, he said, the usual annual round of holiday shoppers and seasonal celebrants will make December once again the deadliest month of the year.

Project Calls for Widening T. H. 89

Highway Dept. Asks Bids on Marshall County Job

The Minnesota highway department will receive bids December 20 in St. Paul for the improvement of more than 38 miles of trunk highways in Marshall and Renville counties, including widening of more than 23 miles. The estimated total cost is $886,000.

A Marshall county re-grading and re-graveling project will widen 8½ miles of T.H. 89 from 28 to 38 feet, including the shoulders.

The Marshall county project are: T.H. 89 — Grading of 8½ miles between a point eight miles south of the north county line and Jct. T.H. 219, 5½ miles west of Grygla; and concrete channel span bridge No. 9348, 75-ft. long, over a judicial ditch.

Motor vehicles, fueled and lubricated by Petroleum products, haul about 4,400 tons of freight yearly for every household in the nation.

THE QUEST FOR NEW TRAILS

The history of man is a story of progress. Each of its thousands of volumes could bear one common title: The Quest for New Trails.

Even in childhood we display this strange genius which has brought us from primeval forests to this atomic age. We love to penetrate the untouched spaces . . . to open trails where none have ever been.

But this quest could destroy us more rapidly than it has profited us. History recounts the fall of many a civilization too busy with its search for new trails to understand its deeper needs.

For man can truly progress only when his spiritual growth keeps pace with his cultural and scientific advancement.

Or, bluntly, the future of this young Arctic explorer and of his world depends on the Church. The truths of God are unchanging—and ever more essential—as we seek new trails into the Unknown.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Residential Drive Brings Chest $1,172.50

Others Phases of Campaign Lagging, Reports Indicate

A whirlwind Community Chest residential area drive in the city was reported all but completed last week by Mrs. John Wettestead, co-chairwoman of the drive.

Mrs. Wettestead said about five solicitors have yet to report in from the residential drive. Harold Storhaug, Chest secretary-treasurer, said $1172.50 has been turned in to date and that the outstanding contributions will reduce the discrepancy between the amount gathered last year and that reported to date this year.

Mrs. Wettestead said in a residential clean-up drive will probably be unnecessary, in view of excellent results in the drive.

Other phases of the Community Chest drive in the city and county are not as encouraging. Orin Green and George Kildahl, business area co-chairmen report little progress since last week and no results from the drive there were available to date.

Martin Gulbranson, industrial drive chairman, said no figures could be released because the three largest contributors had not reported in to date. However, he stated the drive will probably be concluded early this week. He was very pleased at results so far, saying donations were very satisfactory.

Much the same story is true of the rural county drive. Paul Engelstad said good progress is being made but urged that township workers make every effort to complete the drive there this week.

No estimate of progress in the government offices solicitations was available from Paul Anderson, who also urged greater speed from solicitors, as did Rev. Otto Dale, county drive chairman.

8th Graders Crowned Carnival King, Queen

The third annual Lincoln high school carnival held Saturday evening in the school gymnasium was a highly successful affair, attracting a large attendance of parents and students. The event was staged for the benefit of the Prowler yearbook and other school projects.

Judy Anderson and Gary Thompson, eighth grade candidates, were crowned carnival queen and king by virtue of their class turning in the most contributions. The two were crowned by Shirley Kulseth, 1957 Homecoming Queen.

Preceding the carnival, a short program was presented by students and faculty members in the school auditorium. Included were numbers by an appropriately costumed hobo band, which also shared in a mock queen coronation; comedy skit and selections by a trio made up of John Moum, James Solsten and Bryant Ulseth of the high school music department.

Lunch donated by parents of students was served during the evening.

With a near-record volume of mail expected during the next two weeks, Postmaster R. J. Dryden today issued his annual appeal to patrons of the Thief River Falls office to complete as much of their Christmas mailing as possible within the next few days.

Parcels for out-of-town delivery, he said, should be securely wrapped and plainly addressed, giving the zone number wherever possible. They may be marked, "Do not open until Christmas".

Greeting cards for local and out-of-town delivery, said Dryden, should be tied in separate bundles to facilitate handling, and should mailed as early as possible.

Dryden stated arrangements have been completed for a half-dozen additional workers to go on duty next week-end to serve during the Christmas rush period. An additional parcels post delivery truck also will be utilized, he added.

Two Break-ins in TRF over Weekend

Flom's Grocery and FU Elevator Are Entered

About $9.50 in silver was stolen from a neighborhood grocery store and damages caused at a local elevator here in two break-ins that were perpetrated over the week-end, according to Police Chief Elton Cummings.

Flom's Grocery, 1101 Duluth av. N., was reported broken into sometime Friday night or Saturday morning. The burglars pried a small padlock off an outer door and broke the glass in the inner door and crawled through the opening to gain entry, according to police.

The loss was reported as being in silver taken from the till, including two silver dollars and the balance in nickels and dimes, mostly dimes. Damage caused by the breaking in will also involve some loss.

Information concerning a break-in at the Farmers Elevator, reported this morning, is scarce, losses, if any, not being reported. However, police say considerable damage was caused by the burglars in breaking into the elevator.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Tunberg returned recently from the Twin Cities where they had spent a week visiting relatives.

$35,790 in Flax Insurance Is Paid in County

Loss claims filed on flax crops by policyholders of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation show that a substantial crop loss was suffered by Pennington County farmers this year, according to Ralph Childs, state director of the corporation.

Childs stated that wet weather during July, August, and September and plant disease which became evident near harvest time caused severe damage to this years' flax crop. Childs also explained that late season rains caused some damage to swathed flax in the county. Many claims were paid to producers who were unable to harvest any of their insured acreage. Pennington county insured policyholders collected $35,790 in indemnities this fall.

All-risk crop insurance is available on flax in Pennington county and applications for 1958 crop year are now being accepted at the Pennington county ASC office in the court house, P. W. Culkins, office manager, stated.

All farmers are urged to take advantage of this insurance program, which is available to all flax producers, and thus assure themselves of an income next fall on each acre seeded to flax in the spring of 1958.

Even though flax losses were extremely heavy in this county in 1957, the premium rate has not been increased, Culkins said.

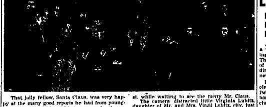
Many Children Visit Santa On First Stop Here



That jolly fellow, Santa Claus, was very happy at the many good reports he had from youngsters who visited him at his temporary headquarters set up at the city Auditorium last Friday and Saturday.

Friday was a quiet day but Saturday afternoon children and their parents lined up as far back as the corner of Main av. and W. Second st. while waiting to see the merry Mr. Claus.

The camera distracted little Virginia Lubitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lubitz, city, just before she climbed upon Santa's lap to whisper her Christmas wishes in his ear.

Santa advised those who didn't see him the past week-end to be sure to come next Friday or Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4 as these will be his last days in town this year before Christmas

Charges Filed in Grygla Accident

One Driver Is Charged with Drunken Driving

An accident near Grygla about 1:35 a.m. Sunday resulted in approximately $1000 combined damages to the two 1957 cars involved and superficial injuries to one of the drivers, according to the highway patrol office here.

A car driven by Eldon Swanson, 20, Holt, struck another driven by Stanley Bakken, Keewatin, in the rear, damaging both cars extensively. The collision occurred on a township road about six miles west of Grygla near the intersection of 219 and 89.

Bakken was uninjured but Swanson was brought to Northwestern Hospital here by Green ambulance. His injuries were not serious and were mostly cuts about the arm and jaw, the patrol reported.

Damage of $500 to the Swanson car involved battered grill, hood and fenders, while the same amount of damage to the Bakken car was caused to the rear end and frame.

Swanson was charged with driving under the influence, the patrol said here today.

Morris Owen, Harry Hendrickson Tell of Power Plant Change

Announcement was made at a well-attended luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday noon of the reelection of one member of the board of directors and the naming of five new members.

Don M. Olson reported for the election committee that John Peterson was retained on the board, while new members include Morris Howick, Cliff Bugge, James Parkins, Wallace Tunberg and Clifford Zaffke. Holding over for a second year are six other directors. The board will hold its organization meeting this evening.

Guest speakers at the meeting were Morris Owen, chief engineer of the municipal power plant and Supt. Harry Hendrickson, who discussed some of the problems in connection with the partial switchover to Bureau of Reclamation power, currently in progress.

Owen stated that bureau power shortly will be supplying 2,[illegible]50 kilowatts, which is enough to carry slightly more than half the present peak load. Starting January 1, 1959, he added, bureau power is expected to be sufficient to care for all the city's needs, based on the present load.

Owen also warned of possible interruptions in service when bureau power has an outage while serving the city and it becomes necessary to switch over to the local Diesel plant.

Hendrickson stated that use of bureau power will not increase the voltage here, and that, due to the growth in the area of the city, it will be necessary within the next few years to make changes in the distribution system to increase the voltage at a cost of $100,000 or more. He added that he could see no likelihood of an early reduction in local light and power rates, because of the heavy outlays facing the city in coming years.

Police Chief Elton Cummings called attention to the fact that a police check last Tuesday revealed that 11 of 23 cars checked in the business district for overtime parking were those of local businessmen or their employes.

Mean Temperature in November Was 26.6

Residents of Pennington county and others in northwest Minnesota are at last getting a much-deserved and long-overdue break in the weather with the continuation of fall into what is usually a cold winter month.

November was slightly chilly at times but the ground was still visible at the end of the month and farmers made progress cleaning up the remains of the 1957 crop where it wasn't ruined by sprouting due to excessive moisture earlier.

High temperature for the month was a relatively balmy 48 registered Nov. 11. The mercury reached 43 as late as Nov. 26 and topped the 40 mark five times during the month.

Average high temperature for November was 32.97 and average low 20.36, with a mean temperature of 26.6. Precipitation was less than an inch of rain and snow, usually mixed as it fell during the month.

Mercury Holds at High Level in Area

Readings above Freezing Mark Here This Afternoon

Temperatures in the northwest Minnesota area continued to make the majority of folks happy and give hockey teams the rough way to go over the past week, as "banana belt" weather lingered well past its usual limits.

Precipitation was also conspicuous by its almost complete absence in the area. Southern and central Minnesota have the dubious distintion of having had the most snow so far this season.

The forecast is for mostly cloudy skies with some light snow in the northeast today. Temperatures will rise today and there will be little change tonight.

Tuesday, skies will remain mostly cloudy with strong winds predicted, along with lower temperatures and scattered snow flurries.

Highs today will be in the thirties and lows tonight in the twenties, according to the KTRF forecast.

Handmade Goodie Tree Features No-Mix Cookie Cutouts

Beginning to wonder how you'll ever get it all done for Christmas? Here's a new and speedy way to bake old-fashioned Christmas cookies: use packaged Icebox Cookies from your grocer's dairy case.

Make Frosted Cookies by topping each slice with semi-sweet chocolate pieces, use pastel mint patties to top Candied Cookies, try molding small pieces of the dough between your hands for rich Icebox Cookie Nuggets.

Best trick of all is to make and decorate Cookie Cutouts:

Let roll of Icebox Cookies stand at room temperature until softened, ½ to 1 hour. Roll out on floured surface, to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut into desired shapes; place on ungreased baking sheets. Bake at 375° for 7 to 10 minutes. Cool 1 minute before removing from sheets. One roll makes about 3 dozen 3-inch cookies.

Real evergreen, or handmade tree of green felt over wire makes festive display of cute, crunchy cookies.

STATE TOPS IN AG VERSATILITY

That Minnesota is the most versatile state in agricultural production is established by state-federal statistics for 1956. Iowa and California tie for first place in total cash receipts, California leading in crop and total marketing, Iowa in livestock receipts and government payments; Minnesota ranks 5th in livestock and in total marketing, 7th in crop receipts and government payments. In a listing of the first ten producers of 21 crop and livestock products, from barley and chickens through turkeys and wheat, Minnesota leads only in oats and creamery butter while Wisconsin has five firsts, Iowa and North Dakota each three; but our state rates fourth or better in nearly every category, for a total score of 118, with Iowa at 111 the only other state to score above 100; California rates 97, Illinois and Wisconsin tie at 89.

FACTORS THAT MAKE FOOD COSTS GROW

A spread of 21½ cents per dozen eggs between farm sale and city purchase is analyzed by University farm economists as comprising 7.2 cents for assembly, 1.1 cents transportation, 3.2 cents for city receiving and handling, 10 cents for retail gross margin. The consumer's pork dollar is divided, according to producer, 9 cents for the livestock handler, 27.7 cents for the packer and wholesaler, 15.4 cents for the retailer. Of the milk dollar 45 cents goes for producing, 5 cents for assembling, 18 cents to process and bottle, 23 cents for distribution, 4 cents for management, 5 cents for marketer's profit. The wheat grower gets almost exactly half of every dollar spent for flour in 100 lb. bags, about 13 cents of the bread dollar, 7 cents of the cake mix dollar, about 4 cents of the packaged cereal dollar.

MINNESOTANS LIVE LONG, GROW SKILLED

At 89 and 88, respectively, Mr. and Mrs. August Maass, Gaylord, have been married 66 years. . . . At a sprightly 89 Austin Motem of Harmony thoroughly enjoyed his first plane ride. . . . Bemidji Daily Pioneer believes Olaf and Louis Enstrom, 90 years old in mid-November, are the state's oldest twins; Louis lives at Montevideo, Olaf at Hines, near Bemidji. . . . It took James Casey, Detroit Lakes, 30 years to put 58,620 miles on a 1927 Chevrolet, which this winter he rather reluctantly traded in on a brand new 1958 model. . . . When a lip injury cramped his cornet style, Frankie Voges, 15-year-old Slayton lad, didn't give up music—he made his own electric guitar and went right on harmonizing. . . . Prize Steer Sells for $30 Per Pound

Arthur Godfrey Buyer at Chicago Stock Show

Mrs. Sue Secondino's grand champion steer, Honeymoon, was sold Thursday for $30 a pound—a record for the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago.

The steer was purchased by Arthur Godfrey and the auctioning was televised on his CBS program.

The 19-year old Mrs. Secondino heard the record $30 bid with mixed emotions. She smiled and raised a hand to her eyes.

Mrs. Secondino, New Goshen, Ind., said she and her husband, Peter, plan to use the money to buy a farm in Indiana.

The champion white faced Hereford weighed 1,035 pounds Thursday. The sale brings Mrs. Secondino $31,050.

Peter smiled and nodded when newsmen asked if he and Sue still planned to buy a farm.

LUMBER DOWN, PULP UP, STATE FORESTS GROW ON

Undoubtedly timber has been felled and lumber hewn on Minnesota soil since the days of the earliest explorer, before the state, or even the territory, was named. The earliest official record shows 213,000,000 board feet produced in 1869. The peak of lumber production was reached at 2,300,000,000 board feet in 1902, with the entire period 1899-1909 near that annual total; 1919 found production again below the billion figure, at 680 million; in 1939 it was at the lowest recorded ebb, 111 million board feet, coming back to 210,000,000 by 1952. Simultaneously, the use of pulpwood has expanded from 10,000 cords in 1900 to 720,700 cords in '55, and an anticipated demand for more than a million cords annually by 1960.

About 300 million paper bound books were sold in the United States in 1956, 30% of total book sales.

Although there is evidence that people suffered cataracts 8000 years ago, scientists still know little about the cause of this eye disease. They are probing into a new theory that the presence of certain sugars in the system may be responsible.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

We were reading an article in a magazine the other day and came across some sage speech by a fellow at the scene of an airplane crash.

Seems as how an Air Force general had run out of runway in taking off with a jet trainer and after the ensuing crash was bemoaning his bad luck in having the mishap, wondering why it had to happen to him.

A captain on the scene comforted the general by the simple statement that, "Only people who don't fly don't have crack-ups."

Pretty sound advice, we'd say. Sure—we could reduce highway accidents 100 per cent too, if we took all cars off the road and made people walk but then we'd be defeating our purpose, which, after all, isn't to increase the life expectancy of people, but to provide fast transportation in this modern age.

No doubt we'll keep on having traffic fatalities, fewer, we hope. But, even if we didn't, these people who survive would eventually die, of old age, at the very best, which isn't necessarily the best way to die.

One must be realistic, you know.

Another way this same theory can be applied is that people who don't write columns in newspapers don't make a lot of people sore. As a rule columnists try to write something worthwhile but none that we know of dish out quantities of soothing syrup. One that tries to make everyone happy is just fooling himself. The hound that wags his tail under the rocking chair can expect it to get mashed, as sure as shootin'!

It must be a new song just out. Anyway, the workman singing and whistling it as he worked on a building project here may have something, since his chanty went, "Anyone in love is in a h—uva shape."

It must give folks in these parts great pleasure in reading about the snow people are having elsewhere. More than likely though, local hockey fans would just as soon see some cold weather, for fairly obvious reasons.

Somehow, it won't seem like Christmas, though, without the white stuff. As one local fellow put it "I hope it snows Dec. 23 and thaws the 26th!"

Which pretty well sums up our own thought on the matter, and yours too, we hope—SO LONG!

Christmas Tree Tips Are Offered

A "good shaking" is one of the best ways to check a Christmas tree before buying it, says Parker Anderson, extension forester at the University of Minnesota.

He says to shake the tree by the stub to see if the needles fall off easily. Watch out for brown patches, dried out and broken branches and loosely set needles.

If necessary, shop around until you can find a fresh tree of good quality. There are plenty of good ones available.

Look for a tree with good, green color, conical shape, a straight, sturdy trunk and closely-spaced limbs. The branches should be strong and springy and stiff enough to support the decorations.

Buy a tree to fit the height of your room. If you get one which is too high, you can cut off the bottom. Make sure there is enough stem to put in the tree stand.

Anderson also says it's wise to buy the tree early. You then get a better choice and you can store the tree in a cool place at home. That way, you can keep the tree fresher than the dealer will.

Take the tree inside only a day or two before setting it up. Be sure to cut an inch or two off the end of the stem and stand the tree in a pail of water. Then the tree can absorb plenty of water, will stay fresh longer and will thaw out. Keep the water receptacle filled every day after you set the tree up.

Good Roads Group Lists Objectives

Votes Support to State Highway Department Aims

The seven-point program of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. adopted at its annual membership meeting November 22, and aimed at "Better and Safer Highways" in the state, was announced today by John H. Mullen, executive secretary. The objectives of this 670 member statewide citizen's organization are:

To develop understanding and acceptance by the public of the new standards of location and construction required on the 858 miles of interstate highways to be built in Minnesota, which will involve new locations, controlled access and other modern freeway features; to the end that the early start and continued progress of this work be accomplished, and not delayed through misunderstandings.

2. To support the highway department in developing a program to reconstruct to modern standards those arterial trunk highways, not included in the interstate system, which are inadequate and unsafe for present and future traffic.

3. To cooperate with counties and municipalities in developing the orderly and efficient progress of improvement of their important highways and streets.

4. To support the adequate financing of construction, re-construction, and maintenance of these highways.

5. To help protect the highway user funds, both state and national, from diversion.

Officers of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc., for 1957-58, are: Elmer V. Erickson, Cambridge, president, S. L. Stolte, Minneapolis, vice president; Kenneth Law, Hastings, secretary; Oscar A. Olson, Sr., Braham, treasurer; and Jerry J. Kigin, St. Cloud; assistant treasurer.

Beef

Fertilizing the pasture, feeding grain and implanting steers with stilbestrol increased beef profits per acre by 60 percent in recent University of Minnesota tests. Also, terramycin and stilbestrol fed together to steers boosted gains by 25 percent and resulted in higher market prices.

Corn silage will bring faster gains in steer calves fed over winter than any other kind of silage.

But the silage must be properly stored to keep spoilage to a minimum or the cost of silage will be higher no matter what kind you use.

These recommendations come from 1956-57 feeding trials at the Rosemount Agricultural Experiment Station.

They found that calves fed corn silage made 1.04 pounds gain per head daily and at only 17.2 cents per pound feed cost. That was more gain and less feed cost than from any other silage.

Calves on alfalfa-brome silage gained .90—.95 pounds daily, at a feed cost of 19.8 cents feed per pound of gain. Oat silage brought less favorable results.

However, these feed costs are based on feed actually consumed. There was a high degree of spoilage in the silos used in these tests — up to 40-60 percent. Based on costs of the feed originally stored, calves on corn silage required 23.6 cents worth of feed per pound of gain and calves on alfalfa-brome silage averaged about the same. That shows that poor storing methods can greatly increase silage feeding costs.

As far as the comparison between corn and grass silage is concerned, these tests confirmed previous years' results. On the average, grass silage is about 80 percent as efficient for wintering calves as is corn silage.

Hogs

A practical way to control parakeratosis in pigs is to add zinc to the ration. Parakeratosis is a non-infectious, mange-like disease. It results from a high-calcium, low-zinc imbalance.

Average families spend about $2.00 out of each $100 after taxes for beef, and used to spend about the same amount for pork. But in the last 10 years, annual expenditure for pork has dropped steadily to $1.70, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

The hog-corn ratio — the amount of corn which can be bought with 100 pounds of pork — is still very favorable in Minnesota. With hog prices at $15 per hundred and corn near $1 per bushel, the ratio is now 16, which is 5 points above the "breakeven" point. This means farmers will be wise to maintain present hog numbers, but they are cautioned against expanding now. Past experience shows that hog prices often drop to low levels a year or so after the hog-corn ratio is as high as it is now.

Give your baby pigs a good start before winter sets in. Feed them a good pre-creep feed now, followed by a good starter until they weigh about 75 pounds. Hogs between 75 and 150 pounds need a protein supplement containing about 14 percent protein. Twelve percent is enough from 150 pounds to market. And according to present feed prices, Zavoral adds, soybean oil meal is one of the most economical protein supplements you can get for hogs this year.

Unfortunately, there so far has been little incentive for the farmer to change his practices to meet the demand for meat-type hogs. Only 25 percent of the hogs produced in the U. S. are meat-type.

Dairy

A large dairy cow may give off as much as two gallons of moisture to the air in 24 hours, simply by breathing. This means some form of ventilation and moisture control is needed in barns to prevent damage from excessive moisture.

Certified Seed

One hundred percent certification is the only way in which we can be sure that seed keeps its variety identity and purity. At present, for example, less than half of the small grain seed sold is certified.

Minnesota—The Seal

Growing With Your Child

Look At All Of Those Books!

Boys and girls are a never-ending source of surprise. At the height of the excitement in what was to be a PERFECT party for young people, two guests were missing. A brief search located them in the den — one curled up on a sofa and one draped over an easy chair — deeply engrossed in books. Two of their friends charged into the den to get them to rejoin the party. Ned stopped short and exclaimed, "Look at all of those books!" Soon he and Dick, too, were browsing, and a fifth friend had to come after the four of them.

The outstanding impression those boys and girls gave was a very real hunger for books and a comfortable spot to look at them. To one who grew up with books as the core of family life, this regard for them as a novelty was intriguing, especially since they were offering stiff competition to the planned entertainment. When later on one boy asked to borrow the memoirs of Sister Elizabeth Kenny, the dam burst, and it seemed that half of the party went home with a borrowed book. Have books become so scarce in homes?

In remarking about the book-lending incident to a friend, she, too, had been wondering about the same thing. She roomed temporarily in a home where there was new furniture and a TV set but no books, magazines—not even a daily newspaper in sight. With a six year old in the family she thought surely there must be some books. Not finding any, brought two into the living room and left them casually on the table. By the next day they were banished to a hiding place in the linen closet, where lo! there were six other books. Little Joan explained these were "Christmas present" books.

Now we know that people are still buying and borrowing books, and there is some evidence that many children read rather widely. Nevertheless, ther is cause to speculate that more of the right books in the right places might turn many a trick in helping young people develop lifelong interests.

The best way to learn to swim is to be around water. The best way to learn to build is to pick up a board, hammer, and nails. Children cannot pick up books if there are none lying around invitingly. It is worth a try!

Early Portuguese sailors brought the first coconut seed to tropical America. They named it "coco" because of the seed's resemblance to the Portuguese language equivalent of bogeyman or goblin.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—I am college under the Korean GI Bill, and I have just about come to the end of my GI entitlement. If I run out of entitlement before the end of my semester, will I be allowed to continue my GI training.

A—If your GI entitlement runs out after you've passed the half-way mark of your semester, you will be permitted to continue under the Korean GI Bill to the end of the semester. Otherwise, your GI training will end when your entitlement expires.

Q—I hold a World War II GI endowment policy. When it reaches the end of its endowment period, could I arrange to receive monthly payments for the rest of my life.

A—No. You may, however, choose either a lump-sum payment, or payments over a specified period ranging from three to 20 years.

Q—I am getting monthly disability compensation payments from VA which I am told, are tax-exempt. If I save those payments and buy some property with them, would the property also be tax-exempt?

A—No. Tax-exemption does not extend to any property you might buy with your compensation payments. The property would be subject to taxes.

Q—I am a Korean veteran, and I've been thinking of using my GI loan rights to buy a house. Is there any hurry to buy a house, or do I have plenty of time?

A—You have plenty of time. Korea veterans have until January 31, 1965, to take advantage of their GI loan benefit. World War II veterans have only until July 25, 1958.

THAT OLD WOMAN

By Allen Wishert

THE rain came suddenly that Sunday morning. The front door of the small church blew open, so thought the congregation. Instead, however, an old woman came in and sat down. Evidently, she had entered only to avoid the rain.

She was poverty-ridden and exceedingly old, her dress was old and torn. Never had she been seen in the community before.

She appeared as if she didn't care for sermons, especially, the one being preached then, although the text dwelt on those in distress, and it was better to give than to receive.

The sermon over, the collection was taken up. As the plate was passed to the old woman, she was seen to deliberately take a coin from it and cram it into the pocket of the old dress. No one mentioned the incident. The small congregation had been taught kindness by their beloved minister.

During the week, Mrs. Sarah Smith was hanging out her wash. Mrs. Bertha Brown, next door neighbor, came into her backyard to empty some trash. It was a perfect setting for gossip.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Smith, hoisting a clothesline pole. "You saw what happened at the meeting last Sunday?"

"I did," replied Mrs. Brown. She placed the wastebasket on the ground and walked to the fence. "I could hardly believe my eyes. Did you know her?"

"I imagine the poor thing was hungry," supplied Mrs. Brown. "I can't understand why she didn't ask for alms instead of—er—well—stealing. Anyone there would have given her a meal."

The next Sunday, to everyone's surprise, the old woman was again present, she occupied the same seat. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Smith sat where they could easily see her every action, and wondered if she again would commit theft.

When the plate came around, she filched another coin. The following two Sundays another coin was lifted from the plate.

After services this Sunday morning, several decided to speak to the minister. They informed him, smilingly, and he replied that it wasn't news to him. Each Sunday he had noted the incident, and had replaced the missing coin with one of his own.

On the fifth Sunday, Tom Patton came in late and stood at the back. Again a coin was taken, no longer could Tom restrain himself. Service over, he and the minister stood facing each other in the vestry room.

"Concerning that old woman, preacher," exploded Tom. "The old witch, she has stolen—."

He failed to finish, standing there beside him was the "Old witch" in person.

"You've been stealing from this church," boomed Tom. "You've been using it to wager on dog races. I saw you at the track Wednesday, dressed in fine clothes, and when you left you did so in a Rolls Royce."

"That is true," she uttered the words in a low, cultured voice. "I dearly love to roam about in old clothes. It becomes quite monotonous being pointed out as that 'Wealthy Widow.' I dropped in that first Sunday to satisfy myself if country ministers practiced what they preached. I was convinced. You, dear clergyman, felt that I was in need and made no complaint."

"I am still perplexed," replied the minister.

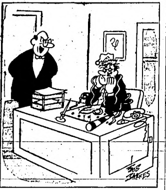
"I have decided to become a member. However, the building is unsafe. I am donating funds to erect an entirely new edifice."

Passing him a check, she turned on her heel and disappeared. The minister glanced at the written sum, and gasped:

"SEVENTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS."

"I wonder," Tom thought out loud, "will we ever see that . . . that nice old lady again?"

LAFF OF THE WEEK



"Sleep well last night, Benson?"

Mr. and Mrs. Kittle Nelson were Thursday evening visitors at the Dick Oberg home.

Mr. Frank Cormeir moved a building from his farm to his home in town this week to be used for a garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Kittle Nelson visited with Mr. Gilbert Nelson at the Middle River Rest home Friday.

Only One Traffic Mishap Reported In City This Week

City police reported a quiet week-end, traffic-wise, in the city, with only one mishap which caused $15 property damage to a parked car.

The damage was reported to her car by Mrs. Oscar Paulson. She said it was hit by Larry Ness, near the Paulson driveway.

No accidents were reported on rural roads in the county by Sheriff Richards while the highway patrol reported on property damage and injury accident near Grygla, an account of which is elsewhere in this issue of the Times.

Our Land . . .

New Fertilizing pays off in cropland efficiency is clearly demonstrated again in results from 1956 X-Tra Yield plots on farms around Minnesota. Charles Simkins and Curtis Overdahl, extension soils specialists at the University of Minnesota, report that David Kamen, Farmington, harvested 143 bushels of corn per acre on a well-fertilized X-Tra Yield plot. The unfertilized check plot—on the same kind of soil—yielded 68 bushels per acre.

An Idea from a farm magazine five years ago is paying off for Earl Newburg, farmer near Rushmore. The idea is "interseeding"—seeding legumes between wide rows of corn. Newburg does the interseeding, usually in early July, between corn rows spaced 80 inches apart, according to C. A. Van Doren, director of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Soil and Water Conservation Research Division, Morris. Newburg has had excellent hay stands from interseeding and is completely sold on the practice. He started it in 1955.

Pond And Pit construction are gaining popularity in the North St. Louis soil conservation district, according to Ray Cline, U. S. Soil conservationist there. In the past, drainage of wet heavy soils has meant, mostly removing surface water. Now, Cline says, farmers see the value of retaining surface water in ponds.

Erosion which washed soil from uplands of bottomland is coming to an end on the Ellsworth Swenson farm, Windom. With assistance from Ralph Nordstrom, U. S. Soil conservationist for the Jackson soil conservation district, Ellsworth worked out a plan which included terraces, contour strip cropping, grass waterways, pasture renovation and other practices.

Prowlers Tip Fertile, Meet Bemidji Friday

Revealing marked improvement in their play, the Prowlers, with well-balanced scoring by their front line trio of Dave Rasmussen, Phil and Dave Hanson, and getting some strong rebounding from Jim Bennes, clipped the Fertile Falcons, 70 to 60, in an inter-district basketball game played at Fertile on Friday night.

The Prowlers will open their "home" schedule this week, meeting the ever-dangerous and highly-regarded Bemidji Lumberjacks on Friday night on the Lincoln gymnasium court. The Lumberjacks, who scored a 49 to 46 win over the Prowlers in the regional tournament finals last season, are favored to make a successful defense of their title this season.

Except for the first period of Friday night's game at Fertile, when the two teams played deliberate ball in an effort to set up scoring plays, the game hurried along at mid-season tempo. Coach Noel Olson's Falcons, with Jerry Olson dropping in three field goals to lead the Fertile scoring, held a 19 to 18 lead at the end of the first period.

Phil Hanson, who had been held scoreless in the first period, sparked the Prowlers to a 22-point splurge in the second period, getting three field goals and a pair of free throws. Rasmussen, who was aggressive and drove strongly throughout the game, added a pair of field goals and a couple of free throws. The Prowlers left the floor at the intermission holding a 40 to 33 lead.

With Dave Hanson sitting on the bench in the third period, nursing four personal fouls, the burden of the center play, and covering the defensive rebounds, was shifted to Jim Bennes, and the redhead came through handsomely. The locals maintained their advantage over the Falcons, holding a 55 to 47 lead as the two teams entered the final period. At one point late in the third period, Fertile, with shifty Lyne Sannes pumping in three quick baskets, pared the Prowler lead to 51 to 47, but baskets by Phil Hanson and Rasmussen provided the blue-and-gold with a comfortable cushion.

In the final period, the Prowlers outpointed the Falcons, 15 to 13, with Rasmussen scoring three field goals to lead the locals. The Falcons field goal scoring in the final stanza was monopolized by guards Sannes and Arlo Brunsberg, with Sannes netting four buckets and Brunsberg looping in three fielders.

In a preliminary game, coach Joe Mrkonich's Prowler 'B' team, after trailing by two points, 18 to 16, at the half-time, rallied to defeat the Fertile 'B' team, 53 to 30. Forward Bob Pearson, with six field goals and four free throws was the high-point man for the Prowler 'B's.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

By Mike Roberts

EVERY nimrod with a particular hunting fancy, whether it be big game, waterfowl, shore birds, quail or rabbit, firmly believes that his is the supreme and ultimate sport.

There is, of course, ever-present danger in hunting big game animals such as the lion, tiger, and even our native mountain lion. But big game hunting in the jungles is an expedition, not a mere hunting trip. The hunter doesn't go out alone in quest of a lion or a tiger. He takes along an experienced professional guide and a number of helpers who reduce the danger to a minimum.

But danger is not a necessary ingredient for successful and happy hunting. Thrills are to be found in the whirring blast of a flushed covey; in the sudden spurt of a startled rabbit, and in the heartbeat, whistling sound of big wings against the sky.

For thrills unlimited, few gun activities equal duck hunting. The cold winter winds whips icy pellets of sleet through a hunter's frozen blind. Hands and feet grow cold and numb and a dull, drab morning shuts out any promise of even a slight warmth from the hidden sun. Minutes of anticipation always seems like hours of endless waiting. The horizon is bleak and empty.

But icy-cold and anxious waiting are part of it all for the duck hunter. He gladly endures it, for hours, asking only for that brief reward that comes when his eyes spot that first flight in the morning sky. His pulse quickens and his body becomes warm and tense. Broad wings that have been bent to the sky turn to the call. The long, grey lines swing round in a circle over decoys and blind. At any moment, the reward for patient waiting may be reaped in a moment of thrilling excitement.

Advertising doesn't cost — it pays.

Greetings from Donny

We were in the crowd of 3500 fans who enjoyed that hockey game at Grand Forks on Wednesday night. The Winnipeg Warriors, the league-leaders of the Western Canada professional hockey league, defeated coach Bob May's North Dakota Sioux, 4 to 0. That score, and the defeat for the Sioux, was not unexpected for after all the Warriors, coached by Alf Pike, are a bona fide pro outfit, and the Sioux are a college club. It's a case of the men and the boys.

The Sioux came out of that game, and it was a fine exhibition of hockey, with plenty of honor, for it was a creditable performance to hold the Warriors to a 4-goal win. While there wasn't much to choose between the skating ability of the two clubs, the Warriors showed much more precision in finishing off their scoring plays. That the Warriors should exhibit more finesse in goal-scoring and team play isn't surprising, for the Winnipeg team has played twenty-tow Western League games, while the Sioux were playing their fifth game.

Its certain, too, that the Sioux, during the remainder of their season, will not be playing a better team than the Warriors.

Our primary purpose, though, in driving over to Grand Forks for the game was to renew acquaintances with Danny Summers, the personable and capable defenseman of the Warriors. Summers, it will be recalled by local senior hockey fans, played with the Thieves during the 1952-53 season. That season he played on the local senior squad under the name of Bill Winters, as he was under suspension for failing to report to an eastern team.

Summers, who is alternate captain of the Winnipeg team, is playing his second season with the Warriors. He and Bill Mosienko, the former Chicago Black Hawk team, are the "elder" statesmen of the Winnipeg sclub, and, according to coach Alf Pike, they have a steadying influence on the comparatively young Warroar club. It's probable, though, that this will be Summers last season in pro hockey. Danny sent greetings to the many friends he made here during his season of hockey with the Thieves.

Ice Fishing

Some of the more intrepid of the city's ice fishermen dared the thin ice to try their luck, and they reported that their luck "she was good."

On Wednesday, Web Mavea, Tommy Fuller, and Wendy Olson drove up to Baudette, crossed the river there, and went to the Burton Island area of Lake of the Woods. The trio, fishing through the ice and using frozen minnows, caught eighteen walleyes and twenty-four saugers. They reported that about a dozen fishermen were out on the ice there, and several big walleyes, weighing in at ten or twelve pounds, were caught.

While Web and Tommy and Wendy were pleased with the luck they had at Burton, they reported that the fishing near the blinker on the Rainy river in the vicinity of Wheeler's Point was better. The fishermen are able to drive on the ice of Four Mile bay, but that the channel ice was precarious.

We haven't received any reports from the Union lake or Hill lake crappie fishermen, but these reports will filter in this week we presume.

Courtesy

Following the individual introductions of the members of the Winnipeg Warriors and North Dakota Sioux hockey players on Wednesday night, and just prior to the game at Grand Forks, the North Dakota band played the "Star Spangled Banner." That was fitting and proper.

But it would have been a matter of courtesy if the band had played a few bars of "God Save the Queen" or "Oh Canada." The ice was mostly covered with Canadians.

Of the thirty-three players that were presented to the crowd only four, and all with the North Dakota Sioux, were Americans. On that 18-man North Dakota squad, Joe Poole of Thief River Falls, Bob Began of Eveleth, and Stan Paschke and Bob Peabody of Grand Forks were the boys who pledge allegiance to the stars and stripes.

Of the remaining squad members, five of the boys come from Fort Frances, Ont.; three from Winnipeg, Man.; two from Moose Jaw, Sask.; and one each from Edmonton, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Hamilton.

Canada is where the hockey players come from.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota

by JIM KIMBALL
Director of Game & Fish

What is a bow hunter? The answer you get will depend entirely upon whom you ask. The archer will assure you that the modern bow hunter is a noble fellow . . . a true conservationist. No doubt, a direct decendent of William Tell, Robin Hood, Friar Tuck or Little John. He is a rugged outdoorsman with keen senses and the ability to stalk his prey — not a meat hunter, but one who prefers to give his quarry more than an even chance; a man cunning as a fox who prefers to outwit the deer rather than overpower him with modern firepower.

But ask a gun hunter and you may get a different definition. He may tell you that an archer is a guy who never was able to get a deer with a gun so he takes up archery. Of course, they say, he won't get his deer with a bow either but then its' less disgrace that way.

Actually, we do not have a lot of conflict here in Minnesota between the bow hunters and the gun hunters, and I certainly hope we keep it that way. To the game manager the archer is a newcomer with interesting possibilities. He may be able to hold excessive deer herds in check where the time and place do not warrant the use of guns. Then, of course, the game manager knows that his real job is not just the production of game. Basically, his job is to provide the greatest possible number of recreational hours to our sportsmen without depleting our wildlife population. And he knows that no one enjoys as many hours of recreation per pound of meat harvested as does the bow hunter.

On the other hand, the game manager knows that the bow hunters are presently out-numbered about 20 to 1 by gun hunters in Minnesota and it is his task to provide the greatest good to the greatest number. Actually, though both the gun and the bow hunter are pursuing the same quarry, there is little competition between them. About 190,000 gun hunters took 60 to 70 thousand deer a year, for a success ratio of from 35 to 40%. On the other hand, our 9,000 bow hunters shoot 300 to 350, for a success ratio of 2 or 3%. If the deer are aware of these statistics I am sure that they would vote unanimously in favor of the bow hunter.

In recent years bow hunters have been permitted to enjoy their sport during the entire month of October. Of course, they could also hunt during the regular gun season but even William Tell would have found it a bit difficult competing with the modern scope-equipped 30-06 automatic rifle.

During the last session of the Legislature, a law was passed permitting a December bow season. So, this year, bow hunters who have not already killed a deer with either a bow or a gun can again take to the field between December 1st and 15th, and in the southeast corner of the state where deer eat apples and apple trees, they have the full month of December. The law does not permit December hunting north of the line running along highways 10 and 210 and 39 between Moorhead and Duluth. The purpose of this delineation was to prevent archers from killing and disturbing deer which might be concentrated into relatively small wintering yards, particularly during years of heavy snow. Some archers will probably wonder why they were not given the full month of December rather than the first fifteen days. The answer to this is that it seems logical to proceed with a little caution until we find out how this December season works out. Besides, it is a good guess that most bow hunters will find three week-ends plenty of time to freeze their fingers while hanging on to a bow-string.

While the professional game manager is usually quite sympathetic to the archer they do occasionally crash head-on. This happens when certain archers ask that areas be set aside for exclusive bow hunting and that guns be kept out regardless of how high the deer population builds up. The game manager knows from experience that deer in over-abundance mean one of three things— crop depredations, range deterioration or winter starvation. The game manager knows that it is possible, and frequently necessary, to harvest 30% of a deer population each year, and this can seldom—if ever, be done with bow and arrows. Sound, long range deer management dictates that proper control of the herd must take precedence over the immediate wishs of the hunter.

Well, thees archers, how hunters or bent stick artists come in for a lot of kidding, but most of us have a great deal of respect for the man who has actually killed a deer with this primitive weapon. If I should ever kill an deer with an arrow, I am sure that I would have it mounted — the arrow, not the deer. I might even have the hole mounted if it occurred in a respectable place.

DHIA Supervisor Posts Available

Short Course Will Open Dec. 16 at Minnesota 'U'

There are several openings throughout the state for supervisors for dairy herd improvement associations, which are looking for men with agricultural backgrounds and a liking for dairying, states County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. Anyone who has satisfactorily completed a short course at the University of Minnesota can qualify for employment. At present a strong demand exists.

The next D.H.I.A. supervisors short course will be held December 16 to December 21 and anyone can enroll. The registration fee is ten dollars.

Wages depend upon the size and number of herds tested and rates members pay for the service. Supervisors furnish their own transportation from farm to farm but get meals and lodging at the farms. Work appeals to young men and women, older men and persons physically handicapped for farm and industrial occupations. To qualify for the position of a supervisor, a high school or agricultural school education is preferred but not required. Also one should have some farm or dairy experience, be able to keep accurate records, like to live in rural communities, and work well with farm people.

There are openings for D.H.I.A. supervisors in many counties of the state. These have good promise of permanence and afford valuable experience to persons interested in work closely associated with dairying. Anyone completing a week's training and demonstrating ability to do the work required may expect to be placed in a position within a reasonable period of time. It is suggested that in the meantime men call on the county agent for an interview conceding D.H.I.A.

"A strong life is like that of a ship of war which has its own place in the fleet and can share in its strength and discipline, but can also go forth alone to the infinite sea. We ought to belong to society, to have our place in it and yet be capable of a complete individual existence outside of it."

—P. G. Hamerton

Of, By and For

Mayors and other representatives of the nation's larger cities, 1,400 of them attending their annual meeting in San Francisco last week, deplored the efforts that are being made to reduce federal expenditures at the local level. Well, the position of those who have the responsibility for the management of our large cities is not unusual in this respect. We all want the federal government to reduce its spending. But we don't want the reductions in the spending that benefits us.

The prospect for federal economy is not encouraging. The pressure for increased spending is terrific, and all of the cause have merit. Members of congress who say no do not continue to be members of congress.

Gradually we are becoming a government of the people, by pressure groups, for pressure groups. This is not likely to change until the governments' credit is exhausted. There is little reason to believe that suddenly we are going to become bright.

Rocket Fiasco

American prestige sank to a new low when the much advertised launching of the Vanguard failed so miserably. It was not the failure itself that made us look foolish. The failure was excusable. Before a reasonable measure of success in this field can be achieved there will more failures, probably many of them. The reason for our embarrassment was the circus-style advance publicity with which the event was heralded. That was inexcusable, and we deserve to be the laughing stock of the world that this bungling has made us.

President Eisenhower has asked for a special report on the Vanguard failure. We hope that he will also direct an inquiry into the manner in which the launching was publicized. High-ranking officials who permitted the ballyhoo, and to some extent participated in it, should not be permitted to remain in the government service as high-ranking officials. Having handled this matter like a group of six-year-olds they should be permanently reclassified as such.

The Vanguard fiasco has been attributed in part to the rivalry among the various branches of the military service, and there may be justification for such a conclusion. Rivalry, within reasonable limits, no doubt serves a useful purpose. In this, as in most other things, too much is not good. But to whatever extent rivalry among branches of the armed forces is detrimental to the nation's overall defense program is a problem for which the administration is responsible.

And the Eisenhower administration probably deserves a share of the responsibility for the childish manner in which this experiment was publicized. Too many of our government agencies are guilty of this same kind of foolishness, and in its own best interests, as well as the nation's, the administration should take a careful look-see into the publicity activities of all departments.

We Can't Start Sooner

There are many good ideas about what should be done to make Thief River Falls a more attractive city. There is general agreement that the river offers outstanding possibilities and should be developed. And one good thing about these possibilities is the fact that they fit into a program that is essential.

The river channel above the dam is rapidly filling up with silt, and a dredging operation of some kind is a near-future necessity. The dredging will provide opportunities not only for channel improvement but also for the creation of attractive lagoons and parkways, and also valuable building sites. The river channel below the dam should be cleared and lowered as a means of securing increased power from our water turbines. Landscaping would be a natural by-product.

Maybe a proper first step in moving into a program of this kind would be a city planning commission, authorized to secure the services of competant planning engineers. It is not only the river that is a problem. We should be planning for orderly expansion as the city grows, and the development of streets designed for the special needs of the automobile age.

Some special legislation probably would be necessary to make possible a satisfactory river development program, and if we get started at once it still will be several years before any real progress can be made in actual accomplishment. The creation of a planning commission might properly be added to the list of good deeds for which a future generation will be thankful to the present city administration now nearing the end of its term.

By a vote of 11 to 3 the Winnipeg school board has restored the right of a teacher to administer corporal punishment, and a regulation strap will be standard equipment in each classroom. Believing, as we do, that discipline and respect for authority are quite important in the education process, and knowing that there are times when a physical shock serve a useful purpose in emphasizing their importance on youngsters, we like the idea. We agree that what is most needed in our youth conservation program is a back to the woodshed movement.

The Air Force released a modest statement late Saturday that another "intermediate range" missile, a Thor, had been successfully test fired. This was the seventh attempt to fire such a rocket with its 1,500 mile range, and four of the seven tries had been successful. A few guns that shoot 1,500 miles are going to be just as effective for most purposes of combat as those that have a range of 5,000 miles or more. And we like the way the Air Force reported its progress.

Farm census figures released last week reveal a decline of 32,000 in the number of farms in the state during the past 17 years. The biggest decrease was in northeastern Minnesota. St. Louis, Cook and Lake counties had nearly 6,000 farms in 1940. Now there are only 2,650 farms in that area. In the state as a whole the number of acres in cultivation has remained substantially the same, indicating the general trend to fewer but larger farms. The trend, which is continuing, is both good and bad.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

Several state departments are now cooperating in making a study of distressed conditions in parts of seven northwestern Minnesota counties, where crops were destroyed by floods resulting from excessive rains last summer. This study will include a farm-to-farm survey to obtain factual data as to the effect of flooded croplands. It will include an appraisal of what effect the crop failure has had on retail sales and other business in the towns that serve this area.

Natural disasters having such serious economic consequences are fortunately relatively rare in Minnesota. But when they do occur financial conditions can become truly serious in the area involved. When all the facts are assembled with regard to this area, we shall be able to summarize them and present a report to Washington, in an effort to obtain Federal funds to alleviate the hardships caused by the reduction or total loss of the 1957 crop income.

Winter Hazards

Our State Department of Conservation is making a special effort to publicize suggestions that could result in the conservation of many human lives this winter. These suggestions contain nothing new,—but each year tragic accidents remind us that they cannot be repeated too often.

Ice

Icy roads are always hazardous, and call for slow, careful, and skillful driving. But thin ice on lakes and streams is also a hazard, and new ice always seems to offer a temptation to youngsters. Many adults do not know all they should about ice safety, particularly in a state like Minnesota with its many water surfaces.

Ice may be safe for a man on skis, but unsafe for a man on foot. Ice may not be of uniform thickness, due to the thawing action of springs or flowing water. Generally two inches of ice is considered safe for man on foot, and four to six inches will support vehicles. But be sure to allow a wide margin of safety, particularly in fall and spring.

Christmas Trees

For safety against fire, remember that a Christmas tree is highly inflamable, and grows increasingly so with each added day in the house. Keep matches away, and make sure that all electrical connections are safe. To keep the tree fresh and green, store it in a cool place until ready to erect, mount the tree in water, and spray or sprinkle daily. For more positive safety, there are fireproofing sprays that can be put on the tree.

Power Lines

Everyone should be aware of the danger of electrocution that lies in broken power lines. Storms may break the lines, and ice sometimes causes them to break in the winter. Treat such broken wires with great respect, and give them a wide berth. Even experienced linemen sometimes make mistakes.

Carbon Monoxide

During cold weather the danger of exposure to carbon monoxide poisoning increases. Cars should never have their motors running in a closed garage. And everyone should be aware of danger from carbon monoxide that can arise as the result of allowing the motor to run in a car that is stalled in the snow. On such occassions motors are sometimes left running to keep passengers waiting for assistance warm. But an exhaust pipe plugged with snow, or a leak in the pipe, or other conditions may permit carbon monoxide fumes to seep into the car.

Crop Rotation planning can often be done with a lot more leeway than used to be thought possible. Lowell Hanson, extension soils specialist at the University of Minnesota, points to recent field tests at the West Central School and Experiment station, Morris, which bear this out. These tests show it's possible to get good corn yields in rotations that include only one year of legumes.

In Past Years, it was often thought that most cropland in western Minnesota, for example, should be left in legumes for at least two successive years. Now, Hanson explains, we know that isn't always necessary. Crop rotations can actually be "tailor-made" for the individual farm. A farmer can plan his crops according to the rest of his business. This means for example, a livestock enterprise would call for a different rotation than would be best if the farmer were selling all his crops for cash.

Modern Cultivation practices and more economical fertilizers have helped change this crop rotation picture. By planting corn in tractor wheel tracks on freshly plowed but undisked soil, farmers can often reduce soil loss due to runoff after rains.

Nitrogen Fertilizers are now more economical per pound of actual plant food than they used to be, making it easier to get high corn yields with less legumes in the rotation. All this adds up to a more favorable position for the farmer. If he follows the right conservation practices, he can get by with only a year of legume in his crop rotation, if, that's the way he prefers it.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

LOST COUNTIES

The Minnesota territorial legislature, in establishing counties and defining boundaries, often disregarded previous acts or moved without sufficient knowledge of the county. As a result, some counties overlapped, boundaries were confused, and citizens did not know in which county they lived.

In 1858 Judge Moses Sherburne and William Hollinshead were appointed to bring together all the Minnesota laws passed by the territorial legislatures into a single volume. The poor men were never able to bring order out of the many conflicting county boundary lines that had been set up.

The legislature endeavored to remedy the situation by creating new counties, and in this way some of Minnesota's original counties disappeared. Among the counties lost were Pierce, which was created in 1853 and ajoined Nicollet County; Davis, which lay north and west of Renville and Carver counties; Buchanan, which is now largely in Pine County; and Monroe, now in Mille Lacs County.

Many counties, once established by the legislature, fell by the wayside because there were not enough people in them to organize a government. These areas later became a part of other counties. The names of some of these counties were Keating, Seward, St. Anthony, Ripley, McPhail, Franklin, and Canby.

CAPITOL REMOVAL

After the capitol of Minnesota was established in St. Paul in 1849, various forces worked from time to time to move it to Stillwater, Mendota, St. Peter, Kandiyohi, Minneapolis, or other cities.

An editorial writer for the "Minneapolis Daily Tribune" remarked in the issue of February 27, 1875, that the bill pending in the state legislature to remove the capitol from St. Paul to Kandiyohi probably would not pass, and, he thought, "it is a pity."

He went on to say that "It is a shocking thing that our legislators are compelled to meet annually in the 'wickedest city' in the State, where gin mills and other disorderly places gap at them from every corner." In St. Paul, he wrote, the legislators were surrounded by "greedy office-holders" and "corrupt politicians" who "haunt the legislative halls by day, and by night fasten upon the weary members at their hotels . . . tempting them to downfall by their vile and corrupt propositions. Many a man's life has been wrecked by reason of his having been elected to spend the winter in St. Paul."

Though he thought Kandiyohi would be better than St. Paul, it comes as no surprise to read that the Minneapolis editor's suggestion for the best place in which the legislators might meet in peace was — Minneapolis. "With its virtuous surroundings," he wrote, "it is undoubtedly the fittest place in the State for the Capitol."

FIRST FEDERAL COURTS

On June 11, 1849, Governor Alexander Ramsey issued a proclamation establishing three federal judicial districts in Minnesota Territory and naming 3 successive Mondays in the following August as court days at Stillwater, the Falls of St. Anthony, and Mendota, respectively.

The First District court convened at Stillwater on August 13 with Judge Aaron Goodrich presiding. Govenor and Mrs. Ramsey attended the proceedings and were entertained that evening at a dinner in Stillwater.

In the Second District, Judge Bradley B. Meeker held court on August 20 in a house attached to the government sawmill on the west side of St. Anthony Falls. There was no business to come before the court on that occasion.

The first court session in the Third District, held in Henry H. Sibley's warehouse at Mendota on August 27, likewise had no cases on its docket. It was, however, memorable because of an address that Judge David Cooper delivered to the assembled grand jury. Cooper's speech, on the value of the grand jury in a democracy, has been admired by lawyers and jurists, and it is familiarly known to them as "Cooper's Charge."

Despite the excellence of Judge Cooper's speech and the obvious care with which it had been prepared, it was largely wasted on the grand jury, for most of them spoke only French.

LEWIS CASS

The curiosity of the governor of a territory concerning the extreme western portions of his domain put the name of Lewis Cass on the list of Minnesota trail blazers. Cass was governor of Michigan territory in 1818 when it was enlarged to include all the land between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi River north of Illinois.

In order to become personally acquainted with the Indian tribes and the geography of his territory, Cass organized and led an exploring expedition through the new region in the summer of 1820. The party reached Fond du Lac by way of Sault Ste Marie and Lake Superior, followed the usual canoe route to Sandy Lake, then proceeded up the Mississippi to a "beautiful sheet of transparent water" which was named Cassina in honor of the leader. It is now known as Cass Lake.

In his journal of the trip, Henry R. Schoolcraft, who accompanied Cass, recorded that Cass Lake "may be considered the true source of the Mississippi River." Apparently Schoolcraft did not really believe this to be true, however, for twelve years later he again invaded the northern wilderness to search for the "true source" of the Father of Waters, which he discovered and named Lake Itasca.

After leaving Cass Lake the party traveled by canoe down the Mississippi to Fort Snelling and then returned to Detroit. Cass is known not only as a frontier governor and explorer, but as a statesman, for he later served as United States minister to France, as a senator from Michigan, and as secretary of state under President Buchanan.

"AN APPLE A DAY" FOR 19 DAYS

Any idea how many different varieties of apples are grown in Minnesota? No, we didn't have, either, until a recent University Farm folder enlightened us. Alphabetically we have Beacon, Cortland, Delicious, Fireside, Golden Delicious, Haralson, Jonathan, Lakeland, McIntosh, Minjon, Northwestern Greening, Oriole, Prairie Spy, Redwell, Wealthy. Count 'em: 16 varieties in all, variously good for sauce, pies, baking, jelly, and other appetizing uses from August through April. Our state also yields three varieties of crab apples, good for pickles, canning, jelly, etc.: Chestnut, Dolgo, and Whitney. Many apples can be successfully frozen, the University has found.

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE!

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all who gave their vote and support in the village election.

"ALMOST, BUT NOT ENOUGH" is our verdict on how close competitive cars have come to matching the Swept-Wing 58. Take style. Other new cars are "almost" as low in inches, but still seem high and boxy in looks. Some of them are "almost" going to fins, but not enough to really make a difference. Then take performance. None of the other 1958 cars have anything to match the sway-free, dip-free, vibration-free ride of Torsion-Aire. (It's standard equipment.) Most of them still don't even have push-button driving! So after you've seen the "almost" cars, come in and drive a Swept-Wing 58. You'll see why we say: They're catching on, but they can't catch up.

Iron Horse: '57 Model

It's like driving from a second-story window to operate from the cab of one of these 34-ton 400 H.P. trucks. These 10-wheeled iron range workhorses perform dozens of heavy-duty jobs in ore mining, overburden removal, and stockpile haulage operations.

Costly as they are, these huge trucks are needed for the iron ore mining Minnesota is doing. Today ore material right out of the ground may be as much as two-thirds waste. This means that we must start with more material to maintain our shipments. And, chances are, today a truck makes its first stop at a beneficiation plant so the ore can be processed to upgrade it to steel mill requirements.

If Minnesota is to maintain its place as a major iron ore producer, many millions of dollars must still be invested for more research and more new plants. You and your family and all the people of Minnesota have a very real stake in iron ore.

RESEARCH AND INVESTMENT CAN KEEP MINNESOTA'S IRON ORE FUTURE BRIGHT!

Cheese Production Increases, While Butter Goes Down

Reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Thief River Falls Cooperative creamery Tuesday afternoon revealed that the local plant had another successful year in 1957, with total sales of $925,143.38, not far below the all-time record of $979,500 set the previous year.

A. D. Hanson, president, conducted the meeting, and the report on operations was read by Norman Wenberg, manager. In the annual election, Vernon Anderson was retained as a member of the board of directors.

During the fiscal year ending September 30, cheese production out-stripped butter output by a wider margin than ever, with 1,709,938 pounds of cheese manufactured, compared to only 584,027 pounds of butter. In 1956, the plant produced 1,685,000 pounds of cheese and 697,800 pounds of butter.

An average price of 61.80 cents per pound was paid for all butterfat in cream, including a patronage refund of .49 cent, while an average of 62.06 cents per pound was paid for all butterfat in milk, this figure also including a patronage refund of .49 cent per pound.

The report revealed a total average production cost per pound of butter of 3.785 cents, while the operating cost per pound of cheese manufactured was 4.15 cents.

Checks were distributed at the meeting covering the remaining one-fourth of the patronage dividend for 1947 in the aggregate amount of $4,900.

Ruling in Controversial Matter to Be Made Shortly by Judge Paul A. Lundgren

Judge Lundgren stated that he would make a decision as soon as possible and that when the decision is made the information will be announced in the newspapers.

Other attorneys appearing in the matter were Warren A. Saetre, representing Marshall county and L. A. Brink, Hallock, representing a group on the lower Middle river.

$2,404 Turned in to Date in Chest Drive

Mrs. John Wettestead requested today that a very special "Thank you" be published for the workers in the residential drive who conducted such a whirlwind drive, yet turned in an excellent performance.

Testing For TB

In recent years tuberculin testing has been extended more and more to people of all ages—from the schools to communities, to counties, to special groups. Money raised through Christmas Seals makes possible a continuous statewide effort in Minnesota to find the unknown cases of tuberculosis. Pictured are a father and son who came for their tests at Mountain Lake during the Cottonwood county-wide survey conducted by the local and state Christmas Seal organization. Reactors — those found to be TB-infected — received chest X-rays to determine whether the germs had damaged the lungs. Special laboratory tests are part of the search for active disease.

Prowler Puckslers Get Set For Season Opener

The recent cold snap provided the Prowler hockey team an opportunity to catch some much needed practice on the arena ice sheet Tuesday evening. Coach Johnny Matchefts divided the squad into two teams and a hard-fought practice game was played as a part of the overall sharpening-up process.

This shot was taken just as a player on the "south" team made a rush on the "north" goalie. The puck is visible just to the left of the goalie. Unseasonably warm weather in recent weeks had made practice difficult for the Prowlers because of unsuitable ice in the arena on warmer days.

Wieners Showing '58 Model Pontiac

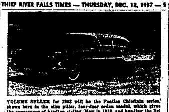
Two New Models Being Shown by Local Dealer

Wiener Top & Body Works, local Cadillac, Buick and GMC dealer, has added the agency for the Pontiac line of automobiles, and now has two of the 1958 models on display, it was announced this week.

In addition to the five-passenger Bonneville convertible and the sport coupe, Pontiac has for 1958, the Star Chief series consisting of two and four-door Catalinas, a four-door sedan with slim center pillar, and a custom Safari station wagon.

The Super Chief line includes two and four-door Catalinas and a slim pillar, four-door sedan. The Chieftain series is led by the convertible, new in this line; two and four-door Catalinas, two and four-door sedans, and a three-seat, four-door station wagon.

On 122" and 124" wheelbases, the new Pontiacs are as much as 4.5 inches lower in height, are 2.2 inches wider and as much as 8.7 inches longer overall.



VOLUME SELLER for 1958 will be the Pontiac Chieftain series, shown here in the slim pillar, four-door sedan model, which gives the appearance of hardtop styling. New in 1958, and heading the list in this series, is the distinctive Chieftain convertible. Other Chieftains are the two and four-door Catalinas, a two-door slim pillar sedan and two, four-door Safaris; a two-seater and a three-seater. With a 122-inch wheelbase, the Chieftain remains the "big car" with the "little price."

Editor Times:

I read with interest in both your papers and the Warren Sheaf, that there was a move to change the name of "Mud Lake Federal Game Refuge. I will admit that it is an ugly name, but then, Mud Lake Refuge is an ugly project. To my notion the flooding of Mud Lake was the greatest calamity that has ever happened in Marshall county. Because it is taking its toll of farm crops every year to the amount of many thousands of dollars.

When this part of the state was first homesteaded it was more or less too wet to farm. We farmers have paid ditch taxes for fifty years to get it drained. Some of us made the mistake of draining land that would not support a farmer and his family, namely the jack pine ridge and cedar and tamarac swamps. And so in the early thirties, a large part of this land was taken over by the State. And they named it, The Red Lake Game Refuge and the Beltrami Island State Forest. This I think was a proper move, except for the fact that the State has let the Beaver get the upper hand. And now a big part of this vast refuge is so flooded that even the timber is dying out and it is growing up with swamp willows.

Later the state also dammed up Thief Lake and the Federal Government also established the Mud Lake Federal Game Refuge, and built two dams there. By now the State Federal Government had over-done their damming, the same as we farmers had over-done our ditching in the wrong places. We now have too many wet refuges too close together, and as a consequence our farms are wetter now than they were fifty years ago before we started to pay ditch taxes. We now have to wait until the ground is frozen to combine our crop. And it is not the first time we have had to do that since Mud Lake was flooded.

We all know that water draws water, and almost every year since 1937, the first year Mud Lake was flooded, we have had too much rainfall some time during the growing season or harvest.

I read a report by our Federal Government, why they spent so much money damming the Missouri River, and it said it was to get cheaper electricity, irrigation in some parts and to create more rainfall in those dry midwest states. If it could create more rainfall in those dry states by damming the Missouri River, then all our wet land refuges here so close together, surly have created more rainfall here, where as a rule we had ample rain before.

After the devastating flood at Kansas City in 1951, they bought up a low area of many thousand acres some miles north of the city, and dug a channel from the Missouri River into it and built a dam which they keep closed. They also dug a channel at the lower end into the Missouri and built a dam there also. They now have a dry lake. And if ever a flood threatens the city they can divert a lot of water into this dry lake.

But not so at Mud Lake. There they keep a lot of water at all times. And as was the case in 1950. We flooded so much worst, because they held back the water from the start until it washed out their spillways, and then we got it all at once.

I can not understand our sportsmen clubs, and the State Game and Fish Dept. They are always clamoring for more wetland projects.—A state like ours that now boasts of 10,000 lakes.

I think any farmer in this area who buys a duck stamp, or a wet land stamp is cutting his own throat. We ought to buy a dry land stamp to pay for taking out both dams in Mud Lake.

I have not bought a duck stamp the last two years, because we have to do our shooting before season to try and save our crops. And we never post our land, that way the hunters take care of the ducks for us after the season starts. When Mr. Hunt was manager at Mud Lake he set off some bombs in a neighbors field and he gave the farmers free shells to scare the ducks before season. But the farmers soon found out that the shells were blanks, and we have learned that the only ducks that respects our rights to our crop are the dead ones.

The Warren Sheaf says that the name Mud Lake is a disgraceful name. But I think it is a fitting name because it is a disgraceful project. And if the dams are not taken out soon this Mud Lake will extend from Thief River Falls to the Canadian border.

Gunsten Skomedal.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. W. F. Meyer, Miltonvale, Kansas: I remember almost as far back as the turn of the century, when it took 10 yards of calico to make a house dress and women, children, and teenagers, boys and girls alike, wore long black cotton stockings that came up over the knees. Boys as tall as men were dressed in knee pants with black cotton stockings covering the rest of the legs. It was always a time for teasing and joking when the young man of the family got his first long pants.

I remember the first fly swatters. What a help they were! Every home had a large mesh cloth, called a mosquito bar, to put over the baby to keep the flies away. We didn't need that much longer after fly swatters came in.

I was just a little girl, pre-school age, when the first ice cream cones came to town. They were advertised: "Come in for ice cream, eat the dish and all." Oh, how excited we were to get down there and do just that!

In many homes, a large crock of cool clabber milk brought up from the cave was a big treat for children as ice cream is today. We would sprinkle a little sugar over the clabber milk and eat it with a teaspoon, several of us around the same crock.

I can remember when the only ice was made up on the river during the winter time and the ice man and his wife delivered it all summer long.

I remember when the only fresh vegetables were raised by truck gardens near the river and peddled around the town every day. There were no fresh vegetables in stores, but items as crackers, navy beans, sugar and coffee—in large wooden barrels.

Garden Valley Co. Given New Phone Numbers Dec. 15

wishing to call cross country to do so automatically with very little human operation being necessary. In time it will become possible for a subscriber in New York to dial a number in San Francisco directly and in only a matter of seconds.

By installing the necessary equipment and instituting the new numbering system, Garden Valley has done its part toward the ultimate completion of the nation wide DDD system. Bell Telephone Company is busy working over its nationwide system to conform to the requirements of DD.

According to information given by the Garden Valley Office, it is of great importance that subscribers co-operate by destroying their old directories which will now be entirely obsolete and also that subscribers passing out information as to their telephone number thru letterheads, advertising materials or otherwise, be sure to include the full 2-letter, 5-digit number so that people wishing to call them will have their correct telephone number.

Sunday is the day for the cut over to 2-letter, 5-digit operation and marks the date of another forward step leading to still better telephone service.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

AS A NATION of people, we Americans are too often so busy enjoying our cake that we have no concern for the fact that tomorrow we may have no cake at all. We "live it up" for the moment, grabbing all the good things we can and in so doing we often abuse our privileges.

Let us consider the hunter, who is supposed to be a sportsman. For the privilege of pursuing his favorite sport he is liable to obey State and Federal laws which restrict his method of operations, his selection of weapons, and his bag limits. He is further obliged to respect the rights of landowners upon whose property he hunts, to refrain from careless or wilful acts which might cause damages to property or livestock.

But, unfortunately, such is not always the case. There are hunters who believe in eating their cake wherever they find it. In reckless pursuit of their "hobby" of hunting, they destroy fences, wildlife, litter farmyards and fields, leave open gates for rambling livestock, and carelessly injure, cripple or kill farm animals.

Continous repercussions of this type of poor activity can be found along most any country road where freshly-painted signs adorn trees, fences, and hedgerows: NO HUNTING.

For the hunter who lives "by the book" and obeys the laws, the "no hunting" sign is distressing, particularly when it closes out a favorite, always productive spot. It makes no impression upon the poor sport. He just takes off in search of some new territory to conquer and spoil. And he apparently never considers the fact that his negligence or carelessness was responsible.

The landowner whose property is abused by poor sportsmen has no choice but to protect himself by posting his land. Often it is action regretfully taken.

2,422 Muskrats Are Taken at Mud Lake

91 Mink Also Trapped During Recent Season

Trappers operating on the Mud Lake refuge from November 2nd to December 4th caught a total of 2,422 muskrats and 91 mink, Herbert Dill, refuge manager, stated today. After dividing with the refuge, the trappers sold 1,311 muskrats for $[illegible], and 44 mink for $784.50 to local buyers.

The government's share of this fur is sold at the New York Fur Auction. Twenty-five percent of the government's share is paid back to Marshall county for use in the school and road fund.

The trapping is done by local men, some of whom formerly lived on the lands now included within the refuge.

Following the close of the regular muskrat trapping season November 24th, it was determined that a surplus of muskrats still was present on the refuge. It was feared that excessive damage would result to the dikes if these were allowed to remain. For this reason the state conservation department has issued a permit to the refuge which will allow the trappers to take muskrats until December 17th in order that the population may be kept in thin bounds.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Jeannette Burgum, Arthur, North Dakota: I remember seeing Sitting Bull, the Sioux Chieftain, riding in a parade celebrating the Fourth of July, 1889, at Bismarck, North Dakota. The "Constitutional Convention" met to celebrate North Dakota (then a territory) entering (with 3 other States) the Union.

This great parade was a mile long, with military bands, calvarymen riding on their splendid horses, marching infantry in Navy Blue, bands of Indians in war regalia. Last of all was 44 young girls, age 8 to 16, riding horseback on side saddles, wearing long, red and white riding skirts, blue jackets with white stars and blue jockey caps. I was one of the girls representing my father's native State of Kentucky. The Mayor of Bismarck ordered the bands to play softly, in fear of causing a runaway of the girls horses. After we dismounted, the bands blared, and loudly played the stirring music of the Civil War.

The Indians had been invited to attend and join in the parade from their reservation at Standing Rock (Sioux Nation) and they came and camped near the Camp Hancock site where the military troops were camped.

These were the days before gasoline was invented and in 1889, all travel away from the railroad was by horseback buggy, wagon road or stages.

The mail to various post offices was horse-drawn stages from Bismarck to Fort Berthold, Fort Yates, Winona, etc.

The
by [illegible]

HUNTING and fishing, the most popular of our outdoor sports, have more than 20 million devotees and the number is constantly increasing.

With more and more leisure time the prospect for the years ahead, these outdoor sports will become an increasingly more important part of our way of life. Yet if generations to come are to enjoy these sports as we know them today, we must start now to educate ourselves and our children to the problems at hand.

Conservation must be our watchword. Time and the endless march of our civilization must not be allowed without good reason to make us forget that once animals and birds of untold number and species once roamed where our majestic cities now stand. Nor must we forget that needless and wanton slaughtering led to trails end for the buffalo and the carrier pigeon, the Key deer and others. Today, in areas of the country where game bird hunting can best be described as "poor to fair," many oldtimers remember when standard equipment for the bird hunter was an empty feed sack—large enough to hold enough birds to feed a number of families—or to bring a good price at the rear door of a local restaurant.

Today we have laws which restrict bag limits. State and federal conservation departments regulate hunting and fishing activities and direct invaluable restocking programs. But they have many problems keeping up with the ever-demanding needs of an increasing army of hunters and fishermen.

As big as this great country of ours happens to be, stretching from Maine to California, we may see the day when it is not big enough. Industry and urban development continues to push communities outward.

Long Live The Queen

Her Majesty, the Queen: winner of the Singer Teen-Age Dressmaking Contest is Mary Reveland of St. Louis Park, Minnesota, who wears the crown of Queen of the nation's teen-age dressmakers.

America has royalty, too. Now reigning as Queen and Princess of the nation's teen-age dressmakers are two young ladies from Minnesota, who sewed their way to fame and fortune as winners in the Fifth Annual Teen-age Dressmaking Contest, sponsored by the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

Queen Mary Reveland, 17, of St. Louis Park, Minnesota, who nosed out more than 64,000 contestants to take first prize of $1,000 in the senior division of the contest, is a blonde, blue-eyed lass, with the complexion of a Dresden doll. Her winning dress, of black-and-white checked wool with black satin collar, is from a Vogue Pattern.

Princess Idelle Boress, 13, of Appleton, Minnesota, is the Alice-in-Wonderland type, with a long, brown ponytail. The rust color of her winning dress, made from an Advance Pattern, is a perfect complement to her hazel eyes and creamy complexion. She took first prize of $500 in the junior division of the contest.

Mary and Idelle, with six other finalists in the exciting contest, were the guests of Singer during a week-long stay in New York. The eight girls and their mothers went to hit Broadway plays, famous restaurants and night clubs, and saw such sights as the Mayflower, the Statue of Liberty, and the United Nations. Their stay was climaxed by a [illegible] fashion show in the Hotel [illegible] where prizes were awarded to winners. In addition to their prizes, all the girls won Singer Slant-Needle Portable Sewing Machines as regional [illegible].

Local Singer Sewing Centers have a word for girls planning to enter the '58 contest, beginning next spring. They point out that girls who have never sewed before have an excellent chance of winning a prize, and that [illegible] girls who win on the local or regional level try again the following year to win on the national level.

The other six finalists received cash awards and honorable mentions. Senior division prizes of $800 each were awarded to: Barbara Becker of Cleveland, Ohio; Carol Falotico of Glen Ellyn, Illinois; and Nancy Heller of Maplewood, New Jersey.

Junior division prizes of $[illegible] each were awarded to: Marsha Bauer of Indianapolis, Indiana; Elaine Ann Hirsch of [illegible], Kansas; and Elaine Wilson of Kirkland Lake, Ontario, Canada.

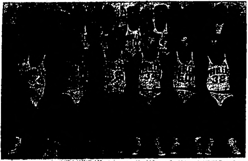
Basketball Duel

DAVE HANSON

An added highlight to the important eighth regional high school basketball game that will be played here on Friday night between Thief River Falls and Bemidji will be the personal duel between the Prowlers' center Dave Hanson, and the Lumberjack's all-state center, Ray Cronk.

In the three games played between the Prowlers and the Jacks last season, the individual honors between Hanson and Cronk were just about even. Hanson rolled up twenty-one field goals and fourteen free throws for a 56-point performance, while Cronk tallied twenty-four field goals and twelve free throws for sixty points.

Prowlers to Tackle Bemidji Here Friday Evening



The basketball Prowlers, with an early-season winning streak of two games, will attempt to keep that streak intact as they meet the Bemidji Lumberjacks on the local high school court Friday night. The members of the 1957-58 Prowler squad are, front row, left to right: Jim Bennes, Ken DeLap, Dave Hanson, Dick Hanson, Dave Rasmussen, and Ken Jones. Second row: Coach Alan Adams, Phil Hanson, Stan Torgerson, Lynn Nicholson, Mickey Hanson, student manager Bob Jorstad, and assistant coach Joe Mrkonich. Expected to start against the Jacks on Friday night will be Phil Hanson and Rasmussen, forwards; Dave Hanson, center; and Bennes and Nicholson, guards.

A total of 723 million barrels of oil were refined in Venezuela in 1956, an increase of 10.5% over the year before.

State-wide Interest

Not only will the basketball fans, the high school fans, that is, focus their attentions on the local high school court on Friday night when the Bemidji Lumberjacks meet the Prowlers, but the game will also attract the interest of the fans on a state-wide basis. It's a red-hot early season special, and should draw a capacity crowd.

Coach Bun Fortier's defending regional champions will be coming over here carrying a four-game winning streak, and the Jacks have been very impressive as they rolled up these cage victories. Last Saturday night they humbled a well-rated Crookston Pirate team, 72 to 52; and that final score does not show the margin of superiority that the Lumberjacks held over the Pirates.

And on this early season record, Bemidji must be given the short end of the odds and rated a favorite over the Prowlers in Friday night's tilt. Bemidji, with Fred Swenson and Marc Kolden at the forwards, Ray Cronk at center, and Bob Engle and Larry Rybak at the guards, appear to have been welded into a smooth-working unit. The indispensable player of this unit is, of course, all-state Cronk.

While the Lumberjacks have what appears to be a well-balanced starting five, the Prowlers are in an experimental stage. Coach Al Adams has remarked the Prowler "first string" won't be determined until after the Christmas holidays.

The loss of guard Keith Johnson, by transfer to Grafton, has handicapped the Prowlers floor play considerably, and this loss will perhaps be evident until mid-season or later, when the new floor men gain experience and poise.

Another factor that will add to the odds in favor of the Jacks on Friday night, is the condition of center Dave Hanson. The rangy center, who can play Cronk on even terms, has been plagued by the flu, and he has not been able to shake off the after-effects of this siege. The result is that he has missed several practice sessions.

A Bowling Lesson

Several of the city's younger bowlers, and an ambitious group they are, too, have arranged a home-and-home series with a Plummer all-star team.

This Plummer team, co-captained, co-managed, and co-coached by Wally and Jesse DuChamp, will bowl against Elmer Poole's Viking Tavern team — Don Haugen, Pat and Mike Poole, Freddy Jense, and Dean Anderson.

We hear rumors, and they are quite well founded, that the Plummer team will be bolstered by the presence of lefty Phil LeGault. Wally and Jesse claim that Phil is a Plummer "resident" by reason of the fact that Wally has listed Phil as a dependent for income tax purposes. (During this year's golfing season, Wally made donations and contributions to Phil to the extent that these sums became a deductible item).

Looking over the lineup that will bowl against the Viking Tavern, we hazard the guess that the oldsters will give the youngsters a bowling lesson.

Hockey Notes

The senior hockey Thieves will begin play on their Northwest league schedule on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29th, when they meet the Roseau Cloverleafs on the Arena rink. — Coach Johnny Matchefts hockey Prowlers will open their 1957-58 campaign on Monday, Dec. 16th, when they meet coach Bill Sullivan's Crookston Cathedral sextet on the local ice. — Ken Wellen, the hard-working center-ice man from Roseau and who was a letterman at Minnesota last season, has transferred to North Dakota where he is captain of the Sioux freshman team.—Mike McMahon, an all-state defenseman with the state champion Prowlers of 1954, has also transferred to North Dakota, and he is on the Sioux frosh hockey squad. — Monty Markstrom, the former Roseau Rams and Roseau Rams and Roseau Cloverleafs hockey teams, playing at center-ice, is employed here in town with the highway department, and he will be eligible for the Thieves. — Big things are expected of Lyle Guttu at Harvard this year. Lyle, a member of the Prowler 1954 state champions, is in his junior year at Harvard, and he will fill a wing position on coach Cooney Welland's Crimson sextet. — Another former eighth regional hockey star who is expected to provide strength for the Harvard varsity this season is Bruce Gillie of Williams. Gillie captained the Harvard freshman team last season.—Dont' forget. The Harvard University hockey team will play the North Dakota Sioux at Grand Forks on Wednesday, Jan. 1st.

Use of Fertilizer Is Beneficial in Tests, County Agent States

A good response to fertilizer was obtained in tests conducted in Pennington county last summer, it was announced today by County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. The trials were on the Jens Kirk farm, three miles west and one mile north of Thief Falls, which is operated by Andrew Skaar.

The trials included forty different analyses of fertilizer used at various rates. The rates were zero, twenty, forty, and eighty pounds of nitrogen per acre; zero, twenty, forty, and eighty, and 120 pounds of phosphorus per acre; and zero and forty pounds of potash per acre.

The soil was silty clay loam, which is often called a heavy or clay soil. The laboratory soil test showed it to be alkaline with a PH of 8.1. The nitrogen content was low and the phosphate and potash levels, as shown by the lab tests, were medium.

The most economical fertilizer application was a twenty pound application of phosphate. The yield was increased by a 3.39 bushels at a cost of $1.09 worth of fertilizer.

The fertilizer trial was with Forrest barley, and on the soil getting no fertilizer the yield was 17.3 bushels. The highest yield was obtained by applying eighty pounds of nitrogen and 80 pounds of phosphate per acre. The yield on this plot was 33.48 bushels per acre or almost double the yield where no fertilizer was applied. The cost of the fertilizer does not warrant this heavy application, however.

Issue New Rule on License Numbers on Fishing Houses

Good news for dark house or fish house fishermen! Thanks to Conservation Commissioner Selke's order number 1494, announced today, they will no longer be compelled to expose themselves to the elements in order to comply with the law.

According to the new regulation the license number of the dark house or fish house may now be painted on any kind of weather resistant material and fastened to the exterior of the shelter. It will obviate standing out in the cold too paint the numerals, name and address.

The task can be performed in the warmth of the shelter or home and fastened to the structure's exterior. If the owner wishes he may still paint his name, address and structure's license number directly on the house. The painted figures must be at least three inches high.

Still in effect is the regulation which requires the posting of the license purchased for the house in the interior of the structure.

Editorials . . .

"The pages of history are littered with the bones of free nations that, through complacency, indifference, and ignorance, allowed their strength to be drained. Each time it has happened so gradually that it was imperceptible to their citizens. And then, when the crisis came, there wasn't any strength left, or not enough."

—Lammot DuPont Copeland

Idle Workers' Paychecks

Richard Gray, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the A.F.L.-C.I.O., made an unusual proposal to construction workers at their annual convention in Atlanta recently. He suggested that in an attempt to halt inflation there be no demands for wage increases next year and that a committee be named to "seek a voluntary moratorium in wage boosts in industries dependent on construction." Cement, lumber and steel were mentioned in this group.

As was to be expected his appeal did not meet with top-level approval, but it is significant that a labor leader of his rank would have the courage to make such a proposal at a national convention called, presumably, for the purpose of figuring out ways to get wages increased.

Mr. Gray recognized the important difference between dollar wages and real wages. The dollar, in itself, is not a satisfactory measure of compensation. It is what a dollar will buy that is an important consideration too often overlooked, or, at least ignored, when wage scales are being argued.

And Mr. Gray recognized another important fact too in making his recommendations. The wage scale is only one of several factors that enter into the size of the pay check. Idle workers do not benefit from high wage scales, and wage scales that make the cost of construction prohibitive are not beneficial to labor.

More Contradictions

An example of poor judgement in public declarations by top level men in government was the order issued by the head of the internal revenue service requiring detailed expense item reporting in the income tax returns for this year. With ten months of the year already gone it would be impossible for many honest citizens to make such a detailed report, which in previous years had not been required.

This obvious fact was recognized by the tax officials when the justifiable complaints started pouring in. The order was therefore rescinded, and the old practices will still be respected in the filing of returns for 1957 income. But the confusion had been created, needlessly, for lack of just a little application of common sense.

In a statement explaining the change, it was made clear that detailed reports on expense items for the year 1958 will be required, and with that we have no objection. It is not unreasonable to require taxpayers to itemize the expenses for which they think they should have credit. As long as we know in advance that this will be expected of us we will have no reason to complain.

But wouldn't it be wonderful if government officials would do a little more thinking before they started talking?

Stevenson Declines

When Adlai Stevenson accepted President Eisenhower's invitation to attend the N.A.T.O. meetings the reaction thruout the country was very favorable. He received much commendation for accepting an assignment that might place him in an awkward position from the standpoint of his personal political interests. It was looked upon as a willingness to place the interests of the country above those personal interests.

Now that he has reconsidered, and has rejected the President's offer, the fine things that were said of him no longer apply. Maybe he is justified in his present position. He is not necessarily a bad citizen for having refused to serve in such an unusual capacity. Nevertheless his refusal is a disappointment. We believe he could have made an important contribution at the deliberations and we are sure he could have been helpful in bringing about the unity that is so much needed here at home in dealing with world problems.

United Europe

Parliamentary ratification of the common market has now been secured in each of the six European nations that will be banded together in a union to gradually set aside all tariff and quota barriers, and establish a commission for industrial development of nuclear power. Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, France, West Germany and Italy are now, in effect, pooling their economic resources and, industrially, are becoming a United States of Europe.

This development has not received the attention it deserves. One of our two world wars, and probably both of them, was started because of conflicting economic interests in this area. The union, therefore, should lessen one of the causes of war.

And the removal of barriers to trade, encouraging a free exchange of goods and services, should result in a higher standard of living for the people of all of these countries. Our own higher standard of living must be attributed largely to the fact that there are no trade barriers to retard the economic development of the 48 nations that comprise our United States of America.

In this small world, constantly growing smaller, whatever is best for the people of Europe generally is best for us.

Deadliest Month

(Ed Morrison of Morris Tribune)

Holiday shoppers and seasonal celebrants have consistently made December the deadliest month of the year on the highways of the nation. Perhaps there is little point in calling this fact to public attention, because all of us seem to prefer to live dangerously when we get behind the wheel of an automobile.

Just for the record though the indications are that the traffic accident bill for 1957 will be in excess of $7 billion. It is the higest bill in the history of the automobile and costs the average family of four the price of a major appliance, $168.92.

Such losses will continue and probably grow until each of us is willing to accept personal responsibility for complete obedience to the traffic rules, avoid taking even small risks and keep our minds on the business of driving when we are behind the wheel.

Not a Solution

(Edmonton, Canada, Journal)

An important principle is at stake in the appeal now before the Federal Cabinet for a subsidy to keep a copper mine in operation.

Because of the enormous stockpiles already accumulated and other factors, the world price of copper is currently depressed. Mines with low-grade ore or high-cost operation are first to feel the pinch. When the price of copper was twenty-five and one-half cents per pound last August, the mine reported it was losing $40,000 a month. The union refused to take a 15 per cent cut in wages but agreed to waive overtime rates for weekend shifts. Since then the price of copper has dipped to twenty-two cents.

Whether it be wheat or copper or any other commodity, the taxpayers should not be called upon to finance uneconomic production. To stimulate artificially the production of something that cannot be sold except at a loss leads only to an economic morass. A factory owner producing an article he found he could not sell at a profit would hardly go to the Government and say: "If you do not pay me $5,000 a month I will have to close down and 100 persons will be out of work."

AS YOUR SALSBURYS DEALER let me talk to you about

Lice and Mites

These tiny parasites can cause a heap of trouble in a laying flock. Lower production, poor rate of feed conversion, and weak disease resistance may be results of lice and mites.

My Recommendation:

After thoroughly cleaning the laying house, spray Dr. Salsbury's Pest Spray over all,— floor, walls, roosts, nests etc. Pest Spray kills all common external parasites. Spray birds if lice or feather mites are present. One application lasts a long time. Use Pest Spray.

CHEVY'S TURBO-THRUST V8 WITH TURBOGLIDE

Chevrolet's radical new Turbo-Thrust V8 and honey-smooth Turboglide automatic drive form a performance team that spells action. At all speeds, under all driving conditions, they give you the quickest, smoothest response of anything going.*

There's never been an engine-drive combination like this one! Chevrolet's Turbo-Thrust V8* introduces a radical new slant on engine efficiency. The combustion chambers are located in the block rather than in the head, and chamber surfaces are precision machined. The result is a wonderfully smooth and even flow of power.

Turboglide*—the other half of the team—is the first and only triple-turbine automatic drive in Chevy's field. It takes you from a standstill through cruising in one continuous sweep of motion, without even a hint of a shift or lag. Harness these triple turbines to a 250-h.p. Turbo-Thrust V8—or the 280-h.p. Super Turbo-Thrust*—and you step out instantly in any speed range. Nothing else on the road turns your touch into action so quickly, so smoothly. Your Chevrolet dealer has the combination!

State Commission to Hold Farm Hearing in St. Paul Jan. 13-14

The Minnesota legislative agricultural laws interim commission will hold public hearings for any interested citizens or groups residing in Minnesota at the State Capitol at St. Paul on January 13 and 14, 1958, reports the commission chairman, State Senator P. J. Holand of Austin.

Anyone interested may testify before the commission on either of the two scheduled days. The commission is desirous of obtaining any information which could be the basis for remedial legislation on any phase of agriculture or agricultural laws in the state which will be helpful to the welfare of Minnesota's main industry which is farming, says Rep. Richard W. Fitzsimons of Marshall county, member of the commission.

In order that everyone who wishes to testify may be given a fair hearing, persons or groups wishing to appear are asked to write the Legislative Research Committee, State Capitol, St. Paul, for a definite appointment so they will know the day they are to appear as well as the time of the day. The commission will inform parties when they may be heard.

The commission hopes that interested persons will avail themselves of the opportunity to appear before the commission with any agricultural problems that come under the jurisdiction of the Minnesota legislature. The commission also welcomes any written testimony that anyone desires to leave with the agricultural commission.

"This first grass roots meeting between members of the Minnesota agricultural laws commission and farm leaders of the state can introduce much good agricultural legislation welfare of the state," says Fitzwhich will serve to develop the simons.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Grand Forks VA office.

Q—I am drawing monthly compensation checks from VA, and I also hold a GI term insurance policy on which I pay monthly premiums. Could I arrange for VA to deduct the amount of the premiums from my compensation checks, so I wouldn't have to bother of making my own payments every month?

A—Yes, provided your compensation payments are at least as large as the amount of yor GI insurance premium payments.

Q—I was not able to start Korean GI training within three years from my discharge, since I was out of the country on a government job. Could an exception be made in my case, allowing me to begin my schooling now?

A—No. The law requires veterans to begin Korean GI training within three years from the date of their discharge or separation. It allows for no exceptions.

Q—May my daughter get War Orphans educational allowances while attending public high school? She meets eligibility requirements for the allowances.

A—No. The law prohibits young men and women from taking regular high school training under the War Orphans Education program. The only below-college courses permitted are those leading to a definite vocational goal.

Q—I am a World War II veteran, out of service for 10 years. I have a disability which I believe to be service-connected. If I file a claim with VA and it is approved, would I be entitled to retroactive compensation payments all the way back to my first day in civilian life?

A—No. Compensation may be made retroactive to a veteran's first day in civilian life only if he applies within one year from his discharge and VA finds the disability was compensable at that time. Otherwise, the payments may date back only to your date of application.

Growing With Your Child

"Oh glorious life! How beau- much glory will my soul hold before it bursts into thousands of glittering jewels of existence? Shall I be this happy for eternity?"

With permission this opening paragraph was taken from a letter written by fourteen year old Barbara to a friend. It was written out of an aliveness, which she had brought back from a ride through a "gorgeous" October evening on her horse, Skipper. The exhilaration which she felt was for sharing and her way of saying it was especially for sharing.

While the paragraph contains some unmistakable signs of the adolescent's soul-digging, value-seeking, and wondering extremism it is revelatory in another way. It increases an adult's awareness of how life trends progressively to dull reactions, to the extent that this sincere paragraph may seem to adults even somewhat humorous.

Youth "swings wide" like a huge free pendulum in its responses. Share, for example, the closing paragraph written by Barbara at the same time: "How we've all changed since the fifth grade. How will we all end? I don't think death is the answer. I think it will be something rosy and pleasant; perhaps, though, this does describe death. Until something happens, be it ever with Russia or Syria or Turkey, or satellites, or something less drastic, I shall remain your good friend, Barbara."

Adults "swing narrow," like a confined pendulum. That is part of the growing up process, confining responses into a narrower area. Perhaps adults suffer less through this disciplining, but, by the same token, where is that "Oh glorious life!" reaction of yesteryear?

Barbara expresses herself with much more cander and ease than most of her friends but it takes the free style of a Barbara to jolt her elders into renewed realization that there is ever so much more to the teenager than the too-quick look or listen can possibly divulge.

Swing wide while you can, Barbara, for as long as you can, and thank you for the priceless glimpse at that "Oh Glorious Life!"

A Roll of Arms containing the names and arms of barons and knights during the time of Henry III is the oldest heraldic document in existence. It was made between 1240 and 1245 A.D.

FU Grain Terminal Assn. Has Big Year

Reports Net Savings of $3,617,000 in Past Year

Farmers Union Grain Terminal association (GTA) had its third best year in 1956-57 with savings of $3,617,339.

This represents an increase of some $417,000 over last year, M. W. Thatcher, general manager, told the 19th annual stockholders meeting Monday in St. Paul auditorium.

The giant grain marketing cooperative returned $723,400 (20 per cent) of the annual savings to patrons as cash.

In his printed report distributed to members, Thatcher predicted that a million more family-sized farms will be abandoned by 1965 because of the administration's "freeze-out" farm policy.

"You must understand the brutal fact that you will never get decent farm prices again until there is a change in the White House," he added.

FAIR AND WARMER

By Allen Wishert

OLD JED THOMAS gazed into the skies and informed the villagers what to expect. As far back as any old-timer could remember, Jed had forecast weather conditions, and once only had he miscalculated; that reckoning was in his favor.

On that morning, as usual, he gazed into the firmament overhead and predicted: Clear and slightly warmer, so, he went ahead with his plan, which plan was to call a-courtin' on Matilda Watson.

He hitched old Nancy to the buggy that would tote him the three miles to the side of his lady-love. She would be sitting in the old rocker on her front porch awaiting his arrival.

Jed and Matilda had been a-courtin' for twenty three years. Jed was now 60, Matilda 58. Neither had ever married and the villagers couldn't imagine why they hadn't taken each other for 'bestest or worstest.'

Old Nancy with a dragging left hind foot kicked up a powerful lot of dust in the road. Matilda could see the swirl long before Jed drove into the front yard.

Jed climbed the first two steps without effort, but always he had to grasp the railing to mount the third and last one. With a wheeze he plumped into the rocker.

Matilda never failed with her first question:

"What's the weather like, Jed?"

"Clear and continued warm," he replied.

"Your prediction and my rheumatis ain't workin' in cahoots," said Matilda, allowing a slight twitch as pains shot through her knee-joints. "That dark cloud over there in the Southwest is causin' me misery."

"I hadn't noticed that 'un," said Jed, he was looking and examining it closely.

"It 'pears to be gettin' bigger and bigger, wouldn't doubt it aimin' to pass right overhead."

"Humph!" grunted Jed. "It's beginnin' to roll. Ain't that a tail hangin' onto it?"

"It is," replied Matilda, "nervousness asserting itself."

A blinding flash of lightning caused them to blink, followed by a thunderous roar that shook the countryside. Forgetting her rheumatism, Matilda bounded to her feet, Jed doing likewise.

"I got time to put Nancy in your barn afore it hits," running like a hobbled animal, he untied Nancy from the hitching post, then led her and the buggy into the out-building. The stillness was oppressive as he closed the barn door. The latch had barely caught, and started running toward the house when the blow struck.

He opened the door and entered the kitchen. Matilda was standing beside the water hand-pump at the sink. Neither spoke, it would have been useless, the roar of the cyclone would have drowned any outcry.

There came a sudden s-w-o-o-s-h, the house shuddered, the roof lifted clear and crashed into the yard.

Ten minutes later, the roar of wind abated, horrific silence prevailed as two old souls huddled with trembling arms around each other.

"Matilda," said Jed, scarcely above a whisper, drawing her a mite closer. "Reckon the Lord was takin' care of His own."

"Yes, Jed," replied Matilda, she, also, clinched tighter.

There was a momentous pause.

"Reckon He always has a purpose," spoke Jed.

"I reckon," replied Matilda.

"The barn is still standin'," helping Matilda to her feet. "Nancy nor the buggy wasn't hurt. It ain't far to the Bramble-Briar meetin' house. The preachers home is right beside it. I predict that we———"

The prediction that Jed had predicted for years was coming to pass.

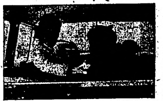
What's Your Safety Quotient?



For safe driving, make it a family rule that children are not permitted to distract the driver.

Here's a checklist of driving do's and don'ts for harrassed and harried mothers who have to make so many extra "last minute" shopping trips during the holidays.

Remember, while such devices as nylon safety belts, dashboards cushioned with urethane foam, and laminated safety glass windows minimize injuries when accidents occur, they do not prevent collisions from taking place. It is also important to keep windshield wipers in good operating condition at all times, and glass areas clean of snow, sleet, and dirt.

Observe these 14 rules prepared by the National Safety Council, and your SQ* will put you at the head of the class:

1. Never leave children alone in the car, regardless of whether or not the motor is left running.
2. Have youngsters ride in back seat whenever possible.
3. Allow no eating of lollipops or ice cream on sticks in moving car.
4. Permit no rough-housing, friendly or otherwise.
5. Have family rule that children are not permitted to distract driver (remember, always pull over to the curb and stop car if it becomes necessary to admonish children).
6. All riders must be seated while auto is moving.
7. Hands, heads, and possessions must remain inside the car at all times.
8. All doors locked when vehicle is in motion.
9. No sharp-edged, hard or heavy toys permitted which might become lethal flying missiles in case of sudden stops.
10. No objects stowed at any time on window deck behind rear seat.
11. Infants firmly strapped in car bed or halter type safety seat belt at all times.
12. Driver should be physically fit. Don't drive when tired or high-strung. Car should be mechanically safe also.
13. Children in back should not be sitting in drafts. Crack side vents to provide necessary ventilation, prevent exposures leading to colds or infections.
14. Always remember to be alert to the actions of drivers of other cars. They may not be as careful about their driving habits as you are.

Heck Tells of Session of Soil Conservation Supervisors in TRF

Marshall county soil conservation agent, Fred Heck, this week reported on the recent annual meeting of soil conservation district supervisors from area 1 held at Thief River Falls.

First speaker was William Benitt, member of the state soil conservation committee who farms near Winona. Mr. Benitt spoke on the value of the state and national soil conservation organization. He noted that, first of all, these organizations are democratic and represent the people. Secondly, they are very helpful in getting news to the public and ideas of forthcoming needs to the legislators.

Matt Thorfinnson, executive secretary of the state soil conservation committee, reminded the supervisors that they should have their selection of a district conservation farmer picked in order to qualify for the $100 award put out by a state newspaper.

Oliver Howland, area director of the Marshall-Beltrami district brought up the item of state and national dues voluntarily subscribed from districts. State dues this year are $28 and national dues are $65 per district. The state soil conservation convention will be in Minneapolis on January 9 and 10. He also mentioned that this year Minnesota will be fortunate in having the national convention which will be in the Twin Cities from February 16 through the 20th. This convention covers supervisors from all 48 states representing over 2,400 different soil conservation districts.

Herb Flueck, state conservationist for the soil conservation service, compared how the soil conservation service started with the old erosion service where a farmer came in with an erosion problem and then paid for all assistance as of today when the technical advice is free of charge.

He pointed out that of all the farm planners divisions of work, including cooperating farm plans, basic farm plans, education meetings, field surveys, group projects and technical training meetings, the most important item is still the basic farm plan where each individual farmer sets up his own private plan of soil conservation and use.

Virgil Herrick, associate of the state water resources board, reviewed the Minnesota watershed district law. He stated that a local watershed district is actually a political sub-division of the state.

Herb Halverson, area soil conservationist, reminded supervisors that they should review their plan of work from time to time and be sure to use help of other agriculture agencies in setting up their district plan of work, such as the county agent, ACP office and others.

3 Tree Nurseries in State Busy This Fall

Millions of tree seeds were put into seed beds at three state tree nurseries during the last month which will start to grow next spring and in the next three years will produce the seedlings for the largest reforestation program in the history of the state.

A total of 41,250,000 seeds were planted (more will be sown next spring) in the nurseries at Badoura near Akeley; General Andrews, near Willow River; and Carlos Avery, near Forest Lake. About 18,000,000 seeds are planted for tree stock for the Soil Bank Program on Minnesota farms.

About 17,000,000 Norway pine seed and 15,500,000 white spruce seed were planted, these two species being in greatest demand for both private and public plantings. About 3,000,000 white pine and the same number of black spruce seeds and 1,000,000 each of Jack pine and balsam fir were put in the seed beds.

Hardwood seeds and cuttings, such as elm, maple, ash and cottonwood will be put in the nursery at Carlos Avery next spring, mostly for game food and cover planting stock.

Raymond Clement, forester in charge of nurseries and planting expects there will be some losses due to poor seeds, rodent and insect destruction, and extreme weather conditions, but predicts 38,000,000 to 40,000,000 will be dug and shipped during the next three years. Trees will be sold to private landowners for windbreaks, woodlots and soil protection. Trees will be planted on public lands along trunk highways, on schoolyards, state institutions, and on state forests and parks.

Requests for tree stock for planting next spring have exhausted the stock of Norway pine and spruce, but there still are Jack pine, black spruce and small amounts of other species available.

BLUEPRINT FOR PEACE

Behind every structure, whether large or small, intricate or simple, there's a blueprint. And behind every blueprint there's a vision.

Someone has a dream. He explains it to an architect. Using the tools of his trade, the architect makes a blueprint—a plan to show workmen how to build what was first conceived in a dream.

Centuries upon centuries ago God had a vision. He made man in His image, then gave him the tools to fashion a blueprint. The Bible was the result—a blueprint for right-living for every man who breathes.

God is the Supreme Architect. Under Him today churches work to show man how to use the Bible as a blueprint for his own life. When that plan is followed, life is good. When it is ignored, confusion and disaster result.

Let the church of your choice show you and your family how to follow the blueprint for peaceful living.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

OLD-FASHIONED SUGAR WAFERS

Holiday baking time is most enjoyable when all the family joins the fun. Youngsters love to help with the traditional cookies . . . to decorate them with tinted powdered Beet Sugar icing and colorful "store-bought" candies. Gaily wrapped . . . what nicer gift from Senja and his helpers?

- ¾ cup shortening
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup Beet Sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking powder

- Cream shortening, butter or margarine and Beet Sugar together. Beat in each egg thoroughly; then flavoring.
- Sift flour, salt and baking powder together; stir into creamed mixture. Chill dough.
- Roll dough (work with about half the dough, keep the remainder chilled) out to ⅛ inch thickness on a board lightly dusted with mixture of 1 cup flour and ¼ cup Beet Sugar. Cut into desired shapes.
- Bake on ungreased cookie sheets in 350°F. oven for about 7 minutes or until very lightly browned. Cool on cake rack. Frost and decorate. Yields about 7½ dozen 2-inch cookies.

FOR COOKIE PRESS:

Soup—Salad Medley

An open door to eat-well-easily is the medley of nourishing canned soups with salads made of canned fruits. The menu plan can be used over and over again yet varied each time with a different soup or a different fruit combination. This family favorite is easily adapted to table or tray service and is prepared quickly.

To make this super salad, a mixture of tangy pimiento-cheese is served with pear halves and sliced peaches. You'll also like the cheese mixture with canned pineapple, apricots and citrus sections.

- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Sound Advice
Never use drugs left over from a serious illness for self-treatment of a similar ailment. You see, modern drugs are highly potent—that's why we dispense them only when your physician prescribes. If you dose yourself with leftovers, you may do serious damage. It's a good idea to pour the remains of old prescriptions down the drain and destroy the bottles.

RAIL KITTY CLOTHES

By Lonnie E. Legge

HILARY LEWIS, was a 55-year-old bachelor, who owned 80 acres of mountain land with a nice cottage and out-buildings. Hi, as he was known locally, was a ladies man, who farmed his rocky land and acted as guide to hunting parties of city slickers.

One beautiful day in April, a big car drove up to his gate and honked the horn. Hi, taking his usual slow time, walked down to the gate, wondering if this was a late hunter. There was only one person in the car, who got out at his approach, wearing an outfit that almost made Hi laugh outright.

High top boots, tan leather riding britches, black leather coat, green silk shirt, topped off with a forest green hat with a red feather. He spoke and added, "I am Alvin G. Benedict and wish to hire a guide to explore the fauna and flora of this region, which I know all about from my books, but I wish to photograph them in their natural habitat."

"Alright," drawled Hi, "dollar an hour and I'm ready."

After photographing several birds, plants and small animals, they came suddenly upon a mother skunk with four kittens trailing her. The mother hid in the tall weeds, but the kits froze where they were. "What are they?" exclaimed Mr. Benedict.

"Rail kittys," said Hi.

"Will they bite?" asked Mr. Benedict.

"Naw," replied Hi.

Mr. Benedict picked up one of the kits by the scruff of the neck. It made a snuffling sound which brought the mother out the weeds stamping her feet in anger. "Holy cow!" yelled Mr. Benedict dropping the kitten and running out of the cloud of mist. "I thought you said they were cats."

"They are—pole cats. What's the difference between a pole and a rail?"

Mr. Benedict stripped the new clothes off while Hi went back to the house for some of his old clothes. After Mr. Benedict was dressed he paid Hi for his time and the clothes, adding a dollar tip, then left immediately for the city and a bath saying, "I'll send you a present to remember this."

Hi got a shovel and buried the fancy clothes, then in three days dug them up and hung them on the line to air out. The next day he brushed them of dirt, the odor was already gone. Donning the fancy outfit he set out for the post office where most of the mountain girls congregated at mail time.

He received a small registered box, which he took out onto the porch to open remarking, "Guess my city friend sent me a watch." The girls gathered around to see Hi's wonderful gift. When he raised the lid there on a bed of cotton, that reeked with lilac perfume, lay a gold plated, lipstick box cover. A cork stopper plugged the open end. On one side was a label that read: "Amora Knuks #8." "Spanish," Hi remarked knowingly. "Amora, I think means "Darling" and I guess "Knuks" means perfume."

Another label on the container read: "Caution do not remove stopper." "Well, I don't see why not. It's all leaked out anyway," said Hi disgustedly as he twisted the stopper. Suddenly his hands and clothes were soaked with skunk scent that dripped from a minute hole in the bottom of the container which had been sealed with a pin fastened to the cork. He threw the vial from him with an oath as the girls scattered screaming and holding their noses.

Hi reading the label again as it lay upside down noticed it was written backwards and should read, "Skunk Aroma #8." He rushed home and buried the clothes again. Oddly enough, he was unable to wear them in public again as the very sight of them sent people into a panic.

Total TRF Tax Rate to Be 225.24 Mills, Auditor Announces

Due in large measure to a sharp increase in the levy of the local school district, No. [illegible] from 72.15 mills in 1956 to 97.82 mills this year, Thief River Falls property owners next year will pay taxes on the basis of a total non-homestead levy of 225.24 mills, compared to 193.35 mills in effect this year.

The rate on homestead-exempt property will be 6.61 mills, or less, or 218.63 mills, compared to 186.01 mills for 1956.

On agricultural lands in School District 563 the school levy will be 25 mills less, making a total rate of 200.24 mills, compared to 176.10 mills for 1956, when the school district levy was 54.90 mills.

Making up the non-homestead rate on city property for 1957 and 1956 are the following levies:

State	12.62	9.15
County	69.48	66.60
School Dist.	97.82	72.15
City	45.32	45.45
	225.24	193.35

This year's levy represents an increase of 31.89 mills or 16.49 percent over the 1956 figure, County Auditor C. W. Bodekuhr stated. The levy for city purposes is fractionally lower, while the state rate went up 3.47 mills, and the county rate is up 2.88 mills. The heavy increase in the school district levy is due, in large measure, to expansion of the local plant and personnel.

An additional 28.56 mills will be levied against all rural property that does not contribute to the maintenance of a high school. This figure compares with 26.5 mills levied in 1956.

Bodekuhr said rates for the villages of Goodridge and St. Hilaire have not been computed yet, pending receipt of word of tax levies for village purposes having been set.

Stiff Crackdown on Drunk Drivers Slated by Patrol

Capt. Walter Anderson Says Spot Checks Will be Made During Holidays

Capt. Walter Anderson, highway patrol 8th district chief, said today that in the interests of public safety scheduled and unscheduled spot checks will be held on all trunk and state highways at all hours of the day and night in the northwest Minnesota area beginning this week and continuing until a week after the New Year.

Anderson said the program, which was initiated by the patrol last year, had a terrific impact as a deterrent against people who drive after drinking.

Results were so good, Anderson said, that the plan will be used again through the holiday season in the hopes of curbing a potentially high accident rate in that period.

By announcing the spot checks, Anderson said, he is forewarning motorists who are inclined to drink during the holidays that they may expect to pay the consequences if they are caught in a spot check.

The checks will be set up at different times at various places on highways in northwest Minnesota so that the best way to stay out of trouble is non-indulgence, if one is driving, he stated.

Advise Extending Local No. Central Run to Minot, N. D.

Civil Aeronautics Board Examiner Recommends Extension from G. Forks

A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner recommended Friday that North Central Airlines be permitted to extend its Twin Cities-Thief River Falls-Grand Forks route to Devils Lake and Minot, N. D.

The recommendation was one of the broad changes suggested by Examiner Curtis C. Henderson in a seven-state midwestern air service case. He also recommended continuance of North Central's Grand Forks-Omaha route.

North Central also would be authorized to fly between Minot and the Twin Cities via Bismarck, Mandan and Aberdeen, Huron and Brookings, S. D., it was reported from Washington.

Henderson's report becomes final after 15 days if no exceptions are filed. However, it is expected that exceptions will be taken.

The seven states case is the first of the CAB's series of area local service plans to reach this stage. Each involves a thorough review of local and feeder airline service between smaller communities and neighboring larger cities.

Livestock Men to Hear Bob Jacobs Tuesday Evening

Beef and Sheep Raisers Are Invited to Attend Meeting in Court House

The meeting will start at 8:00 p.m. and Bob Jacobs, livestock specialist from the University of Minnesota will be on hand to lead the discussion.

Much discussion now centers around the feasibility of northwestern Minnesota developing into a livestock feeding area, said Stelmaschuk. New developments in feeding of beef and sheep such as the use of additives, like urea, antibiotics and stilbestrol are receiving attention. Questions on the feasibility of pelletizing feed rations and the use of poor quality hay such as that harvested this year are being asked. The security and long range prospects of the livestock industry is also scrutinized. These are the topics which will be discussed at the beef and sheep meeting. All farmers are urged to attend.

A comparison of the breeding herds as compared to purchase of feeders will also be presented.

Former Resident Goes Beserk and Slays Daughter

Frank Dopp, popular young coach at Round Lake in southwestern Minnesota, and a 1951 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, went berserk at his home last Thursday and attacked two of his small children with a butcher knife, killing one of them, Julie Marie, age 14 months. The other, Teresa Ann, 3½, was reported Saturday as recovering from numerous knife wounds in a hospital at nearby Worthington.

Dopp lived in Thief River Falls for several years with his mother, Mrs. M. Dopp, a widow who was employed in a local cafe and who was remarried while here to a Mr. Thorson of the Goodridge community.

Probate Judge Vincent Hollaren ordered Dopp committed immediately after County Attorney Raymond Mork told a hearing Dopp's condition went "completely out of control" during the night. Mork also said he feared Dopp could not survive if kept in jail and that he failed to react to any type of sedation.

Dopp's wife, Lorraine, 24, who ran to a neighboring minister's home before the stabbings to tell the cleric her husband was "acting queer," was hospitalized in shock. She is expecting another child.

The children were stabbed after their mother went to the home of the Rev. [illegible], a Presbyterian minister, to tell him something was "wrong" with her husband.

Mr. Haddad called School Supt. Waldo Anderson and asked him to go to the Dopp residence. Anderson and two other teachers were turned away when Dopp appeared at the door with a .410 shotgun, later learned to be unloaded.

After Dopp threw the children into the snow, Mr. Haddad also went to the Dopp home. He too was turned away.

Mr. Haddad crawled close to the house and picked up the older child, but said the baby appeared to be dead.

Dopp left the shotgun inside the house, walked out and surrendered when Sheriff Nackerud and other officers arrived.

Talking incoherently, Dopp was taken to jail at Worthington.

Dr. E. A. Kilbride, coroner, said an inquest would be held. He added that it was not known definitely whether the baby died from knife wounds or from being thrown onto the ground.

Dopp came to Round Lake this fall to begin coaching and teaching physical education and science. After graduating from the University of Minnesota in 1955, Dopp taught at Abbotsford, Wis., working summers for the Minneapolis Park Board.

Supt. Anderson said there was no indication before Thursday that Dopp was having any trouble. He said Dopp was well liked by both students and faculty.

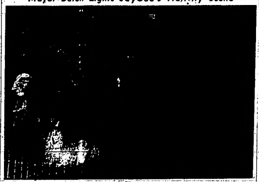
Mayor Beich Lights JayCee's Nativity Scene



The carol singing by massed choirs of local churches and the high school chorus was concluded on the post office lawn Thursday evening when Mayor O. D. Beich closed a switch, turning on the lights at the nativity scene.

This is the second year the Jaycee's have had their display on the post office lawn and the young men of the organization add features to the scene every year. This year's addition of two lambs was financed by sale of Christmas decorations in city residential areas by the JayCees.

Balmy Temperatures Range up to 36 Here

Comparatively balmy temperatures continue to dominate the northwest Minnesota weather picture but fair skies of today will give way to rain or snow-bearing clouds tonight or tomorrow, according to the weatherman.

Temperatures the past week have been quite warm except for last Tuesday and Wednesday when a cold wave tumbled the mercury to a low-for-the-year-to-date of 11 below zero.

Tuesday was the first day so far that the mercury stayed below the frigid goose-egg. That day the low was 10 below and the high was four below. Temperatures on both ends of the reporting period registered in the high thirties so the overall weather story has been a pleasant one.

Here are the temperature figures:

Date	High	Low
Dec. 9	38	16
Dec. 10	—4	—10
Dec. 11	11	—11
Dec. 12	31	8
Dec. 13	35	16
Dec. 14	36	13
Dec. 15	36	27

Today's low was eight above. Precipitation during the period amounted to a bare trace last Monday evening when a sudden squall brought a brief period of heavy rain, snow and sleet. It wasn't enough to measure but sufficed to make roads and streets dangerously slippery.

The KTRF forecast is for increasing cloudiness today, mostly cloudy skies tonight with scattered light rain or snow beginning tonight, continuing Tuesday.

It will be a little colder today with temperatures still to be in the thirties, however. There will be little change tonight and Tuesday, with lows tonight ranging from 20 to 30.

J. Seidel Returns from Institute

Attends Sessions Last Week at 'U' of Minnesota

Joseph Seidel, Pennington county engineer, returned last week-end after attending the annual county highway institute at the University of Minnesota. Of the 87 county engineers in the state, 80 were in attendance.

Governor Freeman addressed the group, telling of the important role played by engineers in highway safety, and stressing the need for proper warning signs on county roads.

Other speakers included Sig Bjerken of the state department of agriculture; Prof. H. Widdowson of the 'U' of M.; Howard Bussard of the Automotive Safety Foundation, Washington, D.C.; Ward Gronfield of the attorney general's office; and E. S. Ward, county engineer from Indiana, who reported that the county road system in Minnesota is much superior to that in Indiana.

POPPLER'S

BY Mack Draper

After making our last jaunt to Grand Forks Friday for the purpose of attending a reserve training meeting the thought struck us that, even though Thief River Falls is smaller and doesn't have the air base or industry that one finds in Grand Forks, we do have quite a few things that city lacks.

For one thing, streets here, particularly in the residential areas, are wider. Now that may not seem like a very important point to you, but in the Dakota city some of the busier residential streets had to be made into one-way thoroughfares because they were too narrow to allow parking on both sides by residents and still provide two-way traffic.

So what happens? Last summer that booming metropolis paved several more streets in new residential districts without using the lessons learned from having too-narrow streets in the old section. So, by ignoring the experience gained they built a traffic problem right into their new streets, by skimping on width.

We might add, too, that our E. Third st. has most all of 'em beat all hollow for good width and eye-pleasing beauty. Nor do we have to take a back seat to anyone as far as parks are concerned. In short, we have a lot to offer here that other cities lack. So, when telling about city, lets sell the doughnut, not the hole!

It was a wise man who said that for every joke remembered a dozen are dismembered.

Then there is the sage observation that the only thing rarer than a day in June is a parking place in December!

Some timely Yuletide reflections:

The best gifts aren't hung on a Yule tree—they are found around it; a happy family with busy hands preparing to make the holidays brighter for others.

The happiest Yuletide isn't necessarily the most elaborate. The charm of Christmas lies in its simplicity. He whose birth we celebrate (or are supposed to be celebrating) was born in a stable, not in a plushy hotel suite. Instead of Earthly fanfare he had a star in the east.

The average guy is more interested in a gal's geograph than in her history.

Nor will anyone disagree that a snowball is a pane-killer!

And for those who are giving out the usual ties as gifts at Christmas, we'd advise that ties are supposed to be seen, not heard. SO LONG!

Holt Man Is Fined on Driving Charge

Eldon Swenson of Holt pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving before Justice of the Peace Vernon Stardig at Middle River Friday and was fined $10 and costs, $20 of which was suspended on good behavior for 6 months. Originally charged with "driving under the influence" following a collision with another car near Grygla early Sunday morning, the charge was later amended, according to highway patrol officials.

Prowler Six Plays Cathedral Today

Face Crookston Team Tonight on Arena Ice

Optometrists Urge Safe Toys for Youngsters

As the shopping season for Christmas, 1957, goes into full swing, state parents were warned by Dr. Arthur A. Tillisch, Sr., Minneapolis, President, Minnesota Optometric Association, to choose safe toys for children in their gift giving this year.

"Have them avoid playthings with sharp points or toys which are loosely constructed," he said. "A child should play with things that are suited to his own age, and as an example a four-year old does not know how to play safely with a pair of scissors."

Reasons for this advice is fairly obvious when you consider that ages five to fifteen are dangerous years for your child's eyes, Dr. Tillisch pointed out. "You must teach a child safety consciousness," he said, "because each year there are 90,000 eye injuries to American school children. A child's most precious sense—good vision—by safety education and adult supervision."

Plummer Will Get $18,169 Grant for Sewage Disposal

Sen. Edward J. Thye late last week announced approval of a $18,169 grant-in-aid for the construction of a sewage disposal system for Plummer.

The funds come from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Minnesota's allocation from the federal appropriation is $932,000 which is enough for the top 10 priority cities.

Other cities in the state which have received funds or will receive them are Crookston, East Grand Forks and Little Falls. Plummer had the No. 8 priority.

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS

Special Meeting November 4, 1957

A special meeting of the Board of Education of Independent School District No. 562, duly called by President Starekow, was held at the office in Lincoln High School on November 4, 1957 at eight o'clock p.m., for the purpose of considering the adoption or rejection of the plan as proposed in the plat for the proposed consolidation of Common School Districts 15 (1347) and 44 (1351) and Independent School District No. 18 (563) all of Pennington County, and Common School District No. 76 (1062) of Marshall County.

The following members were in attendance: President Starekow, Burtness, Bratsch, Thompson, Olson, Howick, Pearson, and Superintendent Mickelson.

The meeting was called to order by President Starekow.

The following members of delegations from the affected areas were also present: Messrs. Habedank (44), Oahl (15), Maidment (15), Nelson (76), Kainz (76), Sacher (15), and Attorney H. O. Chommie, representing Common School Districts 15, 44, and 76.

Mr. and Mrs. Koglin and Mr. Johnson, appearing for the Goodridge School District.

President Starekow opened the meeting by making a statement to those present relative to the purpose of the meeting and procedure to be followed considering the matter.

President Starekow placed on file a letter from Dean M. Schweickhard, Commissioner of Education of the State of Minnesota, dated October 29, 1957, advising the Board of Education as follows: "The plat for the proposed consolidation of Common School Districts 15 (1347) and 44 (1351) and Independent School District No. 18 (563) all of Pennington County, and Common School District No. 76 (1062) of Marshall County is hereby approved. Approval is based upon all the evidence available from which it is apparent that if this proposed consolidation is consummated, a desirable educational program can be provided for the pupils of the enlarged district.

The county superintendent shall forthwith notify the school board of the Independent School District and it has forty-five days from the date of the approval of the plat by the commissioner to either adopt or reject the plan as proposed in the plat."

Mrs. Koglin was then given the opportunity to present a statement in opposition to the proposed consolidation in behalf of the Goodridge School District. She read a prepared statement relative to the matter, which statement was placed on file with the board following the reading thereof.

A brief discussion followed Mrs. Koglin's presentation.

Mr. H. O. Chommie, Attorney for the common school districts, then made a statement in behalf of the common school districts, urging approval of the proposed consolidation plan. Mr. Chommie went into considerable detail as to the history of the school districts involved, the original establishment of the high school areas involved, etc.

Following Mr. Chommie's presentation discussion followed.

Thereafter the delegations retired and the board went into session for the purpose of determining the matter.

A statement relative to the background of the matter under consideration was presented by Superintendent Mickelson, which had been prepared from available records, outlining the pertinent facts beginning in 1948 at which time the survey committees of Pennington and Marshall Counties, in the establishment of high school areas did not include Districts 15 and 44 of Pennington County in any proposal for reorganized districts, or District 17 of Marshall County in a joint proposal between Marshall County and Pennington County in the Pennington County Proposal; and culminating on October 29, 1957 with approval of the proposed consolidation by the State Department of Education.

After lengthy discussion President Starekow called for a roll call vote on the question of the adoption or rejection of the plan as proposed in the plat for the proposed consolidation. The vote was as follows: Burtness, for adoption; Olson, not voting; Bratsch, for adoption; Thompson, for adoption; Pearson, for adoption; Howick, for adoption.

President Starekow then declared the proposition carried for approval and adoption of the plan as proposed in the plat for the consolidation of Common School Districts 15 (1347) and 44 (1351) and Independent School District No. 18 (563) all of Pennington County, and Common School District No. 76 (1062) of Marshall County.

Arnold Pearson, Clerk.

Bemidji College Completes Course in City Last Week

Audio-visual Training Given Teachers from Four Towns by Kermit Eastman

Bemidji State College has offered a college course in audio-visual education in Thief River Falls during the fall quarter. This is a regular college course and persons who complete it successfully earn 4 quarter hours of college credit. Many local teachers and others from Karlstad, Roseau and Warren were enrolled in the course just completed. Kermit Eastman, director of elementary education in the Thief River Falls schools, was the instructor.

The course included the use of audio-visual aids in the teaching-learning process, operation and care of various audio-visual equipment, such as motion picture projectors, strip-film projectors, opaque projectors, phonographs, recorders, and central sound and communication systems. The course also included work on bulletin boards, displays, graphic materials, charts, maps, globes, models and mock-ups.

Other materials used in education which do not depend primarily on reading were included in the course. Many persons believe that audio-visual education means seeing a film, while in reality films are only a small part of the total picture of audio-visual education. Plays, pageantry, puppetry, and the well-known blackboard are all included in the field.

The value of audio-visual aids and devices, used properly, has been proved conclusively in many studies that have been conducted, said Eastman.

The key to safety is you.

Bemidji Takes Prowlers 61-52 RLF Here Tuesday

The Bemidji Lumberjacks, outpointing the Prowlers 9 to 6 in the first period, and 21 to 15 in the second period, gained a 30 to 21 lead at the halftime intermission, and those nine point were the margin by which coach Bun Fortier's team defeat coach Alan Adams' locals, winning an interesting and exciting regional basketball game played here Friday night, 61 to 52.

The Prowlers will meet coach Rusty Miller's Red Lake Falls Eagles in a district conference game here on Tuesday night; and on Friday night, Dec. 17th, the Prowlers will travel to Crookston for a district and Northwest conference game against the Pirates.

Baskets by Dave Hanson and Dave Rasmussen gave the Prowlers a 4 to 0 lead in the early minutes of the first period Friday night. Bob Engle dropped in a free throw to give Bemidji their first point, that being scored with 4:20 to play. Larry Rybak, with less than two minutes to play, pumped in a field goal; and all-state Ray Cronk hit on a jump shot, giving the Jacks a 5 to 4 lead. Jim Bennes' long shot found the west basket, and the Prowlers regained the lead, and for the last time. Marc Kolden and Rybak allied Bemidji field goals, and the Lumberjacks held a 9 to 6 first period margin.

Mickey Hanson opened the second period by flipping in a long shot, and the Jacks' lead was pared to one point. Rybak's pair of free throws boosted that lead to three points. The two teams exchanged point for point until the final minutes of the quarter when Cronk connected for a pair of field goals and Kolden hit on a jump shot. Those six points shoved the Jacks into a lead that they held until the halftime, leaving the floor at the intermission with a 30 to 21 lead.

The third period was evenly contested, with each team scoring eighteen points. The Lumberjacks did gain a 44 to 31 lead with 3:12 to play, but the Prowlers' double-cousin combination, Phil and Dave Hanson, combined to to rack up seven points and bring the third period score to 48 to 30 for Bemidji.

Bemidji piled up a comfortable lead in the early minutes of the fourth period when, with the score 50 to 42 to their favor, they rolled up ten straight points, scoring three field goals and four free throws, to gain a 60 to 42 lead with 4:07 to play.

The Prowlers, showing fine spirit and aggressiveness, rallied to drop in four field goals and a pair of free throws in the final minutes, while Bemidji was adding a lone free throw point, to pare the game score to 61 to 52 for Bemidji.

The near-capacity crowd was thrilled by the scoring duel between Bemidji's all-state Ray Cronk and the Prowlers' Dave Hanson, and the sturdy Prowler center proved to have and edge, outpoint Cronk, 22 points to 21.

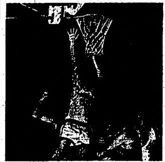
Dave Hanson Snares Rebound



The Prowlers' Dave Hanson, who was the game's high scorer with twenty-two points, snares a rebound off the defensive backboard in the first half of Friday's cage tilt. Hanson outstretches Bemidji's Ray Cronk, who is partially obscured in this photo, to recover the ball. Cousin Phil Hanson, no. 40, is on hand to lend assistance to Dave. Marc Kolden of Bemidji is in the foreground.

What Did You Think?

Following the International Falls vs. Bemidji Lumberjacks basketball game at Bemidji a couple of weeks ago, Don McLowell of Park Rapids, who, with John Consemius of Wadena, officiated the game, made the comment that Bemidji "was the best high school basketball team in the state." Added, McDowell, "I've never seen a team look so strong this early in the season." McDowell also compared the play of Bemidji's all-state center with that of New Prague's famed Ron Johnson.

Now that you local basketball fans have had a look at Bemidji, and also a look at the Prowlers, what do you think? As of this instant, there's not much doubt but that the Lumberjacks are the region's best, but whether or not Bemidji will continue to show improvement throughout the season and into the tournament schedule, is another matter.

In Friday night's game here, which Lumberjacks won by a 61-to-52 score, Bemidji appeared more spontaneous and decisive in moving down the floor and setting up their offensive pattern than did the prowlers. This may have been due to the fact that Friday night's tilt was the fifth of the season for the Jacks, while the Prowlers were engaging in only their third game of the schedule, and their first on the home court.

Oh yes, did you notice that, for first time in a number of years, Bemidji did not employ the full-court press. Coach Bun Fortier stated that he did not have the personnel, meaning the quick-footed and well-coordinated boys, this season and the result was that the Jacks resorted to an orthodox zone defense against the Prowlers. Don't bet that the Jacks have forgotten all about their pressing tactics, though, for come tournament time Bemidji may use a modified press. It's a basketball fundamental down there.

It was pleasing to see the performance of Dave Hanson against Bemidji's Cronk. Two better high school centers in the eighth region, and perhaps state-wide, you won't find. We thought that on offense Dave held an edge over Ray, and for that the Prowler center is more rugged on his drive-in and lay-up shots than the Bemidji pivotman. Cronk appeared to have an edge in the rebounding department, and for the reason that he is more agile and mobile than Hanson. Cronk, too, proved very effective on his outside shooting, and it was a compliment to Hanson that Cronk had to resort to outside shooting. The two boys surely put on an interesting and entertaining duel.

A Pair of Surprises

A pair of surprises were recorded on Friday night, one in basketball and the other in hockey. The Warroad Warriors basketball team humbled a Roseau Rams team, 70 to 43, in a 32nd district game played at Warroad; and the Michigan Wolverines defeated the North Dakota Sioux in a conference hockey game at Grand Forks, 3 to 1. These two results were minor upsets.

Having watched coach Ambrose Kramer's Rams in their season-opening game against the Prowlers, and which was won by the Prowlers by a 51 to 48 score, we were impressed by the Roseau club. That Warroad should clobber the Rams by that lop-sided score was an eyebrow-lifting performance. Incidentally, that 32nd district basketball race appears to be a wide open affair now that the three-year reign of the Kennedy Rockets has ended. And it appears, too, that the eastern half of the district, including Strandquist and Lancaster in that portion, has the edge in basketball strength.

The other Friday night surprise was the 3 to 1 win that Michigan scored over the Sioux. That the North Dakota Sioux should come back and defeat Michigan, 4 to 0, on Saturday night only serves to add emphasis to the Friday night defeat. We didn't think that a college team would be able to defeat the Sioux on the North Dakota rink.

Advice to Farmers of Retirement Age

Some self-employed farmers who have reached retirement age, or who will reach it before the end of this year, may find it to their advantage to file a claim for old-age insurance benefits before the end of December, Walter D. Kistler, district manager of the Grand Forks social security office, said today.

These are farmers who because of floods, drought, or other adverse weather conditions, will have lower income in 1957. It applies especially to some farm landlords who started to have their income from rentals count toward social security beginning with 1956, by materially participating in the production of crops or livestock on their land which they leased out to someone else.

Generally, it is necessary to wait until the close of a year to have net earnings for the year credited to a social security account and used in figuring a benefit amount. For 1957 only, if a claim is filed before the end of the year, one-half of the total earnings for the year can be used in figuring amount. Where 1957 earnings are lower than for 1956, this could result in a higher benefit amount. If the farmer should wait until 1958 to file his claim he would lose the advantage of this type of calculation. In case it turns out that total earnings for the year 1957 were greater than anticipated, the farmer who files a claim during 1957 would still be given the benefit of these higher earnings, Kistler said.

Groups Studying State Problems

Interim Commissions of Legislature Are Busy

Last week two interim commissions of the state legislature devoted their attention to technical time-consuming tasks important to proper functioning of government, but not generally understood by the public.

The legislative research subcommittee on finance spent a approximately one-third of the state's 133 different funds. Their objective is to draft recommendations which will cut the number of funds to approximately 25. Identity of funds would be continued through the device of separate accounts. This technical revision of accounting procedure will save substantial time in sorting and posting charges to the various funds. The revised fund classification is expected to give the legislature and the public a clearer picture of the actual cost of government. The subcommittee hopes to complete this work at a two day meeting early in January.

Representatives of the fourteen private colleges in Minnesota appeared before the commission on higher education. Dr. Carlson, president of Gustavus Adolphus and chairman of the group, presented a recommendation for a state-sponsored scholarship program. He outlined suggested requirements that such scholarship be applicable in both public and private colleges, be based on need, and be administered by the State Department of Education.

Fr. Shannon, President of St. Thomas College, outlined the procedure followed in other states, noting that the states of New York and Pennsylvania have had such programs for a number of years.

The private colleges of Minnesota absorbed about one-third of the total number of students enrolled in liberal arts courses. This practice, it was agreed, would be the continued goal of the private colleges as their responsibility in higher education for the state.

Learn Projector Operation

Effective control of the sea lamprey in the Great Lakes is a big and costly business, members of the Great Lakes Fishery Commission decided at the December meeting in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, Hjalmer Swenson, fisheries supervisor who is a member of the advisory committee, reported today.

The proposed budget for the fiscal year, July 1958-59, was set at $1,465,000 and for the July 1959-60 fiscal year it was estimated at $1,851,000. The expenditures will be allocated on a 31% for Canada and 69% for United States basis. These funds will pay for the electric control barriers and their operation, control of lampreys by chemical killing, stream surveys, research and administration.

Substantial progress has been made during the past year, the meeting was told. Improved electric control barriers have reduced the damage to fish and made them more effective in killing the lamprey.

An improved chemical material to destroy the lamprey in the larval stage in the stream beds has been developed. The new chemicals are cheaper and more effective and will be used in large-scale experimental applications next spring and summer.

By the end of 1958 all Lake Superior tributary streams known to have lamprey spawning runs will have electric controlled barriers installed, making a total of 90 in operation. About 98 will be operated on Lake Michigan streams.

Lamprey control operations on Lake Superior will have priority. There is still a population of lake trout, but it is low and rapidly declining.

FAMILY AFFAIRS

Fortunate indeed is a youngster with grandparents, more fortunate with 13 of them, and most fortunate to have such an array of "Santa Clauses" at this time of year. Born November 20, little Jean Carol Goette at Albert Lea has two grandparents and three great-grandparents on her daddy's side, two grand, four great-grand, and two great-great-grandparents on her mother's side. . . . Winnebago Hospital Auxiliary held a party for the twins born there since the hospital opened something over five years ago: nine pairs of them, of whom 15 were living and expected at the novel party.

New Death Record

Three highway deaths Saturday brought Minnesota's total up to within 11 of the all-time record. There were 649 deaths in 1936. Through Saturday the 1957 total was already 638. With a long two weeks to go, including the extra hazards of two holidays, a new state record is certain.

But while a new record now is certain every effort should nevertheless be made to reduce the hazard. More moderate speeds will be helpful and, considering the extra danger of icy roads, reduced speeds should be a must. For a happy holiday season, drive carefully.

Stormy Sessions Likely

Walter Lippmann points out that in the NATO meetings being held in Paris our country, for the first time, is in a position where it must seek favors as well as grant them. We know now that we must have missile bases in Europe, not only for the defense of Europe but for our own defense as well, Says Lippmann:

> "We are now as dependent in our own defense on Europe's willingness to provide the missile sites as Europe is dependent upon us to provide missiles for the sites."

But missile sites is only one of the many problems with which our representatives will be confronted at these important sessions. In taking a firm stand against colonialism we have antagonized several of our allies. Our interference at the time of the attempt to recapture the Suez Canal has not been forgotten by the humiliated leaders of Britain, France and Israel. And Sputnik has cost us dearly in overall prestige.

In favor of our side is the fact that we do have a common enemy that probably is hated more than we are, for the time being, disliked. And, fortunately for our side, our most highly respected diplomat, President Eisenhower, will be at the meetings to represent us. There will be some stormy sessions at these NATO meetings. Maybe after the storm we will enjoy a period of fair weather again.

Franklin's Request

Among the many bequests of Benjamin Franklin, and one that was typically unusual, was a $5,000 fund to be administered by the City of Boston over a period of 200 years. Franklin, a printer by trade, recognized the importance of the crafts. He therefore provided that the fund should be used to assist young married apprentices seeking to master a trade, making the money available to them at five percent interest.

"I have considered that among artisans good apprentices are most likely to make good citizens", he said. "I wish to be useful even after my death, if possible, in forming and advancing other young men that may be serviceable to the country."

He provided that the funds should remain intact, with earned interest, for 100 years, when a part of it might be used for "public works". The balance was to be put to work for another hundred years when Boston was to receive one-fourth, and three-fourths was to be given to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

At the end of the first hundred years, in 1891, $655,000 was available for "public works" and after years of bickering it was decided to use this sum to establish a technical school, "suitable for forming and advancing young men". The remainder of the fund has continued to grow, and now amounts to about $1,400,000.

Bostonians, administering the fund, now want the Franklin bequest amended and make the money immediately available. They say it is unsound public policy to permit the fund to remain unused until 1991, the terminal date.

While we will not agree about it being "unsound public policy" to make an immediate sacrifice in order to enjoy a future gain, we of course must admit it would not be in accord with present accepted public policy. Our generation has come to accept the borrow-and-spend idea as proper procedure, shifting as much as possible the burden of present costs to future generations. It was Franklin's idea that a thrifty today would make for a happy tomorrow.

We are sure wise Ben Franklin had no false hopes about what his $5,000 would accomplish at the end of 200 years. And we are quite certain that the sly old fellow had a few good chuckles over the arguments his bequest would cause and the attempts that would be made to dip into the fund from time to time as the total grew larger, and more tempting. He had a good understanding of human nature.

We hope the proper Bostonians will not be successful in their present improper attempt. In fairness to Franklin the plan he outlined in his bequest should be followed as closely as possible. Some deviations may be necessary, because of changed conditions, but the spirit of the bequest is clear. A definite terminal date was established and that should be respected.

While Boston and Massachusetts have a direct interest in this money, all America does have an indirect interest that should be considered by those who will make the decision on the question. And those who are born in 1958 will be only 33 years old when the bequest terminates in 1991. If we permit this fund to be robbed at this time many now living will hear the curses of that next generation directed at their improvident parents.

In Perspective

(Wall Street Journal)

The failure of our attempt to put a man-made moon into the air last week was disappointing. But perhaps there are some things to be remembered.

Any mechanism that demands an 11-hour "countdown"—which means a minute by minute check of all its components and parts—is so intricate that only the foolishly optimistic would have counted on complete success on the first shot.

Certainly the scientists in charge of the Vanguard effort were not so sanguine. They said from the first that when they thought everything ready for the blast-off, the odds still stood about 60-40 or 50-50.

Wouldn't it have been better simply to say that a series of trials would take place, that the results would be announced, and not to expect too much at first?

That would have prevented the vast and misleading build-up the trial received.

And it would have prevented a let-down, too.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

Christmas means many things to many people. The Christmas message of "Peace on Earth" sometimes seems remote and insecure. To those millions of people in many parts of the world who work and hope, with a longing common to all mankind, for the kind of freedom that we enjoy but which they are denied, the concept of "Good Will Toward Men" must have a different significance than it has for us.

In the United States the Christmas season is a time of happiness. To many it is a gala occasion, on which to celebrate. It is an occasion for sharing gifts and renewing contacts with friends and acquaintances. It is a day on which we participate in the joy and merriment of children, and when we express our deep appreciation of the love and good cheer that lies within the family circle. It is a time when men of good will feel impelled to share their happiness with those less fortunate than themselves.

In the rush of the holiday season, amid the work and the pressure of modern life, it is important to remember that Christmas means more than all of these things. Above all, it is an occasion of deep religious significance. It is a testimony to the inspiration and hope that was the great gift to mankind from Him whose birth we commemorate on that day.

There are millions of people throughout the world for whom Christmas does not have the same meaning it has for those of the Christian faith. But there is no great religion that does not value the spirit of brotherhood and love, and the ideal of peace and good will, that are inherent in the Christmas spirit.

Inseparable from the spirit of Christmas is the ideal of the supreme worth of every human being. In that principle of individual worth lie the standards of equality and brotherhood, justice and mercy, freedom and peace, which are the hope of modern society.

The thoughts that we express at Christmas are centuries old. But there is a new urgency today in the imperative need to put into practice,—in our daily lives, in our governments, in our personal relations, and in our relations with distant peoples,—the ideals which make up the true spirit of Christmas.

For distant peoples are very close to us today; and what happens to our neighbors, near and far, is certain to be reflected in our lives and our future. Our interdependence is so great that our own continued observance of Christmas may depend upon the extent to which we can share with all men the blessings that we have.

As we take a little time during this holiday season to consider the supreme value to mankind of the ideals and the faith that were given to the world nearly two thousand years ago, let us each recognize our own responsibility to make the most of that gift,—to make it a reality in every aspect of our lives.

It is my sincere wish that in that gift of hope and inspiration we may all find happiness, not only on Christmas day but throughout the coming years.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare
University of Minnesota

Be Yourself

Heard frequently is the statement that it takes a child to detect a "phony." Children seem to possess a sort of "sixth sense" which they use to diagnose adults, but it is hardly likely that they have it—or even need it. It is more likely that it is something which children lack—sophistication—which explains their reactions toward people.

As childhood is left behind most persons become deprived of their original simplicity and take on rather artificial trappings,—to save face, to impress, to conceal woes, to cloak disillusionment, to obscure personal ambitions, to maintain equilibrium, to gain favors. These trappings, including even the wish to have them, come only with experience and take on the characteristics which make the adult feel most comfortable in the circle where he must live—they become his special brand of sophistication.

When children seem to "see through" adults, it is probably only the trappings which are transparent or invisible, because they have little meaning for them. As on TV when George Gobel appeared with his face masked, Eddie Fisher said promptly, "Hello George"—enough of the familiar George showed through the disguise.

As we accumulate experience we tend to look for trappings which give us clues about the people we meet. Trappings actually provide only a sample of what the wearer hopes we will think he is. Children miss all of this. They do not have preconceived notions about people. Nor do adult refinements and subtleties impress them one bit. This is disconcerting at times: A dignified lady entered a room to "chair" her first meeting as president of an organization. She walked erectly and with what seemed a heavy load of decorum. Seated with his baby-sitterless mother was Jack, age 4. In a stage whisper he piped, "What's the matter with her, Mommy, are her shoes too little?"

It is wisest to be yourself around children—even to making some effort to regain some of the original simplicity—if for no other reason than because they see through us anyway.

GOING SOMEPLACE? LOTS OF ROUTES

Minnesota has 8,287 miles of railways, not quite 10% less than the 1920 peak rail mileage of something above 9,000. Supplementing the rails we have 121,022 miles of highways, of which 40% are currently reported as in need of improvement. This road mileage is divided into 54,536 miles township, 26,158 miles county aid, 15,489 state aid rural, 10,390 rural trunk, 10,305 city streets, 2,084 miles of "minor state and federal" highway. Estimated cost of needed improvement exceeds a billion dollars. Airlines, pipelines, and waterways also enter Minnesota's transportation picture, with Duluth's waterborn tonnage running consistently second only to that of New York City and well above such famous ports as Baltimore, Houston, New Orleans, and Philadelphia.

Business Supplies Most State Funds

Taxpayers Association Analyzes Tax Receipts

"Industry is the principal tax source of state governments," Norman A. Borgen, Executive Secretary of the Minnesota Taxpayers association said today, quoting the Tax Foundation, Inc.

In fiscal 1956, state governments obtained more than two-thirds of their tax revenue from levies on business or collected from business.

Less than half of the Federal government's tax revenue in the same fiscal year came from such sources.

On the other hand, state governments get only 12 percent of their tax revenue from taxes levied on individuals, while the national government garnered 51 percent of its tax revenue from such taxes.

The third level of government, local, derived its revenue largely from the property tax. In fiscal 1956 this source represented 87 percent of local tax collections. Officially, there is no breakdown of the parts of this tax levied on individuals and business, but unofficial estimates indicate that in the aggregate, roughly half of local government property tax revenue come from business, including farms.

Borgen said, "In Minnesota substantially more than half of the property tax revenue comes from business and farming."

FANCY FISCAL AFFAIRS

Strays dogs picked up a wallet containing $60 and put it on the doorstep of a Lindstrom home; the householder identified it, called the owner, and man's best friend was once again toasted as a good fellow. . . . A Mankato property owner startled the city council by asking that the appraisal of some lots he is turning over to the city be reduced from $21,460 to $19,000. . . . A Winnebago lunch stand operator spent two years "hoarding pennies and came up with 175 pounds of them worth $259.30, which will be applied on a winter vacation trip to California for Kenny and Mrs. Dahms.

Potato Market Problems Topic of Research Group

Problems of the potato industry upon which further research is needed was given consideration by the research committee of the Red River Valley Potato Growers association, who met at the Association's office in East Grand Forks last week.

Problems in the production, harvesting, storage, and marketing of the potato crop were considered by the committee.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Grand Forks VA office.

Q—My wife and I are Korea veterans, attending school under the GI Bill. We have a small child. May each of us claim our child as a dependent for GI allowance purposes?

A—Yes. You may claim both your wife and child as dependents. She may claim the child alone.

Q—I have a change to get a better job with a better future in another city. If I change jobs and sell my GI house, could I get my GI loan rights restored so I could buy another home?

A—Yes, it is possible to get your GI loan rights restored under your circumstances. A voluntary change of employment for better job may be considered a valid reason for restoration. VA also must be relieved of liability on the old guaranty.

Q—I understand there's a limit on VA outpatient dental treatment. I have a dental condition that is service-connected and rated at 30 percent. Will I be limited in my dental treatment?

A—No. Since you are receiving compensation for your dental condition, you may apply for dental treatment at any time and receive as many treatments as are necessary for your condition.

Q—I am a 35-year-old World War II veteran getting a pension for a total and permanent non-service - connected disability. Must I wait until I reach age 65 before my monthly payments will be raised from $66.15 to $78.75.

A—No. Your monthly payments will be increased to $78.75 after you have been on the VA pension rolls for 10 years.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

FOREIGN STUDENTS IN 1858

Minneapolis had reason to boast of its growth in 1858, for after less than five years of existence, it had a population of four thousand. The editor of the "Minnesota Republican," published at St. Anthony across the river from Minneapolis, pointed out in the issue of November 5, 1858, that the population of Minneapolis had quadrupled every year.

But perhaps most striking evidence of the town's growth, said the editor, might be found in the fact that "over 400 children now attend the Minneapolis Union School, ranging in age from four to twenty-three years of age, not one of whom was born in Minneapolis!"

RIVAL TWINS

For many years after its founding, St. Paul was indisputably the largest and fastest growing city in Minnesota, but in the late 1850s, when Minneapolis and St. Anthony began to grow, a bitter rivalry arose between St. Paul and the two towns at the falls.

The rivalry is reflected in the newspapers of the day. In the late 1850s and early 1860s, the columns of the St. Paul papers are filled with references to the anarchy and lawlessness prevalent in St. Anthony and Minneapolis, where "decent people are afraid to live."

The papers of Minneapolis and St. Anthony, on the other hand, lost no opportunity to use such headlines as "Another Whisky Murder in St. Paul," or "Fearful Atrocity in St. Paul." They called St. Paul "that town of rum and rowdyism, tobacco, gin-slings and easy virtue," and pointed out that every election it "polled an average of two votes per citizen." Papers in all three towns, of course, never failed to counteract their rival's charges by blowing their own horns, pointing out that each of them was a cultured and refined city with "extensive improvements."

BOARD OF IMMIGRATION

In 1864 the Minnesota legislature decided that the state should undertake an aggressive campaign to persuade immigrants to settle on its rich, vacant lands. Accordingly, the secretary of state was designated as the commissioner of immigration.

The commissioner's first project was the organization of a statewide contest to secure the best essay on the history, beauties, and prospects of Minnesota. The prize-winning essay was published in pamphlet form for distribution to prospective immigrants. It was printed in German, Norwegian, Swedish, and Welsh, as well as English.

After 1866 the secretary of state, the governor, and a varying number of appointees or advisors made up the state board of immigration. The board was very active in 1867 when fifty-nine thousand immigration pamphlets were distributed throughout the eastern United States and Europe. The state also employed an official letter writer, whose glowing descriptions of Minnesota were sent to newspaper and magazine editors everywhere.

State immigration agents were stationed at such key ports as New York City, Chicago, Milwaukee, and Quebec to assist inexperienced foreigners in securing their baggage, buying tickets, selecting routes, etc. In this way, many immigrants were protected form the machinations of unscrupulous persons seeking to defraud them, and many, doubtless, were started on their way to Minnesota. Local authorities in St. Paul built a hotel which was used as a temporary shelter by newly arrived immigrants awaiting transportation to their final destinations.

In 1868 the board decided that the activity which accomplished most for the money expended was the distribution of phamphlets, so it concentrated on that work in succeeding years. Although Minnesota's promotion of immigration lapsed from time to time, some form of this work was carried on well into the twentieth century.

PIERRE BOTTINEAU

"With the passing of Pierre Bottineau," read an obituary in the "Minneapolis Journal" of July 27, 1895, "the days of the voyageurs and coureurs du bois pass into history."

Bottineau was the most famous of Minnesota's half-breed scouts. He was born in the Red River settlement in 1817, and while still a boy learned to find his way unerringly through the northern wilderness. In the 1840s, with many years of scouting experience behind him, he bought land at St. Paul and St. Anthony and sold lots. He continued, however, to spend large portions of each year guiding hunters, prospectors, and explorers.

In the early 1850s he staked a claim at Bottineau Prairie on the site of what is now Osseo in Hennepin County and built a large house. Legend has it that at the housewarming party he gave his guests ten-dollar bills with which to light their cigars. He is said to have also enjoyed skipping silver dollars in the Mississippi River.

During the 1850s and 1860s he played an important part in almost every major expedition that set out from Minnesota. Among the well-known men he guided were Henry H. Sibley, James Liberty Fisk, and Governors Lewis Cass of Michigan, Alexander Ramsey of Minnesota, and Isaac Stevens of Washington. Tales abound of his mental and physical courage when confronted with trackless wastes, howling blizzards, fierce animals, and Indians.

By 1876 Bottineau Prairie had become too populous for the old frontiersman, and he moved to a farm near Red Lake Falls. There he lived for some twenty years. He married twice and had twenty-seven children.

The lands Bottineau owned in Hennepin and Ramsey counties could have been the foundation of a great fortune, but he was not a businessman. He preferred the freedom of the unsettled frontier to the comfortable but to him crowded confines of a growing town.

Barges moving singly or towed soldier-file in groups of 10 to 15 move more than 332,000 tons of petroleum and its products daily.

The card game, solitaire, is known as "Patience" in England, as "Fools" in Russia and as "Idiot's Delight" in a number of other countries.

FILTER TIPS

BY the time this goes to print, the decision as to which filter tip is the best may have been reached. But a month ago, there was quite a lot about it. Now, if it has been decided which tip is the best, you can with assurance draw to your heart's content. And you may forget the days when you were growing up and cigarettes were referred to as "coffin nails."

Whether the result has been, or may be, satisfactory to you, we may spend a few moments in thinking about a self-indulgence that has got out of all bounds. A pipe may have soothed Sir Walter Raleigh on the scaffold, but it was a bad thing that he introduced the indulgence of aboriginal red men of the western world to England.

Let us agree that tobacco should not be burnt and the smoke blown away in such enormous quantities. Stale tobacco smoke makes a room smell bad and fresh tobacco smoke is often disagreeable to non-smokers. A hundred and twenty-five years ago, an old circuit rider could not endure the use of tobacco by women. He had a sermon in which he repeated some lines of his own—

"Tobacco is an Indian weed,
And from the devil did proceed,
It spoils a woman, burns her clothes,
And makes a chimney of her nose."

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

NEA In Minnesota

The National Education Association, founded at Philadelphia a hundred years ago in August, 1857, had its first permanent home in Minnesota. Irwin Shepard, president of the Winona Normal School became the association's secretary in 1893 and, since it had no national office, the records and files were transferred to his home in Winona.

The organization grew so rapidly that by 1898 it needed a fulltime, permanent secretary. Shepard resigned his position as president of the Winona Normal School to become the first executive secretary of the National Education Association. He added a wing to his house to provide space for the association's file and carried on its work from his home until his retirement in 1912. The Shepard home still stands in Winona.

"Dixie" In St. Paul

Daniel Decatur Emmett, the famous minstrel and composer of many popular songs including "Dixie," was once a resident of St. Paul. Often during the 1850s and 1860s, he went there to visit his parents, who lived with his younger brother Lafayette C. Emmett, a prominent lawyer and chief justice of the Minnesota supreme court from 1858 to 1865.

Dann Emmett was already famous when he arrived at St. Paul in 1857. He spent the summer there, playing the "Old Cents' Band," which furnished music for "Sallie St. Clair's Varieties," a repertory group performing at Market Hall.

In April, 1858, Emmett and Frank Lumbard formed a minstrel or vaudeville troupe which played regularaly at Melodean Hall in St. Paul until it "went on tour" in July to Minneapolis, St. Anthony and Stillwater, staying about a week in each place. After that, the group returned to St. Paul for the rest of the summer.

Emmett spent most of 1859 in New York City, and it was there that his best-known song "Dixie," was published. The fact that it appeared so soon after he left St. Paul gave rise to the legend that it had been written in Minnesota, but Emmett himself said that he composed the song in New York.

In 1888, after a long and active theatrical and musical career, he retired to a farm at Mount Vernon, Ohio, where he died in 1904 at the age of eighty-nine. His home is now a museum.

Dan Emmett In Minneapolis

An amusing incident, which occurred during the tour of Dan Emmett's Melodeon Troupe through Minnesota in 1858, is preserved in the pages of the "St. Paul Daily Times" for July 4, 1858.

Emmett's players gave their first Minneapolis performance on July 1 in Woodman's Hall. According to the newspaper, on the second night of their engagement, about "seventy-five lumbermen, most of whom belonged in St. Anthony," forced their way into the hall without paying the admission fee. Emmett quieted them by reminding them that "gentlemen wait for ladies to be seated" before taking their places. He told them they could sit in the back if they would be attentive, but that no more free admissions would be allowed. The performance was given on schedule.

The next night, as patrons were assembling for the show, about a hundred and fifty "rowdy" sawmill employees were seen advancing toward the hall. The doors were quickly barred and those within armed themselves for the onslaught. Even the musicians joined in the fray, and the lumberjacks did not gain admittance.

The newspaper called upon decent citizens to defend themselves against what it called "the ruffian element," for it seemed obvious to the editor that the police were powerless. He was afraid that "no entertainments will come here for fear of violence," and, even if they did come, "gentlemen dare not take the ladies, and they do not like to go without them."

Temperance Pledges

One of the most troublesome problems facing Indian agents in Minnesota's early days was alcoholism among the Indians. R. G. Murphy, agent for the Sioux along the Minnesota River, wrote to James M. Goodhue editor of the "Minnesota Pioneer," that the adulterated "trader's whisky" had been largely responsible for the Indians' "family quarrels, destroying each other's property, fighting and murdering each other." In a letter, which Goodhue published in his paper on August 23, 1849, Murphy said that two hundred and fourteen of his Indians had taken temperance pledges.

A list of the names of some of the Indians from each band who took the pledge for various lengths of time is appended to the letter. In the list may be found the names of many Indians who were already well known and of others who were later to become notorious. Little Crow, famous as the leader of the bloody Sioux Uprising in 1862, took a temperance pledge for four years. Rattle, Medicine Bottle, and other members of Little Crow's band who figured prominently in the uprising, took the pledge for "as long as Maj. Murphy is agent." The well known chiefs, Shakopee, Good Road, and Cloud Man pledged themselves not to drink for eight months, as did many of their men.

Murphy explained in his letter that he had secured the cooperation of some of the missionaries and agency personnel, so the list also includes the name of "J. F. Alton, missionary with Wacouta's band," whose pledge was to last "for life." John Bush, Indian farmer for Redwing's band, also took the pledge "for life." Others were not so ambitious, and one citizen pledged himself not to drink strong liquor only until December 31, 1849.

Agent Murphy reported that the Indians had been "very faithful to their pledges and that "much good" had been done.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE New Year that is now only a matter of days away, barring some drastic development, will dawn upon an era which history books shall record as a time of comparative peace. No global wars are in progress, at least, no shooting global wars. But shall history faithfully record out times?

No wars, and yet our world is certainly in a state of turmoil. A mighty struggle for power is taking place. Individuals, and nations as a whole, are filled with apprehension as to what may lie waiting in the days ahead. Shall we see the advent of a devasting "push-button" war or may the world yet be won through a "war of ideas"? Will mankind realize the dream of conquest of outer space? Can two great powers such as the United States and Russia exist in peace upon the same planet when their political ideologies are poles apart?

Our peace, if the history books shall call it such, is an uneasy one. Within many hearts is the same dire apprehension which appears whenever the tide of events brings the world to the brink of war and all the terrors that it suggests. Smugness and complacency have given way to a state of contemplation. We wonder more, and are more concerned about, what the future holds in store for us.

We Americans, particularly, so proud of our history and progress, our standard of living, and our modern conveniences, are disturbed by the fact that we have been "bested" scientifically by a nation we considered second-rate. We wonder, too, if the turn of events has cast us into a "scientific war" . . . a war which has vast, unimaginable potentialities . . . a war that we must win at any cost or sacrifice.

For those who take but a moment to dwell upon the tremendous and once unbelieveable things mankind has accomplished during the last ten, twenty or fifty years there is the realization that more "impossible" things are to be recorded in the days ahead. We realize what we had forgotten: that man's accomplishments probably began in a barren cave when sticks were rubbed together to produce fire. New things remind us of old things we had forgotten . . . and history has a way of making us remember.

It is history, both modern and ancient, which outlines the shape of things to come. History suggests that two powerful nations, like two pugnacious boys, must sooner or later test the mettle of the opponent. History suggests that Communism and Democracy will continue to each seek the title of supreme world leader, by whatever name it may be called.

Since the Russian revolution of 40 years ago, the Communists have said capitalism and communism cannot live peaceably in the same world. Many Americans never believed this, as attested by the fact that many, many Americans don't know a thing about communism, except that it is an ugly word.

But we are beginning to wonder now, and rightfully so, if it really does pose a dangerous threat to our chosen way of life.

Nearly $5,000 Is Collected in Chest Drive

Present Outlook Is Campaign Will End Far Short of Quota

The 1957 Community Chest campaign in Pennington county entered its final phase this week and returns to date indicate the drive may fall far short of the $12,500 goal set for the county.

The total turned in to Harold Storhaug, county sec'y-treasurer, stood at $4364 as of Wednesday afternoon, he reported. Returns from the various individual drives were broken down as follows:

Business and industrial drive returns combined, $3,186; residential drive, $1,178, and Paul Anderson, government offices drive chairman reported $424 had been turned in to him so far, or approximately half. The total reported to date, including Anderson's partially-completed returns, is $4,788. No figure was available on rural drive returns, Storhaug said.

None of the above figures are the final results of any of the drives reported, Storhaug said. In each case, he stated, there is clean-up work to do which will boost the final figures somewhat higher.

In the rural county drive approximately half of the township clerks have reported in with the contributions from their areas. All township clerks are asked to complete their solicitations as quickly as possible and turn them in directly to Storhaug, since the rural drive chairman, Paul Engelstad, has gone to the west coast to spend the Christmas holidays.

All drive chairmen and Storhaug stated they hoped to complete the solicitation by the weekend, since conditions for finishing the drive next week will be quite unfavorable, due to the Christmas holiday.

$400,000 Bond Issue Sold Thursday at Interest Rate of Four Per Cent

Warren's new municipal water supply system is now ready for construction in 1958 with the sale of $400,000 in bonds to finance the project being completed and the award of construction contracts being made at special meetings of the city council Thursday and Monday night, according to Charles J. Carlson, city clerk.

The $400,000 bond issue was sold at an interest rate of 4.0639 per cent with three Minneapolis financial firms joining to purchase the issue. The purchasing firms were J. M. Dain company, Allison-Williams company and Piper, Jeffray & Hopwood.

If all of the bonds run to maturity in 1979, the city will pay $184,180 to the bond holders for the use of the money needed to construct the system. Interest rate is considered favorable in view of present market conditions.

Construction contract awards for the huge project totaled $378,376.80, according to a compilation made by the council following the special meeting Monday night. In addition to the bids, engineering fees, right of way rights and other incidentals will push the cost of the project to the vicinity of the estimated $450,000.

Robt. Lund to Handle Local Arrangements for Centennial Train

At a meeting of the Pennington county statehood centennial committee at the court house Monday evening, the group confirmed the appointment by Chairman Herman A. Kjos of Robert J. Lund to the post of chairman of the arrangements committee for the appearance in Thief River Falls next June of the six-car Minnesota Centennial exhibit train. Lund will appoint his own assistants.

The committee also approved a proposal by Kjos that the group sponsor the sale of official centennial buttons to assist in financing its various projects. M. C. Culbranson was named chairman of a committee to arrange for the sale, other members being J. M. Roche and Eugene Nesland.

Attorney Robert A. Wurst briefly discussed the question of whether or not the committee should form a corporation as a means of limiting the liability of individual members. Action on the matter was deferred, pending word from the state committee as to what other county groups are doing.

Bill LaFave was named chairman of a committee to continue to work for the acquisition of a tract of land near the east end of Eighth st. bridge as the site for a historic marker and wayside park. Serving with him will be Roy Oen, Clifford Bjorkman, Rev. Walter M. Pedersen and Sen. Roy E. Wiseth.

Also announced was the personnel of a committee which will work out details of a centennial year old-timers get-together to be held at Goodridge June 1, 1958. Members include Supt. David Brown, Ernest Swanson, Orville Jensen and Wiseth.

Chairman Kjos reminded the members that a district clinic of centennial committees from 11 counties will be held in Thief River Falls Tuesday, January 7, and urged a full attendance.

The meeting Monday was opened with the showing by Paul Steimaschuk of a short film prepared by the state centennial committee, with Cedric Adams serving as narrator. Kjos stated that the movie, which calls attention to Minnesota's resources, is available for showing at meetings of all groups in the community.

Morris Owen, chief engineer at the local plant, said Tuesday that two and one-half or three weeks would be required to complete the change-over.

Owen also reported that the two water turbines were put back into use Tuesday afternoon after being shut down for more than a week while changes in the plant were being completed.

He added that the dam at the Red Lake outlet is again partly open after having been closed by the Army engineers while work was being done below the outlet.

Deranged Canada Citizen Picked up Near Strandquist

Robert Denomy of Sarnia, Ontario, Found Wandering in Area with Shotgun

A mentally-deranged Canadian was apprehended east of Strandquist and returned to Canada last Friday by Marshall county Sheriff Oscar Erickson, his deputy and the border patrol, with the help of the man's brother.

According to the sheriff's office the man, Robert Denomy, 22, Sarnia Ont. was wandering around the rural area east of Strandquist carrying a shotgun. In his car he had a .22 rifle and when picked up he told the officers he was hunting. At the time, the officers said, Denomy told them he thought he was hunting near his home in Sarnia, and he was confused and not very coherent.

Apparently the man was from a well-to-do family as he is acquainted with several high Canadian officials and had, at one time, been a messenger boy in the Canadian embassy in Washington, D. C.

He drove his car into the country illegally, although he was carrying a valid passport, the sheriff's office reported.

The U. S. border patrol aided in attempting to send him back to Canada, in which there was some difficulty. However, the man's brother and father came for him and took him across. Denomy was kept in the Hallock hospital until the relatives arrived to take him back.

He had been in mental hospitals twice before, according to his brother. He did not resist the officers, although he objected when they picked him up for holding, the Marshall county Sheriff's deputy said.

Auto Stolen at Strandquist Is Not Yet Located

A car stolen in Strandquist last Saturday evening is still missing, according to the Marshall county sheriff's office.

The theft was reported early Sunday by the owner of the car, Hilmer Haugen of Strandquist. He told the county officers the car was locked because he had some clothing in it and that he had the keys in his pocket.

The car was described by the sheriff's office as a 1950 Chevrolet two-door sedan, green, with 1956 license number 9T 1180.

N.W. Hospital Administrator Resigns Post

Harold W. Peterson to Serve Brainerd's New State Hospital

Harold W. Peterson, for the past five year administrator of Northwestern Hospital in this city, Monday evening tendered his resignation to the board of trustees, which accepted it with reluctance.

He announced that he will leave early in January to assume the position of assistant hospital superintendent at the new state hospital for the mentally retarded at Brainerd, on which construction has been started, with the administration building scheduled for completion in March.

Mr. Peterson said he feels his new post presents a real opportunity and challenge, since it will enable him to be associated with the projected 2,000-bed institution from its very inception.

After accepting his resignation, the board appointed Norman Peterson, assistant administrator the past two years, to the position of interim administrator from January 1 until the time of the annual hospital meeting in May, when, President L. B. Hartz stated, a permanent appointment will be made.

Mr. Hartz announced Harold Peterson's resignation to a group of department heads and nurses at the hospital Tuesday afternoon, stating that the board and staff feel unhappy about his decision to leave the local institution. Hartz also solicited the cooperation of all concerned with the new administrator.

Harold Peterson, who came to this city from Hallock early in 1953, is the holder of a master's degree in hospital administration from the University of Minnesota, and in earlier years had extensive teaching experience. He served here during the period when the local institution was expanded by construction of a large addition costing nearly $1,000,000.

To Be Distributed with Salvation Army Baskets

Members of the Lions club brought Christmas toys to their luncheon meeting Wednesday noon, and as in past years they will be distributed early next week with Christmas baskets to be given to needy families by the Salvation Army.

President Stan Pladson reported that the Christmas tree sale being conducted by the club at the Conoco station is going well, but that a good supply of trees remains available.

Mayor O. D. Belch told a piteous story of a small child who had recovered from an illness at the local hospital, but could not be released because its foster parents were away from the city.

Receiving no offers in response to his request that a Lion take the child into his home during the Christmas holidays, the mayor suggested that someone be chose by lot. A drawing was held, and the name selected was that of Herman A. Kjos, who thereupon was presented with a life-size plastic baby, resulting in a hearty laugh by the assemblage.

The bulk of the Christmas mail hit the Thief River Falls post office early this week and postal workers were hard-pressed to keep up with the flow. Here is a typical scene as the men assorted the many packages and other kinds of Christmas mail coming and going from the city. Stacking the packages here are Gunder Legvold and Carl Gulrud.

Darlene St. Martin Wed To Virgil Eckstein Nov. 30

In a setting of rust and yellow chrysanthemum's and lighted candelabra Saturday evening, November 30, Miss Darlene St. Martin became the bride of Virgil Eckstein in St. John's Lutheran church. Rev. A. C. Seitz performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of approximately 250 guests.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver St. Martin of this city, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eckstein of Red Lake Falls.

Miss Ruby St. Martin presided at the organ for a prelude of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches. She also accompanied Carol St. Martin as she sang "Song of Ruth" before the ceremony and Carol and Vida St. Martin as they sang "O Perfect Love" during the ceremony. Vida St. Martin also sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar. They are all sisters of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father was attired in a floor length gown of imported chantilly lace over egg shell crystal charm which was designed and made by the bride's mother. The gown was princess style, fashioned with long tapered sleeves which formed points over the wrists, and a v-shaped neckline with tiny covered buttons extending down the back. Her fingertip veil of French illusion net was held in place by a crown of pearls and was edged with lace inserted flowers. She carried a bouquet of tangerine roses on a white Bible. Her only jewelry was a gold cross, a gift from the groom.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Rose Ella St. Martin of this city. The bridesmaids were Shirley St. Martin of Minneapolis, Iris St. Martin of Davenport, Iowa, and Florence St. Martin of St. Louis, Mo., all sisters of the bride. Their identical sheath dresses which were also made by the bride's mother, were of rust and aqua velvet with net overskirts. To complement their attire they wore matching headbands and shoes and carried bouquets of rust and yellow mums. Their pearl necklaces and earring's were gifts from the bride.

Serving as flower girl was Judy Jo [illegible] Goodridge. Her street length dress was of white brocade taffeta and she carried a basket of mixed flowers.

The groom was attended by his brother, Robert Eckstein of Red Lake Falls, as bestman. Groomsmen were Roger Eckstein of this city, Lloyd Hackbarth of St. Louis, Mo. and Richard St. Martin of this city. They all wore black tuxedo's with white carnation boutonnieres.

The ring bearer was Gary Almquist of St. Hilaire. He was dressed identically to the attendants and carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church parlors. The bridal table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was baked and decorated by the groom's mother. Mrs. Fred Kotz and Darlene Konz cut and served the cake, and Mrs. Henry Kiesow, poured.

Marian Anderson registered the guests and the gifts were arranged by Burnelle Peterson and Mrs. Charles Sackett. The waitresses were Joan Sevre, Donna Hesse, Lois Gunderson and Doris Fuger. Serving the reception were Helen Wedul, Mrs. August Kiesow, Mathilda Koop and Mrs. Lawrence Hesse.

For their trip to the Black Hills, the bride chose a black and white dress with black accessories. The couple are at home at 311 So. Duluth in this city.

Mrs. Eckstein is a graduate of Lincoln High school and was employed as a cashier at the L. B. Hartz store in this city. Mr. Eckstein is presently employed by Kiewels in this city.

Out of town guests in attendance were from Alameda, Calif., Bartho, Minn., Mahnomen, St. Louis, Mo., Davenport, Iowa, Minneapolis, Grygla, Red Lake Falls and Goodridge.

Speaker Sees Bright Future in Fattening Beef and Sheep Here

A large group of farmers heard Robert Jacobs, livestock specialist with the 'U' of M. Institute of Agriculture discuss sheep and beef feeding Tuesday evening. Sixty-five farmers took part in the discussion led by Jacobs and county agent Paul Stelmaschuk on many feeding and management aspects of livestock production.

A bright future for fattening of beef and sheep in this area was indicated. Because we can produce high amounts of roughage per acre an dare in an area producing much barley and oat feeds, we can compete favorably with other areas in the feeding of beef and sheep, it was pointed out.

Early winter lambing in February, has given higher net returns to sheep producers than lambing in the spring and marketing in the fall. Dicalcium phosphate research has shown that this material provides the best internal parasite control. It has given better results than use of phenothiazene or trace minerals and more profits were realized from sheep on this type of program.

Aureomycin is a valuable antibiotic in controlling overeating disease in lambs, said Jacobs. 20 to 30 milligrams per lamb per day controls this disease and the antibiotic can be fed immediately when sick lambs are observed.

Six pounds of trace mineral salt and three pounds of dicalcium phosphate is the best mineral mixture for sheep feeding.

Beef cattle rations using prevailing feed costs can be made to put on a pound of gain for thirteen cents for feed costs. This makes feeding of cattle practical and profitable on most farms in this area.

Feeder cattle numbers are lower by 2% in the United State and there are about one million less cattle in the United States than one year ago. Cattle can put on one pound of gain for seven cents on good pasture. A feeding program which would put the cattle to market in September is expected to be most profitable. This would mean that cattle would be on full feed by June. Cattle are then sold at about one thousand pounds in weight and grade out good to choice.

A "Full feed" of grain means cattle are fed two pounds of grain for every 100 pounds of live weight. The cattle and sheep can use barley feed as well as corn in the fattening program.

NEW YEAR'S GIRL

By Kathryn Brummond

MARCIA ANDERS had been born on New Years Day, which always made that day something extra special. Better even than Christmas, her widowed mother often said.

Every year, along with the general jubilation, there had been a birthday party for Marcia; first her kindergarten friends, then a bevy of young girls and finally dancing parties for both girls and boys.

Now Marcia was going on nineteen and when Mrs. Anders began to talk about the birthday she said, "This year I don't believe I'll have a party, mother. John wants us to go to the Winter Carnival at Annandale."

New Years day dawned bright and crisp and early in the morning John and Marcia set gaily out on their trip. Mrs. Anders wondered how she would get through the lonesome day.

Presently it occurred to her that they might still have a birthday party after the pair returned. Just the three of them. She and Marcia and John. She'd make a gorgeous birthday cake and some kind of festive casserole—chicken maybe.

The day passed quickly after all. At length everything was ready. The table was covered with the best white cloth; laid with the company silver; the cake was decorated; the gifts were wrapped. There was nothing to do now but wait.

The telephone suddenly rang loudly in the stillness of the room. "Hello!" Mrs. Anders cried. She could tell by the sounds that this was a long distance call and uneasiness nipped her heart.

Then she heard Mrs. LeMaitre's voice. "Hello, Mrs. Anders? Ann, this is Matilda."

"What's wrong?" Marcia's mother asked quickly.

"Why, nothing's wrong at all," Mrs. LeMaitre returned cheerfully. "I just wanted to tell you the children won't be back tonight. They're going to stay here with me. John called to say they were invited to a shindig; they'll come here afterward and drive back home in the morning."

"What on earth!" Mrs. Anders exclaimed resentfully.

"They had a contest for next year's carnival queen," Mrs. LeMaitre explained animatedly, "and your Marcia won it! So the committe is entertaining her and John and the princesses at a downtown cafe. But that's not the big news, Ann! They're engaged! We're on the way to becoming mothers-in-law! Ann, Ann! Are you there? Why don't you say something? Aren't you glad? I am!"

Mrs. Anders struggled for words and they came out tearfully, "Matilda, today is Marcia's birthday. We've spent it together every single year since she was born. I baked her a birthday cake and—and—"

She broke down completely. Never had she felt so utterly forgotten.

There was silence at the other end of the line. Then Matilda said, "All right. It's her birthday. So what? We all have birthdays. They come every year. But remember, this is her betrothal day too. You didn't arrange that, Ann. And when the kids come in tonight I'm going to tell them that you were simply delighted!"

As Ann hung up her door bell rang. "Special delivery letter," the boy said.

She tore open the envelope. It was a beautiful birthday card, covered with flowers and satin. It must be meant for Marcia, Ann thought. But no, the address said "Mrs. Ann Anders, 13 Maple Street." Then she saw it was Marcia's own handwriting.

Swiftly she opened the dainty folder and gladness flooded her whole being.

On the blank page Marcia had scrawled excitedly, "Birthday greetings to my mother who brought me into the best of all possible worlds."

Advertising doesn't cost — it pays!

I am the Spirit of Christmas . . .

I enter the home of poverty, causing pale-faced children to open their eyes wide, in pleasant wonder . . .

I cause the miser's clutched hand to relax, and thus paint a bright spot on his soul . . .

I cause the aged to renew their youth and laugh in the old, glad way . . .

I keep romance alive in the heart of childhood, and brighten sleep with dreams woven of magic . . .

I cause the prodigal to pause a moment on his wild, wasteful way, and send to anxious love some token that releases glad tears . . . tears which wash away the hard lines of sorrow.

I enter dark prison cells reminding scarred manhood of what might have been, and pointing forward to good days yet to be . . .

I come softly into the still white home of pain, and lips that are too weak to speak, just tremble in silent, eloquent gratitude . . .

In a thousand ways I cause the weary world to look up into the face of God, and for a little moment forget the things that are small and wretched.

$96,000,000 Highway Program for State

A record 96 million dollar highway program for Minnesota for the year starting July 1, 1958 was outlined this week in St. Paul by Gov. Freeman and J. P. Zimmerman, state highway commissioner.

Of the total, $39,828,500 will be spent on regular trunk highway projects $28,987,400 on the new controlled access interstate highway system, $1,045,000 on trunk highway maintenance and $26,200,000 on state-county and state municipal construction.

The overall total is 15 million dollars greater than the program under way for the current year. About 13 million dollars of the increase will result from added work on the interstate system.

Under the program, contracts will be awarded by June 30, 1959 on nearly 700 miles of regular trunk highways, including 47 bridges. This part of the work will be financed with $18,012,450 in federal and municipal funds and $21,816,050 in state funds.

The 73 miles of highway and 83 bridges for the interstate system will be paid for with $26,496,160 in federal funds and $2,401,240 in state funds.

The regular highway program will include work in 60 different counties, the interstate program in 10 counties.

If you began counting in the year One, and counted until this very moment, you could not have counted enough atoms to cover a pinhead.

Local Bank Aids 4-H Foundation

Statewide U. S. Drive to Assist Organization

The Union State bank has joined with other Minnesota banks in contributing to the work of the National 4-H Club Foundation, according to E. O. Peterson, president.

Minnesota bankers, under the leadership of George S. Henry, vice president of the First National bank of Minneapolis, are taking part in a nation-wide fund raising program in behalf of the work of the 4-H Foundation. The bank campaign nationally is under the leadership of Jesse W. Tapp, Chairman of the Board of the Bank of America.

The foundation, which is an educational, non-profit organization has as its current activities: (1) the International Farm Youth Exchange under which 300 "ambassadors in blue jeans" each year are exchanged between the United States and 50 countries of the free world; (2) the operation of a National 4-H Club Center in the Nation's Capital, which will serve as a "working" monument to the 4-H movement; and (3) a broad program in human development-human relations for training youth leaders in how to work more effectively with young people.

St. Paul Parade on May 10 Will Usher in Statehood Day

Applications Must Be Filed with Committee Before March 20, 1958

Plans for a Minnesota Centennial "Parade of the Century" to be held next May 10 were announced Wednesday by Ray P. Speer, long-time state fair publicity director and special centennial parade coordinator.

The parade will originate at the Minnesota state fairgrounds, beginning at 2 p. m., and after passing in review before the grandstand will travel south over Snelling Avenue to University avenue where it will disperse. The entire route covers three miles and is expected to last three hours.

Theme of the big parade will be "Pride in Minnesota." It will be staged the day before Minnesota Statehood Day, May 11.

"We are planning a high quality parade," Speer said. "This makes it necessary to have all units participating in the parade approved first by an experienced parade committee."

Speer said between 200 and 250 units—including floats, bands, county units, military squads and historic and pageant-type units portraying Minnesota's 100 year history—will be selected.

Parade entry applications must be submitted to the Centennial Parade Committee, 1958 University Avenue, St. Paul before March 20.

"Selections will be made democratically with the overall objective of producing a parade that is representative of all the state and a credit to all its people," Speer said.

The University of Minnesota's board of regents Friday promoted Robert L. Jones, professor of journalism, to succeed Professor Ralph D. Casey as director of the school of journalism, effective July 1, 1958.

Professor Casey, who has headed the school since 1930, will retire from the University faculty next June.

Selection of Jones as Casey's successor was recommended by a special University faculty committee appointed by Dean E. W. McDiarmid of the college of science, literature and the arts.

"Rarely, in my experience," University President J. L. Morrill commented today, "has there been as thorough and exhaustive a search made for a major college appointment as has been made in the case of the directorship of our school of journalism."

Grygla Family Is Honored for Work in GOC Program

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Benson and their daughter Barbara of Grygla were presented awards recently in appreciation for their work in the ground observer corps program.

They each received the 750 hour bar, merit badge and the meritorious service award from Sgt. Palmer Johnson, mobile training sergeant for this area.

The Bensons are part of the complex air defense system, set up to provide warning for any emergency that might arise. By reporting the flight of certain aircraft to the Bemidji air defense filter center, they are providing the vital link in the chain of air defense that only the eyes and ears of civilian volunteers can do, said Johnson.

1 Traffic Mishap Occurs This Week

Damage Totals $55 in Minor Accident Tuesday

Very little activity has been reported in the city by local police recently with only one minor traffic mishap occurring to spoil an otherwise peaceful week.

The mishap occurred when Henry A. Dahlen, rt. 3, city, hooked the corner of an oil truck which was pulling from the curb on Main av. N. about 10:10 a.m. Tuesday. Damage to the Dahlen car was estimated at $50 while the truck, driven by LeRoy A. Lokken, city, had about $5 damages.

Charges, if any, were not reported by police.

In addition, Palmer Hurst, rt. 5, city, reported to police that someone had broken into his car while it was parked in the parking lot south of the post office, Wednesday afternoon.

Entry was gained by breaking the right-front window. The trunk was also pried opened but Hurst said nothing had been taken.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

As a farmer I am convinced there is a drive on to consolidate the farmer and the worker. I am sure this would never work as we are natural opponents.

We don't have to look far back into history to see that it was by consolidating the farmers and the workers, and stirring up a hatred among them for the imaginary big shot or capitalist ten themselves into control of a ten themselves into contro lof a lot of territory.

We all know that it was the workers and the farmers who led the bloody but futile attempt to regain their lost freedom in Hungary, Poland and China.

Are we going to make the same mistake?

"Hearings Regarding Communist Activities Among Farm Groups;" "Hearings Regarding Communist Activities In the Chicago Area;" "Hand Book For Americans, Document 117."

Price Supports for Dairy Products Cut to 75 Pct. April 1st

Secretary of Agriculture Benson announced Wednesday in Washington that government price supports for dairy products will be reduced to 75 per cent of parity—the lowest legal minimum—next April 1.

He said it should bring cuts of around 2¼ cents a pound in the retail prices of butter and cheese and ½ cent a quart for fluid milk.

Dairy state senators attacked the move immediately as a shocking injustice which would be disastrous to dairy farmers.

Both Sens. Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Thye (R-Minn.) announced they would introduce bills at the next session of Congress to keep the price supports at their present levels or even raise them.

The present supports are 80 per cent of parity for butterfat and 83 per cent for milk used for manufacturing purposes.

Benson argued that cuts would be in the best interests of the dairy industry in the long run.

He suggested dairymen could help adjust themselves to lower supports by using greater care in culling low-producing cows which, he said, do little more than provide their owners with companionship.

Benson's action on the politically explosive price support issue came just ahead of a congressional session likely to be marked by a bitter fight over farm legislation.

Reductions in dairy supports, Benson said, do not necessarily forecast reductions for other basic farm commodities.

Benson told a news conference the April 1 support prices will be pegged at 75 per cent of parity for both butterfat and milk used for manufacturing purposes.

Farm law sets a support range between 75 and 90 per cent of parity.

Prowler-G. Forks Hockey Tilt Last Night Is Canceled

The unseasonable weather that has been prevailing the past couple of days has "ruined" the ice sheet in the Arena, and as a result the Prowlers vs. Grand Forks Central high school hockey game that had been scheduled for Wednesday night was postponed.

Weather and ice conditions permitting, coach Johnny Matchefts Prowlers will attempt to get back into scheduled play on Saturday night, Dec. 21st, when they meet the state champion International Falls Broncos on the Arena ice.

Mercury Hits High of 37 on Tuesday

Mild Temperatures To Last Until Saturday

More of the spring-like weather northwest Minnesota residents have been enjoying in recent weeks is in store here at least through Saturday, the weatherman said today.

A slight drop in temperature may be expected Saturday but until then the high temperatures will remain about the same as they have been earlier this week and low temperatures will be only a little colder.

The high temperature this week was 37 above Tuesday and Wednesday, while the low was 8 above Monday. Other lows were 26 and 24. No precipitation that could be measured fell since Monday.

The forecast is for partly cloudy skies and little temperature change today, tonight and Friday. Highs will be in the thirties and lows from 22-28 may be expected. Winds will be light, becoming moderately westerly and decreasing tonight.

Galloway cattle are the oldest existing beef breed, dating back to 1540. They are particularly adaptable to severe winters.

Prowlers Defeat RLF 68-54 as Kankel Stars

Not until the spectacled Chuck Kankel committed his fifth foul, in the early minutes of the fourth period, were the Prowlers able to pull away from Red Lake Falls and go on to defeat the Eagles, 68 to 54, in a district conference basketball game played here Tuesday night.

Coach Alan Adams blue-and-gold squad will journey to Crookston on Friday night for an important district conference game against coach Al Droen's Crookston Pirate club.

Red Lake Falls' Kankel, until he was assessed with a charging foul as he drove in for a field goal try with 5:27 of the final period remaining, had kept the Eagles in contention with a 27-point performance on Tuesday night. Kankel, playing at forward for coach Rusty Miller's club, tallied eight field goals and eleven free throws to gain the game's high scoring honors.

The Eagles gained an early four-point lead, with Kankel and Jason Huseby scoring field goals, but the Prowlers, with Phil Hanson dropping in five straight free throws and adding a pair of field goals, overcame that margin to take a 22 to 14 lead at the end of the first period in Tuesday night's contest.

The Prowlers were pressed to maintain that seven or eight point margin throughout the second and third periods, holding a 36 to 29 advantage at the intermission and 54 to 40 lead at the end of the third period.

In the fourth period, a pair of field goals by Kankel, while the Prowlers' Mickey Hanson scored on a jump shot for the Prowlers, pared the locals' lead to 56 to 50. Kankel then fouled out, and Lynn Nicholson added two Prowler points on free throws.

The Prowlers were remarkably accurate from the gift shot line, picking up thirty points via free throws, and missing but eight attempts.

Rasmussen, who played his usually strong game, being sturdy off both boards, was the high scorer for the locals, notching five field goals and ten free throws. Other double-figure scorers for the Prowlers were Phil Hanson, ten; Bennes, eleven; and Nicholson, eleven.

Hockey Action Monday Night

Lesson Number One

The Viking Tavern "schoolboys" bowling team—Donnie Haugen, Fred Jensen, Pat and Mike Poole, Dean Anderson, and with Emil Dusty Dostal as coach—received their first lesson in the art of bowling on Sunday afternoon when they dropped a challenge match to the Plummer all-stars, 2948 to 2571, in a three-game, six-man, total-pins series bowled at Plummer.

The Vikings bowled very poorly, and the individual totals recite like this: Jensen, 393; Mike Poole, 403; Pat Poole, 404; Anderson, 520; Haugen, 421; and Dostal, 424. Dean Anderson was the lone bowler to post any creditable scores, and he had games of 189-152-185.

The Plummer all-stars—Jesse DuChamp, Lem Dobson, Vern Nelson, Gerald Toulouse, Lloyd Samuelson, and Wally DuChamp—had the following three-game totals: 508-443-473-459-560-500.

It's doubtful if the schoolboys can overcome that 377-pin deficit, but they declare that the results will be different when the two teams resume their rivalry on the "pie-in-the-sky" home alleys here Sunday.

Prowler Six Bows to Cathedral 5-4; Play Int. Falls Saturday

Bob Charron's second goal of the game, scored on a backhand shot at the 13.32 mark of the third period, gave coach Bill Sullivan Crookston Cathedral sextet a deserved 5 to 4 win over the hockey Prowlers in a rugged tilt played here Monday night. It was the season-opener for coach Johnny Matchefts young squad.

The Prowlers will entertain the state champion International Falls Broncos on Saturday night, with face-off time at the Arena set for 8:00 p. m.

Monday night's game, which was a typical early-season struggle in that both teams were guilty of numerous misplays and assessed with penalties.

After a scoreless first period, the veteran Crookston club opened the scoring at the 4:2 mark of the second period when Ronald Ikauniks, on an assist from Mark Spear, neat goalie Wayne Erickson on a 15-footer. Bob Charron gave the Blue Wave a 2 to 0 lead with a tally at the 6:36 mark.

The Prowlers, on a goal by Dale Wennberg and a pair by Jerry Jorgenson, moved into a 3 to 2 lead, with Jorgenson's tally at the 14:37 mark being the go-ahead goal.

A Rebuilding Process

Judged by the opening-game performance here on Monday night, losing a 5 to 4 decision to a veteran Crookston Cathedral sextet, it's evident that the hockey Prowlers, under the coaching of Johnny Matchefts and his assistant Dave Rogers, are in a rebuilding process.

We were somewhat disappointed with the skating ability, or its lack, that the Prowlers exhibited on Monday night. Even after making allowances for the fact that the Prowlers are predominantly a sophomore squad, and that these boys will, in the next couple of years, make improvement, the team revealed a lack of breakaway speed and skating finesse.

All the desire in the world, and the Prowlers are an enthusiastic bunch, won't make hockey players if the boys do not possess skating ability. It is evident that there must be an intensification in the grade school and midget hockey program, with stress being placed on skating drills.

After having watched the state champion Prowlers of 1954 and 1956, and the Prowlers of previous years, we've perhaps become too critical of skating ability. We do think, though, that skating is the fundamental of hockey and it's for this reason that the Canadian players and Canadian teams are superior to the American players and American teams. And it's the one advantage that the northern Minnesota teams have over the Twin City and southern Minnesota teams.

Says Johnny

John Matchefts, the former Eveleth high school all-state center, and later a stellar performer with the Michigan Wolverines and the U. S. Olympic hockey team, and who is now varsity coach of the Prowlers, was in attendance at Saturday night's North Dakota Sioux vs. Michigan game at Grand Forks.

Johnny expressed himself as being surprised at the caliber of play exhibited by coach Bob May's Sioux, and that 4 to 0 score, which was the score of the second game of the two-game series, was a fair indication of the comparative strength of the two teams. The Michigan team, which won the first game by a 3 to 1 score, was handicapped considerably in the second game by the absence, due to injuries, of a pair of first-line regulars.

Matchefts renewed acquaintances with Michigan's Bob White. White, a Canadian citizen, was a member of the Canadian Olympic team, a third place finisher in the last Olympiad.

John offered the prediction that the Western Intercollegiate Hockey conference wouldn't long survive the all-Canadian trend that is in evidence. He is willing to make a small wager that the Big Ten members of the league—Michigan, Minnesota, and Michigan State—will bolt the league unless restrictions are made on the number of Canadians that will be permitted to compete in league play.

SECOND SECTION
Pages 1 thru 6

Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota
Thursday, Dec. 19, 1957
Number One Hundred One

Pennington county's oldest telephone company, in terms of continuous service, will be fifty years old Saturday. The Farmers Mutual, now serving 140 farm families south of Thief River Falls, was organized on December 21, 1907, by 14 farmers living west of the river in Rocksbury and Sanders townships, to provide phone service for themselves and their neighbors on a cooperative basis.

The company has successfully survived the booms and the busts of half a century and has an excellent record of progress. It now provides dial phone service over 19 party lines, including four miles of underground cable, and its members are spread over all or parts of six townships. Although it operates as an independent corporation, it enjoys all of the advantages of community-wide service through the Thief River Falls system of Northwestern Bell.

Members of the Farmers Mutual have more than $30,000 invested in their system. This does not include telephone instruments, which are rented from the Northwestern Bell and are maintained by that organization. The biggest item of cost was the laying of four miles of underground cable south along the airport road. The cable itself cost about $10,000, according to Mons Engelstad, secretary and treasurer. The special communication needs of North Central Airlines are provided by this cable through lines rented from the Mutual by Northwestern Bell. Thirteen of the company's 19 party lines are served through the cable.

First President

J. O. THORSTAD

Was the first president of the Farmers Mutual Telephone company when it was organized in 1907. His son, Bert Thorstad, has a personal recollection of many of the events of that early period and has been helpful in assembling the information presented in this historical sketch.

Of the company's present officers Fred Koop ranks first both in seniority and title. He was made a member of the official family in 1936 when he was elected director. In 1942 he became vice president, and has served as president since 1951. Mons Engelstad has served as secretary-treasurer since 1942, and Willie Rondorf became a director in 1944 and has served as vice president since 1951. Other directors are Oscar Houske, elected in 1950, Jesse Bakke and Nels Anderson, in 1951, and Bert Vigen, 1952.

The 14 original members include names long prominent in the community. They were J. O. Thorstad, Lorenz Hanson, Hogan Hanson, Henry Pope, Charles Gustafson, Wm. Moeller, F. T. Satre, Albert Geske, Gust Geske, Hans Hanson, Eric Olson, John Larson, Anton Miller and Loren Miller.

Several second generation citizens who still are residents here, recall the organization period of the company. There was a telephone service of sorts in Thief River Falls at that time, a small system operated by J. J. Fant, proprietor of Fant's cigar store and confectionary. The record is not clear, but presumably the store was Mr. Fant's chief source of income and the telephone business was the side-line.

The Fant system had one rural line to the Lorenz Hanson farm in Sanders, one of the sources of the city's milk supply, delivered daily to Thief River Falls customers. Hanson and Jack Mehan were the only farmers using the service and the line was a financial liability.

As Bert Thorstad, son of J. O. Thorstad, remembers the facts, Mr. Fant prevailed upon Mr. Hanson to call a few of his neighbors together for the purpose of organizing a phone system of their own. With the fall work out of the way, such a meeting was held, on December 7, and a temporary organization was formed. Temporary officers elected were J. O. Thorstad, president, Anton Miller, vice president, Chas. Gustafson, treasurer, and Loren Miller, secretary. Trustees were Eric Olson, Wm. Moeller and Hogan Hanson.

It was decided that a mutual company should be organized, providing 15 subscribers in the neighborhood could be secured; soliciting committees were named and December 21 was fixed as the day for another meeting at which time the question of organization would be determined. Just why the shortest day of the year was selected for this important meeting is not known.

But at 1:00 o'clock of December 21 J. O. Thorstad called the meeting to order with only 14 farmers in attendance. At the December 7 meeting the 15 member minimum caused some delay but this technicality was overcome simply by amending the minutes of the preliminary session. And so the permanent organization was formed.

All of the temporary officers were made permanent except that Albert Geske was named as a trustee in place of Eric Olson. Henry Pope, F. T. Satre and Loren Miller were named as a committee to draft a constitution and by-laws to be acted upon at the next meeting.

The committee to draft a constitution lost no time in taking care of this assignment. At a meeting held January 2, 1908, the constitution and by-laws were adopted as recommended, after two readings. There was some bickering about the cost of membership shares but $35 was finally adopted as a compromise figure. At a meeting held January 18 the members agreed to sign notes to raise needed capital and the officers were instructed to take steps to form a corporation.

Three new members were announced at a special meeting held February 29 (an extra day that Leap year). They were R. K. Callaway, Ed Aubol and August Krause. Krause was elected to fill a vacancy in the office of vice president.

Buy 400 Poles

Big event of that first year of operation was a pole moving bee, according to the recollections of some of the survivors. At a special meeting held April 28 the members had agreed to buy 400 telephone poles from the Great Northern railway, located along the abandoned line west of Wylie. The price was 25 cents per pole, the telephone company to gather them and do the moving.

And that was quite an order for the small company. Each member was assessed $10 to raise the necessary cash. And a pole-moving bee was ordered for June 16. Members—and their sons—met at the Thorstad corner at six o'clock on the morning of that day. The volunteers put in long hours, and moved a lot of poles. Those who still remember that day were young bloods at that time and it wasn't all work.

So the lines were built and telephone service was established—and service was largely self-service. The neighbors rang each other by their system of long and short rings, but each call alerted the entire system. The telephone was not for confidential business. And there were exchange problems. Mrs. Anton Miller did much of the work at the switch, according to the minutes and her services were much appreciated. Mr. Fant's organization provided an exchange service, and later the Tri-State company and then the Northwestern Bell, and until in recent years this service seems to have been a source of constant trouble. Now there no longer is trouble, reports Mons Englestad, and relations with the Northwestern Bell are excellent.

But 50 years ago the Thief River Falls community was expanding rapidly. The Soo Line had arrived in 1904 and was extending its lines east and west. The Great Northern had just completed its extension to Warroad. The lumber mill was operating at full capacity. A large area of the Indian reservation had been opened for settlement and homesteaders were developing their farms, and building schools and churches and roads. The entire area was humming with activity and Thief River Falls was a boom town.

That was the setting in which the 14 farmers started their telephone company, and in the hopeful atmosphere of an expanding community the telephone company expanded too. Rocksbury township farmers on the east side of the river wanted telephone service and the first annual meeting of the company was held in Valhall hall on January 6, 1909. It was an important meeting, resulting in the company's first big expansion. East side members were recognized in the election of directors. Thorstad, Krause, Miller and Gustafson were re-elected as officers but the trustees became Peter Engelstad, Nels Nelson and Lars Neitland. The price of shares was increased to $50 and reorganization as a corporation was formally approved.

In 1910 Chas. Gustafson retired as treasurer to enter the implement business in Thief River Falls. He was succeeded by F. T. Satre. Anton Miller was elected president and Wm. Moeller as secretary. The following year another director was elected, who now shares with Peter Engelstad the record for most years of service to the organization. He was Anton Peterson, and he and Mr. Engelstad each had thirty years of service in an official capacity to their credit.

There were several changes in 1913. Henry Rondorf became president, A. A. Odegaard vice president, Paul Borge secretary and Peter Engelstad treasurer. Tobias Steene was elected a trustee along with Anton Peterson and J. O. Thorstad. It is interesting to note that the 1914 meeting

Officers of the community's oldest telephone company were special guests of the Northwestern Bell Co. at their recent open house and public presentation of their modern Thief River Falls exchange. The Farmers Mutual Telephone Company, serving 140 rural homes in six townships of Pennington county, will be fifty years old Saturday.

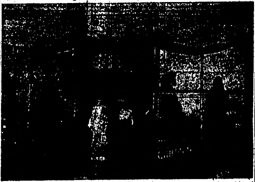
The display of old equipment which they are inspecting was of special interest to the officers of the mutual company. Because of their more recent experience with some of the now obsolete devices recent improvement in service is more generally appreciated by rural phone users.

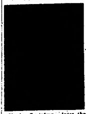
Fant's Exchange Served Farmers Mutual Phone Co.



When the Farmers Mutual Telephone Company was organized fifty years ago, exchange service was provided by J. J. Fant, owner of the Thief River Falls system. Above is a view of his store, located about where Poppler's is today, in which the exchange was located.

In the picture are the two "Hello" girls, Andrena Helgenson, and Anna Soards, a sister of Mrs. Esther Plough. The company linemen, equipped with their spikes and ready to provide instant service, were Will Ferris and Al Dixon. The street lamp on the leaning post and the cigar store Indian would be museum pieces today.

Treasurer



Charles Gustafson, later the founder of C. Gustafson & Son of this city, was one of the original 14 farmers who organized the telephone company in 1907. He was elected company treasurer, an office he held until he quit farming and went into the implement business.

Father and Son

At the left above is Loren Miller, active in the organization of the rural phone company and its first secretary. His son, Anton Miller, was the first vice president and later became president. Loren Miller was the father of Mrs. Abbie Wassgren of Thief River Falls.

First Trustee

Hogan Hanson was one of the three trustees elected as temporary officers of the telephone company and also was selected as a trustee when the permanent organization was established, the others being William Moeller and Albert Geske. Hogan Hanson was the father of Leonard Hanson of this city.

Longest Service

Peter Engelstad, left above, and Anton Peterson, pioneer farmers of this community, are credited with the longest periods of official service in the telephone company. Each of them was a member of the official family more than 30 years.

"Underprivileged"

One of the Minneapolis newspapers, generally inclined to be maudlin in its reporting, this week featured a young couple spreading Christmas happiness to several youngsters who were referred to as "underprivileged". We do not wish to detract from the worthiness of the people who were credited with a good deed. May their tribe increase. But we earnestly question the wisdom of publicizing the recipients of a good deed as being "underprivileged".

In the spirit of the Christmas season we might keep in mind the excellent job of reporting in the book of St. Luke in which we are informed about a certain good Samaritan who had occasion to land assistance to a needy brother on the road to Jericho.

We like this story in part because the name of the good Samaritan was not reported. And the fellow who had the misfortune of falling among thieves was not embarrassed by the publicity. It establishes a proper pattern for the reporting of benevolence in all of its many forms.

The youngsters who were publicized as "underprivileged" probably were not helped by the well-intentioned publicity they received.

Degenerating Process

Former President Herbert Hoover thinks a 15 year old youngster is too young to decide for himself what his courses of study shall be. Certainly a normal youth needs a lot of help in making what may be one of the most important decisions of his life.

Parents too often take for granted that their responsibility in this field ends when children are enrolled in high school. They think school authorities will see to it that their child is properly directed in the selection of subjects.

Our educators, however, have been traveling down the road of so-called progressive education, steeped in the theory that Junior should make his own decisions. And normal Juniors choose the easy way.

This probably is the thing that is most wrong with our system of education today. Much of the product of our high schools is not qualified to enter high-standard colleges. Too many of the graduates enter colleges that admit any student who possesses a high school diploma, which no longer is a certificate of achievement. They continue to pursue the easy way and in too many instances become the next crop of teachers.

Unfortunately the state itself is the worst offender in this degenerating process. Most of our private colleges maintain a reasonably high standard. Because they must operate within their limited plant capacities they are selective.

Wanted More Dentists

The Grand Rapids Herald-Review presents a rather discouraging picture on the prospect for adequate dental service in the future. It points out that while it is difficult now to get an appointment with a dentist, it is likely to be a great deal more difficult in a few years. The number of dentists per capita is steadily shrinking, the always reliable Herald-Review tells us.

The editorial quotes Dr. William H. Crawford, dean of the University of Minnesota school of dentistry, to the effect that many more dentists are needed and that there are more young people who wish to take the course than facilities for teaching will permit. Then follows the usual argument for the need for a great expansion at the University.

The figures on past production, however, do not justify the hope that making the University bigger is going to increase the output proportionately. Oevr a period of years we have seen the University double in size, but regardless of size, the enrollment in professional schools seems to remain fairly constant. For instance, for the ten year period ending with the class of 1930, enrollment in the school of dentistry averaged 376.8 a year. For the decade ending in 1940 this annual enrollment dropped to an average of 260.4. During the ten years ending with the class of 1950 the annual average bounced back to 340.8; and for the six years ending in 1956 the average was 359. The number of graduates, which we have published in previous issues, followed quite closely the attendance pattern.

It might be argued that the school of dentistry has been neglected and that therefore the figures on enrollment in dentistry do not properly indicate the great strides the University has been making. Unfortunately, from the standpoint of such an argument, the figures for the school of dentistry follow about the same pattern as the figures for such other professional schools as medicine, pharmacy and law. The output of the school of business administration has more that doubled and redoubled during that period of time. Business administration has not yet organized on the closed shop plan.

Statistics indicate quite clearly that the lzed professions are concerned, has been lzed profession s are concerned, has been operated in the interests of the professions rather than in the interest of the public. If we may use the pattern of past performance as a guide to future probabilities, the public will not be benefited by doubling once again the size of the University.

The records also indicate clearly that average annual production of the schools of dentistry, medicine, pharmacy and law, could be greatly increased without expanding the present facilities.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Grand Forks VA office.

Q—My uncle, a totally disabled World War I veteran, is in a rest home. I am taking care of all the expenses. He is getting a VA pension, since his disability is not service-connected. In computing his annual income, must he include the money I pay to the home for his upkeep?

A—No. Money which you pay to the home to cover his maintenance is not to be considered as income for VA pension purposes.

Q—I want to go to college under the Korean GI Bill, but not to get a degree. On my application form, what should I put down as my course of study?

A—You must list all the subjects you plan to take, which make up your program of education.

Q—I understand that special restorative training is available under the War Orphans Education program to handicapped young men and women in need of it. Does this restorative training also include medical care?

A—No. Special restorative training does not include medical care. It does include special courses—such as braille reading, language retraining and the like—designed to help a person overcome his handicap so that eventually he can take regular training at school.

Q—I want to change the beneficiaries of my GI insurance policy. Must I notify my present beneficiaries that I am making a change?

issued an ultimatum to the Tri-State Company to "provide better serve or none at all."

Another old-timer, Hans Anton, became an official in the company when he was elected vice president in 1915. In 1918 Tobias Steene became secretary, an office he held a long time, and in 1919 S. O. Lee was elected president. Henry Koop was elected vice president in 1920.

An interesting side light of that 1920 meeting was the recognition of the fact that the official name of the incorporated company was Farmers Mutual Telephone Company of Red Lake County. The name had not been changed when Pennington county seceded from Red Lake county in 1910. At the 1921 meeting steps were taken to change the name and in 1922 the company became the Farmers Mutual Telephone Company of Pennington County officially.

In 1925 Lee declined re-election as president and he was succeeded by S. E. Hunt who served until 1931 when J. R. Larson was elected. He in turn was followed by H. I. Finstad in 1942 when Fred Koop became vice president, Mons Englestad secretary-treasurer and John Gran manager. That brings us down to current history.

The 20's were extremely difficult years for the management, the minute book reveals. That was the decade of bank failures and mortgage foreclosures and dollars were hard to get. It became necessary to stop service for many of the members and in several instances court action was resorted to in order to collect bills and maintain the solvency of the company. It evidently was not easy to make both ends meet during those years of sow thistles, low prices and poor service.

The members are getting good service and do not want it interrupted. The company is in a strong financial position and the cost of service is reasonable.

Collections are no longer a problem.

With the dial system eight members is the maximum on a party line and a phone call no longer serves as a general alarm thruout the community.

There will be no official recognition of the 50th anniversary of the organization on Saturday, Mons Engelstad states. The an*nual meeting will be held next* summer, however, and he is hopeful that there will be special recognition of the occasion at that time. With the state celebrating its 100th birthday in 1958, a 50th anniversary celebration by the community's oldest telephone company would be very much in order.

Egg Producers

U. S. market experts predict egg prices will continue at profitable levels through 1958.

It will pay you to keep your laying flock in top laying condition by putting them on a good quality, high energy laying ration now and keep them on it all the way through. A flock in good condition should average 75% production for the first year which means they would have to lay 85 to 90% in their peak production period and would taper off to 60 to 70% the last half of the year.

You can't get this kind of production out of low energy, high fiber feeds with reduced calorie content and poor quality protein. It takes a feed with a constant high level of all essential ingredients to keep a flock in full production clear through the end of the laying year.

Why don't you let us help you get the most out of your laying flock by furnishing you with the kind of feeding program which will be most profitable for you.

You will be pleasantly surprised how reasonably priced our high quality, high energy and high colorie laying rations are. STOP IN AND SEE US ABOUT IT SOON

68 Hunters Shot, 12 Killed in '57 Seasons

During the 1957 hunting season on deer, pheasants, duck and grouse 68 hunters were shot as compared to 66 for 1956 according to a report just released by Lee Kuluvar, state firearms safety coordinator. The death toll was up 4 and this year 12 hunters died as a result of wounds compared to 8 last season. Six of these killed themselves and 6 were shot by others. Twenty-two shot themselves and 46 were shot by others. "This bears out previous findings that about one-third of the wounds are self inflicted," Kuluvar said.

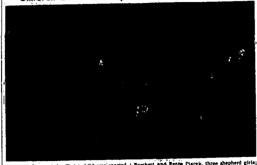
The report points out that by taking a three year comparison '54-'56 to '51-'53, because it was in 1954 when the state started an intensified hunting safety campaign, some interesting facts have been revealed. In that comparison there was an over all reduction of 28 deaths and yet a 20,000 increase in license holders. The previous average was 16 deaths per year in the 4 main game species, so while this year 12 deaths is up from last year it is still below this previous average.

The report reveals that just as many people are killed and wounded each year outside of the main hunting areas. Miscellaneous hunting and shooting account for this toll. It is estimated that close to 750,000 people handle guns during the year in Minnesota. This means the involvement percentage is very low and hunting and shooting are relatively safe. However, knowing that there is negligence in 95% of these accidents and that they are all a result of human error which has been more prevalent in youth and the inexperienced, the state now has a youth firearms safety training program in full swing. The program has now completed training 40,000 youths.

Kuluvar pointed out that this is the first fall the new uniform casualty reporting system has been used under the enabling legislation of the last session. This new system requiring the county sheriffs to report all gun accidents to the commissioner of conservation promises to give more reliable data. An evaluation of the results of the new training program will also be possible.

Actually, the trained youths did very well this fall. In the 4 areas only 3 were involved and 2 of these were innocent victims. An important finding also showed that only 32% of those involved were 16 years or under as compared to 47% last year. Therefore, this year actually saw a 15% reduction of youthful accidents and a 15% increase in adult involvement.

Children Enact Nativity in Northrop School Play



The adoration of the Christ-child was enacted by these pupils at the Northrop School Christmas play Tuesday morning. Also taking part in the program were children in the various classes, who sang carols. Shown here are Nancy Olson, Julie Borchert and Renee Piacek, three shepherd girls; Mark Peterson and Linda Magnusson, father and mother shepherds, and Dale Seefeldt, Ellsworth Senum and John Larson, three wise men. The program was directed by Mrs. Robert Jacobson, elementary school music director.

The Best 'Gift' of All Is Safety on the Road

Since Christmas is the season for giving, Jeanne Smith, Dodge Motors safety consultant, has prepared a list of "gifts" that motorists can give themselves and other drivers.

Here are her suggestions for the "gift" of all—a safe and happy holiday season.

1. Give the other fellow on the highway the right of way when there's doubt at an intersection.
2. Give other drivers the courtesy of lowered headlight beams when you meet them after dark.
3. Give pedestrians the same break you would expect if you were on foot.
4. Give your car a break, too. Check brakes, lights, tires, defrosters, and windshield wipers.
5. Give yourself, as a driver, additional time for traveling when road and weather conditions are hazardous.
6. Give yourself more space between your car and the one ahead on slippery pavement, and adjust your speed to give yourself better control of your vehicle on snowpacked or icy highways.
7. Give your passengers the comfortable feeling that they are riding with a safe driver.

VA Makes Ruling on Disability Pay

Severance Pay Must Be Returned in Some Cases

Disability severance pay from the armed forces will be recovered by the government if the veteran is awarded Veterans Administration compensation for the same disability.

That's the warning sounded today by W. B. Carroll, Manager of the VA regional office in Fargo, North Dakota.

In these cases, he said, the law requires that VA monthly compensation payments revert to the government until the amount recovered is equal to the amount of severance pay the veterans received.

Recovery of severance pay by the government begins only after VA compensation has been awarded, Carroll emphasized. He said recovery cannot be avoided by allowing a time lapse between discharge and date of application for VA compensation.

Authorized in 1949, disability severance pay may be paid in a lump sum upon discharge of an active duty member of the Armed Forces whose line-of-duty disability renders him unfit for duty, but which is less than 30 percent in degree and therefore does not entitle him to disability retired pay from the service.

It is paid at the rate of two months' pay for each year of active service, up to a maximum of 12 years (24 months' pay).

Traffic Deaths for State Rising

65 Deaths Are Recorded in Month of November

Minnesota's traffic fatality rate for 1957 continued to climb following a record high of 65 deaths on streets and highways during November. For the first time this year, the rate of deaths per 100 million vehicle miles exceeded the rate for 1956.

The death rate for the 11 months this period reached 5.2 per 100 million vehicle miles, compared to a year end rate of 5.1 for 1956, and an average of 5.26 for the previous five years.

The 65 fatalities, the highest November total in the post World War II years, brought the 1957 total to 622, also the highest 11 month total during the same eleven month period. Only in 1953 did the total for the first eleven months go over 600 as the 64 deaths in November of that year brought the total for the period to 604.

The highway department estimates that the 1957 total will rise above any previous year as the number of traffic accidents continues to stay ahead of previous years. There were eight months during 1957 in which traffic fatalities were more than last year, and nine months that were more than the average of the previous five years. With the per cent change for the comparable periods ranging from plus eight to plus 11, department officials are hopeful that the final figure will stay below 670, a figure reached by adding the 11 month total of 622 to the five year average for December (48).

A suspension bridge, requiring four years to construct, will be built across the Straits of the Bosporus to connect Europe and Asia. It will cost $30 million.

Old License Tags to Reflectorize County Highways

License Office to Be Donated to Counties By Secretary of State

Governor Orville L. Freeman has outlined a program of county-state cooperation which will enable rural counties and townships to make their roads safer at almost no cost to the taxpayers.

The governor presented his program for improving signs on rural roads to Minnesota's county engineers at their annual Institute which was held at the University of Minnesota Center for Continuation Study recently.

He pointed out the need for better signing on rural roads by explaining that 433 of the 587 traffic deaths which occurred in Minnesota during the first 10 months of this year happened on rural roads.

"Many of these terrible accidents would not have happened," he declared, "if all of Minnesota's rural roads had been adequately equipped with warning and regulation signs."

Governor Freeman offered a novel solution to the problem of reflectorizing rural roads. He suggested that county engineers use pieces of surplus license plates to mark curves, turns and dangerous spots. He explained that Secretary of State Joseph Donovan has 23 tons of used license plates that are coated with fine reflective material in good condition. These will be given to counties and towns for marking roads.

The Minnesota Highway department experimented with license plate reflectors to mark curves on a rural township road in Hennepin county and reported that the plates worked much better than expected.

SPORTSMAN'S STORE

THE WINDOW

There is a store that is displaying this scene of Christ's birth in all its beautiful simplicity.

People walk by the window and stop and look—and when they go on again the tired lines seem to be erased from their faces. For the moment, they have forgotten the "hustle and bustle" of holiday preparations. Instead, the peace of Christmas drifts over them like the softly falling snow.

Look at those beautifully carved figures and at that tiny babe. Makes you realize, doesn't it, that Christmas after all, is the birth day of our Lord, and should be celebrated first of all where most birthdays are celebrated—at home. In this case, that means the Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota

Every other Thursday the conservation at our dinner table is much the same. It starts as it did this evening, when I said, "I've got to write a column tonight and I don't have the slightest notion what to write about."

David, (age 13), "Tell 'em how you tried to set muskrat traps from a canoe and fell head-first into the ice water".

John, (age 15), "Or about nearly getting kicked out of high school for skipping nine days for duck hunting!"

Emmy Lou (age—well, she's my wife), "It's near Christmas".

John, "Write about reindeer".

Emmy Lou, "How about a nice story on wild turkeys".

Well, now, it just happens that I had an experience with wild turkeys about ten years ago which taught me a great deal. I learned some about turkeys but mostly about sportsmen and the absolutely ridiculous things for which they sometimes ask.

At the time I was in charge of game research and habitat development in South Dakota. A certain sportsmen's club had, for several years, been hounding the department to stock wild turkeys in the Black Hills. Everyone figured they would drop the silly notion in time—but not so. In fact, they became so persistent that my superiors decided to get turkeys—convinced, I'm sure, that it was a futile thing into which they were being pushed.

I was convinced it was a waste of time and money, but obediently started gathering turkey publications and corresponding with turkey experts throughout the country. It soon was learned that we should get the Merriam, or western, turkey rather than the eastern species. The more I studied about turkeys and about the Black Hills habitat the more apparent it became that it was at least remotely possible that these birds could survive in South Dakota.

Well, the administrators learned that Colorado and New Mexico had the kind of turkeys we wanted, and one of these states needed catfish and the other, sage grouse, so a trade was made and the persistent sportsmen got their turkeys in the Black Hills.

The result is legend. These turkeys not only survived, they laid eggs, raised young, spread out and gobbled all over the place. People not only got to see wild turkeys—they got to shoot some of them.

So this little Christmas story has a moral to it. In fact, being Christmas you can use it to prove any one of the following: Sportsmen are always right; game and fish departments do nothing good unless pushed into it; or sportsmen fuss long and loud enough they get what they want.

I learned, and shall not forget, that every recommendation is worthy of serious consideration. Good ideas can come from anywhere. But please don't ask for wild turkeys to be stocked in Minnesota because this project already has been started. Thirty-seven of the best eastern turkeys were purchased in Pennsylvania and released in Whitewater Refuge several months ago.

A Merry Christmas to them and to you.

Edwin Ellefs[illegible] Loses His L[illegible] Mishap Earl[illegible] day

The third fatal [illegible] in the Middle River area [illegible] than a year claimed the [illegible] a Middle River TV repairman and school bus driver over the past week-end.

Edwin Ellefson, 49, was dead on arrival at Northwestern Hospital, where he had been brought by Collins Ambulance Service of Middle River, Marshall county Deputy Sheriff Mylo Sorenson reported today.

Ellefson's fatal injuries were the result of a one-car accident on a dead-end road near Middle River about 12:15 a. m. Sunday, Sorenson stated. The road, actually Second st. in Middle River intersects S.A.R. 6 which runs east and west, and apparently Ellefson ran over it.

The Ellefson accident occurred at the identical spot where a southern Minnesota hunting party had a similiar accident about six weeks earlier this year, according to Sorenson.

There were no witnesses to the accident and the wreckage and Ellefson were discovered by occupants of a car that came by shortly afterwards Sorenson said. Whether he died instantly or enroute to the hospital in unknown. He was alone in the car at the time of the accident.

In addition to Ellefson's death, Arne Rantanen, prominent Middel River farmer was killed near Middle River in January, and Frank Halme, farmer and businessman of that city, died in a collision with a gasoline truck on highway 32 in late March.

Ellefson is survived by his wife and five children, Sorenson stated.

In another one-car accident in northwestern Minnesota the past weekend Otto C. Pearson, 66, Hallock, was killed instantly when his car rolled over on State highway 75, two miles south of Hallock about 7:45 a. m. Sunday.

Exact cause of Pearson's death is unknown and the case was still under investigation by the highway patrol today, according to patrol headquarters here.

Two County 4-H'rs Win Dairy Awards

Billy Svendsgaard and Raymond Nelson Honored

Two Pennington County 4-H'ers have received recognition for dairy achievements, it was announced today by County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Billy Svendsgaard, 18, a 4-H member of the Mavie 4-H club has been named a state winner of a cash award presented by the National Dairy Products Corporation. Bill has a long record of competition and achievement in 4-H work. The award is based on achievements in the dairying project. Bill has shown cattle at Dairy Day, county fair and state fair, and has served on the county 4-H dairy team which last year took top honors at the Crookston winter shows.

In his nine years of club work Bill has completed thirty-five projects and has received several major awards. He is now attending Bemidji State college. Bill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Svendsgaard of Cloverleaf township.

Another 4-H'er who has received state recognition is Raymond Nelson, 17, of the Silverton 4-H club. He has been presented a cash award through the courtesy of Colgate-Palmolive Company for his dairy demonstration work. Ray has been a 4-H club member for seven years and has a fine record of service and achievement. He has completed twenty-five projects.

Ray won honors in his dairy foods demonstration at the Winter Shows at Crookston last year and has exhibited dairy cattle at Dairy Day, county fair and state fair, and has received major 4-H awards.

Nelson and Svendsgaard both have assisted their clubs with various activities and have served as junior leaders for several years which is an important criterion for state recognition and awards.

Cap 17 Student Nurses at Ceremony Friday

A sizeable gathering of friends and relatives was on hand at the capping of 17 student practical nurses held Friday evening in the cafeteria of the area vocational school.

This was the largest group to be capped in the history of the school and the first capping ceremony held in the new school building.

Chest Drive Is Winding up Short of Goal

May Not Come Close to Quota of $12,500, Secretary Reports

Prospects of meeting the $12,500 goal of the 1957 Pennington county Community Chest drive look pretty bleak according to the way contributions have been coming in to date, Harold Storhaug, Chest sec'y-treasurer said today.

With the campaign well over the half-way mark a total of $5864.75 has been banked, Storhaug said. With approximately the same percentages turned in the same time last year the Chest had considerably more turned in.

If the remainder of the campaign goes as it has been going, Storhaug stated, he estimated the drive will fall about $2000 shy of the 1956 goal and nearly twice that much short of this year's goal.

Contributions to date from the business, governmental offices and industrial drives totals $4343.15 with approximately 50 per cent of those drives complete.

However, this figure may improve considerably when the money from the governmental offices drive is turned in. Only a minute portion of this money has been turned in to date, Storhaug said. This is $420 shy of the amount turned in at the comparable time in the 1956 drive.

The rural drive, also about 50 per cent complete, is $305 short of the comparable time last year, with $309 reported in to date.

The best returns to date came from the residential drive, which is virtually complete with $1192.50 reported in.

County Champion Gardener Chosen

Mary Ann Lendobeja of Kratka 4-H Club Named

This year's 4-H champion horticulturist in Pennington county is Mary Ann Lendobeja, 13 year old member of the Kratka 4-H club. County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk announced that Mary Ann was selected for the outstanding work she has done in gardening projects during the year.

In recognition of her horticultural achievements, Mary Ann will receive the Minnesota State Horticultural Society's county champion horticulturist certificate, as well as a year's membership in the society. The award will be made at the next 4-H Leaders Council meeting held in January.

In her five years of 4-H work Mary Ann has completed 40 4-H projects and has given demonstrations on horticultural subjects at 4-H clubs, leaders council, county fair and for several years at the state fair where she was awarded blue ribbons.

This is the second year she has received state recognition for work in horticulture. Mary Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lendobeja who farm in Kratka township.

Visitor Here Tells of Life in East Germany

A tale of human tragedy, misery and proverty in two wars and under Communist rule was told here last week by a guest at the home of a local resident.

Mrs. Lydia Guhr, a cousin of Mrs. Frank Strang, is visiting in America for the first time and while here she related particulars of life in East Germany from the period before World War I until the present.

Mrs. Guhr, a plainly, although neatly dressed elderly woman, was interviewed through Mrs. Strang, since she speaks no English. She flew to the U. S., arriving at Grand Rapids, where her brother, Otto Zwingelberg lives, Nov. 29. It was only through him that she was able to come at all, since he sent her a round-trip airline ticket.

Mrs. Guhr, with her parents and family, at one time lived in Russia proper, she said. Before the first World War the Russians under the Czarist regime invited the Germans into Russia to develop territory and her father was a Russian citizen.

That all changed after the Bolsheviks took over in the terrible year of the revolution. Mrs. Guhr told of being seperated from members of her family for up to six years, even then learning that their loved ones were alive only through writing to relatives in America. After 1917 most of Mrs. Guhr's family returned to Germany. Her home is now at Gangloffsommern, Grues-

German Guest Admires Yule Tree

Although Christmas trees originated in Germany Mrs. Lydia Guhr says there are very few of them to be seen in East Germany under Communist rule.

Mrs. Guhr is shown here admiring the tree at the Frank Strang home, where she was a guest from Monday until Friday last week. She was also amazed that homes were so warm here, after being told it was so cold during Minnesota winters. (Story elsewhere in this issue of the Times.)

Planning Committee Recommends Sewer Project on West Side

Supt. Irwin Mickelson of the Thief River Falls schools appeared before the Street Planning Committee Thursday with a request to have the committee place the matter of a storm sewer on the West side on the agenda, particularly in the area adjacent to the Washington and Lincoln schools.

Engineer Douglas Stewart informed the committee that the state highway department was concerned about the drainage problem relative to the relocation of Highway 1 on 3rd street. A modified drainage program would be a must, but the committee should study the advisability of a modified program which would be inadequate over a period of years and possibly involve two separate projects, Stewart said.

For the record it was brought out that considerable damage had occurred in individual homes from flooded basements from time to time as well as in the schools and in the Hartz Wholesale buildings.

Engineer Stewart reviewed the costs as set forth in a previous plan drawn up for this area and projected these costs to the present increased prices.

The committee instructed the engineer to bring plans up to date so as to be able to advise the council and interested parties, and it was agreed to recommend to the city council that the entire area be included in a storm sewer project designed to coincide with state highway plans and plans dictated by the regulations laid down by the new law passed in 1957 referred to as Amendment No. 2.

It was proposed that the city council make a portion of the state aid funds available for the storm sewer project and subsequent projects. An adequate street project can only be accomplished by first planning adequate drainage, it was pointed out.

The problem of accomplishing a street building program on 4th street from Atlantic to Main was again brought up. This project appeared to be tied in with a sewer project referred to as the 8th street drainage project.

The condition of 4th street, especially during spring and after rains made this project appear to be a priority one. After discussion it appeared that proper timing would allow the accomplishment of the 8th street project and the 4th street paving

Unable to Forecast If Flax Disease Will Hit This Area in '58

Whether aster yellows will again hurt flax in this area can not be predicted, according to county agent Paul Stelmaschuk. Aster yellows is the disease which caused extensive damage to the flax crop in 1957 and in some instances completely wiped out the flax crop.

Aster yellows is spread by the six-spotted leaf hopper, states Stelmaschuk. This hopper is the only carrier of the disease in this area. If hoppers feed on infested plants for one hour, less than one percent will carry the disease. But if hoppers feed on infested plants twelve hours, 75 per cent of them will carry the disease.

After the virus which causes aster yellows incubates in the hopper for two weeks or more it may be passed on to other flax plants.

Leaf hoppers are able to overwinter in southern Minnesota but most of them move in over the summer months from Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas. As the grain ripens the hoppers move northward. By the end of June the hoppers are in the area.

Last year the late seeded flax fields got hit hardest, so early seeding of flax with fertilization to speed maturity would be useful, says Stelmaschuk. Spraying for leaf hoppers is difficult since accurate prediction of infestation on a particular day is not possible. Once an infested six spotted leaf-hopper has eaten on a plant, it has introduced the virus. Greater amount of spraying for insect control with sprays having longer toxic effects, such as toxaphene, may be beneficial. Area wide insect control to prevent leaf-hopper movements seem to be beneficial, Stelmaschuk added.

BY Mack Draper

Christmas is a pretty time of year. It also is an unusual time of year when good feeling is higher than at any other time of year. This good feeling generally lasts right on through the New Year. Then, shortly after that, folks begin figuring up their taxes. And from then on we're back in the same old rut we managed to slip out of a few weeks before Christmas.

Folks around here would prefer a white Christmas and we've heard no end of comment that it just won't seem like Christmas without snow.

Just what snow has to do with Christmas we aren't certain. It is very doubtful if there was snow in Palestine at the time Christ was born. In fact, some historians seem to think we're actually celebrating the wrong day as Christ's birthday.

That's neither here nor there—as long as we've picked Dec. 25 as the day to observe as His birthday. OK, since we're not sure of the date.

But, about this snow business; well, with snow we get cold weather. And in times like these we just can't think of a better Christmas present than a reduced fuel bill.

Custom is custom, though. No doubt this white Christmas stuff started in a country where it was the usual thing to have snow at Yuletide. Then, the Santa Claus legend started, Irving Berlin writes a song called "White Christmas," and now it doesn't REALLY seem like Christmas without snow.

Down in our neck of the woods (Virginia, we mean) a white Christmas was thought of as a nice touch for the holiday season. But, white Christmases were the exception.

As likely as not it was a pleasant day with temperatures well above freezing.

On Christmas Eve we used to shoot fireworks. (OK, so that is a strange way to celebrate—or is it?) and it's just possible that some of the menfolks would go hunting quail or cottontail rabbits Christmas morning.

One thing we've noticed more and more in recent years. The campaign to put Christ back in Christmas is apparently a big success, from the viewpoint of spelling, at least.

One seldom sees the word "Xmas" used nowadays.

One of the nicer aspects of newspaper work is that one meets very interesting people. This week we were privileged to met a lady, Mrs. Guhr from East Grmany, from whom we learned a great deal about life under the Communistic regime.

The story in today's times doesn't even begin to do justice to her story of what's going on behind the Iron Curtain.

The point is, though, that we Americans don't realize just how good we have it here.

In fact, it wouldn't hurt us if we turned Christmas into a day of Thanksgiving for the many good things we have, as much as a season when Pop worries about going in hock to buy presents, and the rest of us scurry around like crazy, giving Pop good cause to worry.

Still, the Yule season generates a lot of good will—who knows, perhaps some day there'll be enough generated to last all year.

We wish you and yours the very best of everything this glad season for, despite all the prattle here, we like Christmas just as much as you do.

and still allow time for the West side project. A study of available funds would have to be made, however, and would be the regulating factor. The committee instructed Engineer Stewart to draw preliminary plans.

Police Studying Three Break-ins

Big Haul Obtained at Sjoberg's Appliance

Investigation of three break-ins here during the month of December is still under way, Police Chief Elton Cummings reported today, although he made no statement as to progress thus far.

The outbreak of burglaries and attempted burglaries started in the city Dec. 6, when a quantity of small change was taken from Flom's Grocery. A window was broken to gain entry.

Nothing was taken from the Farmers Elevator when it was broken into Dec. 9 but considerable damage was done to office contents in the burglar or burglars' search of the premises for items of value or money.

Greatest loss was sustained by Sjoberg's Appliance when that firm was robbed Dec. 11. A considerable amount of merchandise was taken, believed to amount to several hundred dollars in value.

Fire Department Turns over Toys to Salvation Army

The Thief River Falls fire department last week-end turned over to the Salvation Army a large collection of toys contributed by local citizens and renovated by the firemen. Chief Roy Langevin stated that the toys would be distributed by the Army staff along with Christmas baskets of food given to needy families of this and surrounding communities.

Krelho 4-H Club

Our 4-H Christmas program was held December 11 at the town hall. The light bulbs were distributed to each family to sell. Demonstrations at the Crookston Winter Shows were discussed.

The following Christmas program was given: A greeting by Wayne Tieman, "Christmas Everywhere" was read by Richard Johnson; "Everwhere Christmas Tonight" by Kay Koglin, "Christmas Tree" by Mary Ann Lendobeja; reading by Myles Olson; saxophone selections by Stanley Olson; song "Jesus" by Angelea Mickleson; "Winter" by David Parnow; "At Christmas" by Richard Parnow; "Stockings" by Peral Lendobeja and a song "Silent Night" by all. Treats were then given by the club.

St. Hilaire 4-H Club

The S. Hilaire 4-H Club December meeting was held in the councilroom, Thursday evening in the form of a Christmas party. The program consisted of Christmas carols led by Gloria Haugen, after which a thank-you card was given by Arlys Swenson. Piano solo by Sharon Olson; poem by Joan Moothart. Demonstration "How to Display Christmas Cards" by Susan Lindquist. Mrs. Corbet then gave a Christmas idea; poem by Marion Swenson. A report on the dental health conference was given by Sharon Olson and Diane Moothart.

Marlan Roland read a poem; a demonstration on "Christmas Candle Displays" by Sharon Olson; poems by Sharon Yonke and Susan Lindquist. Mr. Charleston then gave two prizes. Leland Pearson was the winner of a dollar, which was the boys prize and Linda Wik won a chest filled with candy for the girls. Gifts were exchanged and games played. Lunch was served by Mrs. Moothart and Mrs. Olson.

Beef and Sheep

Last Tuesday, the latest information in livestock feeding of sheep and beef was discussed by farmers in Thief River Falls. Some of the rations and management practices mentioned at the meeting should be emphasized even more strongly.

A sheep testing program in Wisconsin, under similar conditions as we have in Northern Minnesota showed the top twenty-seven percent of the sheep farmers averaged twenty eight dollars and fifty cents income per ewe. The highest individual had a forty-four dollar income per ewe. In his particular case he had over a 150 per cent lamb crop and sold at the top market value of $28.50 for lambs.

Although these conditions do not always prevail it is at least reasonable to expect a good income from sheep in this area. Two farmers in this area have began keeping mutton and wool yields per ewe and in the future local figures will be available for income on a per ewe basis. A good testing program of weighing the fleece at shearing and the lamb at about 110 days is a valuable asset to sheep producers. Forms for this purpose are available at the extension office.

Sheep can be fattened on a good legume pasture but seldom can they put on top finish on wild grasses or blue grass the food value in these grasses deteriorates after June.

Oats and rape are good sheep pastures seed into oats at the rate of two bushels and rape at five pounds per acre. Rye is also a good pasture feed. These feeds can be used in July, August, and September when other grasses begin to give poor yields and sheep gains.

A sheep requires six to seven pounds of grain for one pound of gain in the feed lot. So farmers buying lambs at 60 to 70 pounds will need 180 to 280 pounds of grain per lamb to put them on the market at 100 pounds. Many different rations are available which will give good gains in the feed lot. Barley can be used successfully in fattening sheep and beef.

30 milligrams of aureomycin per day will prevent death losses in the feed lot. This is an effective control for over eating disease and this should be considered as well as the vaccination.

The discussion on beef feeding and sheep management will be continued in the next column.

Crookston Quint Bows to Prowlers 65 to 54

Dave Rasmussen dropped a lay-up shot into the south basket in the opening seconds of play and the Prowlers gained a lead which never relinquished as they defeated the Crookston Pirates, 65 to 54, in a district and Northwest conference game played at Crookston on Friday night.

The game concluded the pre-holiday schedule for Prowlers, and coach Al Adams squad will remain out of action until Saturday, Jan. 4th, when the Ada Vikings will meet the locals on the high school court.

Following Rasmussen's game-opening basket, Mert Fish tallied a Crookston free throw, and then Dave Hanson scored a Prowler free throw, Mickey Hanson loped in a two-pointer on a jump shot, and Dave Hanson added three points on a field goal and a free throw, giving the Prowlers an 8 to 1 lead.

The Prowlers, playing a strong game in the cramped confinement of the small Crookston floor, maintained a seven or eight point lead over the Pirates with the exception of brief flurry in the opening minutes of the third period when Crookston pared the lead to [illegible].

Crookston's Jerry Solheim, with four field goals and a pair of free throws, kept the Pirates in contention in the first half. And in the second half, forward Jerry Dehm, hitting with uncanny accuracy from the corners, dropped in eight field goals, and added one free throw, for a 17-point performance.

For the Prowlers, center Dave Hanson gave his best exhibition to date, the six-foot five-inch center tallied thirteen field goals and five free throws, to easily post the game's high scoring effort. Hanson proved very effective in garnering the rebounds off the offensive board, and he moved real well in maneuvering for position around the lane.

Forward Phil Hanson scored twelve first half points, and then, carrying four personals, he "sat out" most of the second half.

Jim Bennes, although scoring but one field goal, was accurate from the free throw line—dropping in five of six attempts, and he was an efficient rebounder in clearing the defensive board.

At this time one relative is in Siberia and writes frequently of life there. It is possible for those sent to Siberia to maintain contact with those outside now, since Stalin's death, she said.

Although most of the East Germans don't care for Communists or Communism, Mrs. Guhr said conditions there are fairly tolerable now. All Germans hope for the reuniting of the country but those in East Germany, she emphasized, would rather maintain their present status under the Communists than endure another war, which might destroy everything.

Only through another war could the country be united, they feel.

Mrs. Guhr lives on a 30-acre farm with a son, his wife and two children. From this small plot they manage, by hard work and good management, to raise enough to satisfy the Communist government quota, in addition to having enough left over to sell and feed themselves.

They raise wheat, rye, potatos, sugar beets and have a large garden on the small farm. In addition, they have four cows, some hogs, poultry and other livestock, for which they must provide food. Life is very austere but the hard workers make out after a fashion, and eat very well as a rule, Mrs. Guhr said. The lazy or improvident find life very rough, however, she said.

Because they raise sugar beets they manage to do a little better than most East Germans, who get a ration of only one pound of sugar a month per person, she stated. Also rationed is coal—her family gets 1¼ tons to last a whole winter.

As a result, she said, only one room in the home is heated and that is where the family lives and eats. It also accounts for the reason they are forced to wear such heavy clothing much of the time, and she was told to bring the same along to Minnesota since the two climates are comparable.

Other items are also available only at certain times of the year and if they don't get them when they are offered they do without until these items are put on the market later.

Although the Communists broke up many large estates and distributed the land among the poorer people, the people had little or nothing to eat until they could raise a crop and life was very harsh. She said they nearly starved then.

It makes no difference to the government there whether a family has enough to eat after paying the government its quota of each crop raised, Mrs. Guhr said. Many don't have anything left after giving the government its share—and suffer accordingly.

Conditions are much better since the death of Stalin, both in East Germany and in Russia, Mrs. Guhr said. For one thing the Russians can now have worship services in the few churches they have left. Not all denominations have such freedom but generally those denominations which can hold worship are very cooperative with each other and are very thankful for even those few privileges. The East Germans never had a complete loss of freedom to worship.

She said going from East Germany to West Germany is like going into an altogether different country. In East Germany the shop windows are pretty bare, the cities are plain and still contain ruins from the war and life is a somber affair, whereas, in West Germany the cities are built up in very modern fashion where the ruins have been cleaned up, the shop windows are full of fine, new merchandise, the people are happy and gay and life, in general, is pretty wonderful.

In addition to her brother, Otto Zwingelberg, in Grand Rapids, Mrs. Guhr has a daughter living at Sioux Lookout, Ont. Canada. In Germany she has four sons, in addition to the one she lives with, and another daughter. The other sons live in cities and are doing fairly well, she stated.

Mrs. Guhr, asked what she thinks of the Russians, didn't have a great deal to say except that most Germans wish they'd go back to Russia—and stay there forevermore. Fortunately, she said, Russians are to be found only in the larger cities. Their overseers are German, she stated.

She could get a permit from the Communist government to stay only 90 days in the U.S. although the U.S. consulate generously gave her a permit to stay a full year if she could get the time from her government.

She said she had had a very exciting trip so far and that she wasn't looking forward to going back so soon. She went to Sioux Lookout with the Strangs to visit her daughter there and while in Canada plans to try to have her stay here extended.

3 Hit-run Collisions Reported to Police

Hit-run collisions accounted for half the accidents reported by city police over the past weekend, with a total of six mishaps resulting in well over $900 estimated damages.

Thursday was the worst day, accident-wise, with half the six mishaps occurring in the afternoon that day. The first was that reported to police by Leland E. Nelson, who said his car was struck by a hit-run driver as it was parked in front of his home at 721 Horace av. N. Considerable damage to the left rear fender resulted, with no accurate estimate available.

At 12:27 p.m. Fred Brandvold, city, was driving out of the alley by the Red Owl parking lot, onto W. Second st. when he was hit broadside by a car driven by Leo H. Nelson, city. No injuries were reported but damages were estimated at $350 to the Brandvold car and $300 to the Nelson car. Brandvold was tagged for failure to yield right-of-way, police said.

Alfred Offerdahl, city, was driving west on E. Third st. near the Soo depot and turned out to get in the outside traffic lane and as he did so was struck by a car driven by Loraine Rux, city, who was driving in the same direction as Offerdahl. About $30 total damage resulted from the minor collision.

Dec. 20 about 2:45 p.m. a hit-run driver caused about $40 damage to the left-rear fender of a 1954 Oldsmobile belonging to Duane C. Lawrence, a city man home on leave from the navy. The Lawrence car was parked in the 300 block of Kneale av. N. when struck, he told police.

C. A. Mercier reported that his car was also hit by an unknown woman driver in a two-tone car as Mercier was parked behind Elaine's Friday evening. About $20 damage was caused to the left door of Mercier's car, he reported. The mishap was reported to police Saturday.

The only mishap reported Saturday occurred about 2:33 p.m. near the Eighth st. Grocery when a car driven east on Eighth st. by Ellen Peterson, city, struck another being driven from a parked position by Victor A. Norquist, city. About $35 damage was estimated caused to the Peterson car and $100 to Norquist's.

The city has been quiet, traffic-wise, since Saturday, with no accidents since, police said.

Mercury Falls after Reaching 34 Sunday

No white Christmas in 1957.

That's the weatherman's decree as of today. He could be wrong but the KTRF forecast mentions no significant precipitation between now and Wednesday so it's pretty definite that Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer will remain in his stable Dec. 24 and old St. Nick will use a new-fangled helicopter instead in making his rounds.

A chill was put on the northwest Minnesota by a mild disturbance late Sunday, which brought light snow and colder temperatures, although the mercury still registered comparatively comfortable readings Monday morning.

High temperatures since Thursday were 37, while Sunday the high was a still-balmy 34. Lows have shown a definite downturn ranging from 23 Thursday to 10 Monday morning. Only a trace of precipitation fell in the form of snow Sunday evening and early Monday.

The forecast is for considerable cloudiness and colder today, with scattered snow flurries in northern Minnesota. Highs today will range from 22 to 32.

It will become partly cloudy and colder tonight and Tuesday with lows from 10 to 18 above zero. Moderate to strong winds from the west or northwest will prevail today, decreasing tonight.

The outlook is for little temperature change Christmas day with no precipitation of importance forecast through that day.

Santa Claus Pays Visit to Children at TRF VFW Post

Santa Claus made a visit to the local VFW post home Saturday when the post together with the auxiliary had open house for the children. Santa Claus interviewed about 125 youngsters at the party, and each child received a bag of candy. The mothers were served cookies and coffee. All the children were thrilled at meeting Santa and will now have to wait until Christmas Eve to get their gifts.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

It's a Fact

Have you paid special note when you have been in attendance at the high school basketball these past few years that whenever the teams get into a time-out or period-end huddle that the smallest person in these huddles is the coach. It's usually a fact.

The physical size of the boys playing basketball these days, in the high school, college and pro ranks, is unbelievable. And the trend toward the sky-scraping type of player will continue, rules or no rules.

For instance, the current edition of the Prowlers, with the starting lineup that opened the game at Crookston on Friday night—Dave, Phil and Mickey Hanson, Jimmy Bennes, and Dave Rasmussen—will average around the six-foot, two-inch mark.

We can recall the days back in the 1920's when a Prowler team that had such players as Chuck Herron, Melford (Kip) LaBree, Craig Halvorson, and Stan Sorenson in the lineup, was rated as a "big" team. And later, around 1935, that Prowlers had a team—Lawrence Nicholson, Gil Mickelson, Jim Van Pelt, Wayne Kielty, Carl Lee, Don Hermanson and Vic Jung—that was termed a college-sized club. By the standards of those days, these Prowler teams were perhaps entitled to be called "big", but they would be giving away inches in height if they were competing these days.

And what is probably more remarkable than the size of the players these days is the grace and coordination that these six-foot plus boys exhibit. They move quickly, and with decision.

Scouting Report

An interesting spectator at the Prowlers vs. Crookston Pirates basketball game at Crookston on Friday night, and complete with notebook and game-chart, was Lowell Bolger. And who's Lowell Bolger? He's the captain of the M.S.T.C. Dragons, and he was taking copious notes of the game for coach Hartick (Shocky) Strand, the Moorhead Spuds cage coach.

Bolger is a former Moorhead high school player, and he hopes that the information that he garnered on Friday night will aid the Spuds in defeating the Prowlers when the two teams meet in a game here on Friday night, Feb. 28th.

As team-mates on the Dragon cage squad, Bolger has such well-known boys as Sherm Moe of Ada, Alden Holte of Halstad, and Al Santwire of Mahnomen. Local high school fans can recall the play of these boys against the Prowlers.

Like Champions

That was encouraging brand of basketball that the Prowlers turned in as they defeated coach Al Droen's Pirates, 65 to 54, on the Crookston floor. With the possible exception of the first two periods of play against the Bemidji Lumberjacks Friday night's effort was the best yet.

The Prowlers usually have their troubles in playing the Pirates on the small Crookston court (incidentally, Crookston's new gymnasium, patterned after the gymnasium at Fergus Falls, is nearing completion, and it will be a dandy), but such wasn't the case on Friday night. The prowlers moved the ball well, and were very strong on clearing the boards. Quite an impressive performance.

Dave Hanson, who has had many fine games as a Prowler, perhaps turned in his best all-round game against the Pirates. Dave, you will recall, was forced to miss the Crookston vs. Prowlers football game last fall, sitting out a training violation, but he surely revenged himself on the Pirates and Ken Wold on Friday night. The game was somewhat of an evener.

Curling Notes

Now that Johnny Oven has transferred out of town, we hear that Donald (Nuts) Myers won't be doing any curling this season. Johnny "carried" Nuts through a couple of successful seasons.

And we hear, too, that Tom Cochrane, an experienced and enthusiastic curler, will be moving out of town shortly. The Cochranes will be residing in Crookston.

Red Lake Indian Band Requests Payment of $100

The general council of the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians voted unanimously at Red Lake recently to requests a $100 per capita payment from its tribal fund in the United States treasury.

The total requests amount to some $340,000, accumulated from profits from the operation of the tribe's sawmill.

The last payment was made in July 1956.

The council also approved the appointment of William [illegible] as chief judge of the Red Lake court of Indian offenses.

Christmas Seals 50 Years Old This Month

Christmas Seals celebrate their 50th birthday this month — December, 1957 — according to Mrs. Earl D. Jensen of Thief River Falls, secretary of the Pennington County Tuberculosis and Health association.

In observance of the 50th anniversary and as a reminder to county people that the 51st annual Christmas Seal sale is now underway to raise funds for the fight against tuberculosis, the Minnesota TB & Health association has reviewed some of the ten year highlights.

In Minnesota in 1917 tuberculosis took 2,354 lives. A total of 5,086 new tuberculosis cases was reported. During the 1920's, Pennington county Christmas Seal funds financed baby, dental, nutritional, infants' and children's, and public health clinics.

Minnesota's TB deaths in 1927 totaled 1,570. There were 3,885 new TB cases reported to the Minnesota department of health. Tuberculin testing in the schools had its start in Pennington county in the early 1930's. More than 1,000 children received health check-ups during a school health survey conducted by Miss Mabel Johnson, Christmas Seal nurse. In 1933, Pennington was accredited for control of tuberculosis in cattle.

In Minnesota in 1937 the tuberculosis deaths had dropped to 912, but there were 3,372 new cases reported. Tuberculin testing in the schools of Pennington county became a regular program during the 1940's. Tests were given by Dr. Baldwin Borreson of Oakland Park sanatorium.

In 1947 Minnesota's deaths continued to decline, and the total for the year was 587. There were 2,870 new TB cases reported. Pennington county had five new cases and two tuberculosis deaths in 1947. School tuberculin testing surveys continued to be major programs. In 1953, the county was accredited for progress in reducing human TB death and infection rates.

In 1957 tuberculosis took 115 lives in Minnesota, and 1,282 new cases were reported. It is estimated that 750,000 Minnesota people are infected with the germs of tuberculosis. Of this number, 37,500 can be expected to have active TB at some time during their lives. The tuberculin reactors are, the potential TB cases for the future.

Last year Pennington county had five new tuberculosis cases and one death reported to the state health department.

"Funds are now needed to finance 1958 TB and health programs," Mrs. Jensen said this week. "Progress has been made, but we have a long way to go before tuberculosis will be defeated in Pennington or in any other Minnesota county."

Santa Warmly Welcomed at Grygla Yule Program

Old St. Nick was a very popular figure when he made his appearance at the Christmas program held at Mar-Bel hall in Grygla Thursday. Shown giving Santa her full attention as he talks to her concerning her gift problems is little Darcy Hector, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hector of Grygla, while other children look on.

The program is an annual event at Grygla and is sponsored by the Grygla volunteer fire department, town businessmen and public-spirited individuals. The program was put on by the Grygla and East schools of District 35 with children from both schools participating.

There was standing room only for the program. In addition to the program, gifts were distributed to all children after they met Santa.

Authorities Will Lead Discussions on 'U' Farm Campus in January, 1958

How farmers can actually "plan" their profits will be explained to visitors at a Jan. 15 session of Farm and Home Week on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota.

Theme of the session will be "Planning for Tomorrow." Seven University agricultural economists will speak at the session, one of 40 general and special meetings during the week on all phases of agriculture and family living.

E. W. Learn will discuss "What's Happening to Farm Income in Minnesota?" and D. F. Fienup will talk on "The Farmer's Stake in a Changing Market."

"Where is Our Foreign Agricultural Trade Headed?" will be the topic for Sherwood Berg, head of the University's agricultural economics department. Principles that farm families can follow in planning the farm business will be pointed out by Truman Nodland.

R. B. Zoller will explain rules to follow in selecting crops and livestock. A U. S. Department of Agriculture economist at the University, L. M. Day, will discuss "Size of Dairy Herd and Costs."

"Managing the Farm of the Future" will be viewed by George Pond.

A related session on "Farm Policy Issues for 1958" will be held Jan 17. At this meeting, W. W. Cochrane, University agricultural economist, will discuss "The Market Control Approach to the Farm Problem." At the same session, the Soil Bank will be discussed by J. Carroll Bottum, agricultural economist at Purdue University.

Good Eating Ahead for Coming Year

'U' M. Marketing Agent Sees Some Higher Prices

Plenty of food will be in store for Americans in 1958, but it may cost a little more during the first half of next year, Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing agent at the University of Minnesota, reported today.

The slightly higher prices we can expect to pay for some kinds of food will be the result of slightly smaller supplies, especially beef and eggs, plus higher costs of getting food from the farm to the kitchen, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

There will be more chicken, more milk and products made from milk, such as cheese and butter; more oranges, grapefruit, apples. We'll have about the same amount of pork and turkey as last winter and spring, about the same amount of canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, but not quite so many potatoes, dry beans and dry peas. Beef and veal will be slightly less plentiful than in 1957.

Even though some food items will be in smaller supply, there will be no shortage. In some cases, it's merely cutting back from an unusually big supply to a supply that's more nearly in balance with the amount we eat, Mrs. Loomis says.

Affairs to Be Staged in Northwest Towns Dec. 26

Malene Torgerson and David Bjornson, both of Moorhead, have been appointed co-chairmen for the annual Concordia College Christmas radio parties which will be held simultaneously in communities of North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana on Thursday evening, Dec. 26.

Concordia students, faculty, alumni and friends will be united at these various parties by a late evening radio broadcast originating from Fjelstad Hall on the Concordia campus. The broadcast, which is to be given from 10:45-11:00 p.m., will be aired from Station WDAY in Fargo, North Dakota, and Station KFYR at Bismarck, North Dakota.

Telegrams and telephone calls from the various parties being held in the four states will be transmitted over the air, thereby combining all of the parties into one.

Miss Torgerson and Mr. Bjornson have appointed student chairmen who will plan the individual parties in the four states.

Inventory Your Medicine Chest, Doctors Advise

It's inventory time U.S.A. In countless factories and shops throughout the nation, business will halt at the close of another year to count stock and fixtures. Depleted stock will be replaced. Dead stock will be removed.

Get in the inventory groove, this season, suggests the Minnesota State Medical association. Inventory your home medicine chest. Resolve, in the future to place in your home medicine chest only such items which pertain to the family's first aid needs. Keep poisons or dangerous drugs under lock and key — not in the family medicine chest where there could be a chance of mistaken identity.

In the spirit of good home medicine chest inventory the Minnesota State Medical association makes the following recommendations. Discard unused portions of medical prescriptions which may have accumulated in the medicine chest. Your medical needs now may differ from those found by your doctor at the time the prescription was given. Remember too, many medicines become stronger — and even poisonous with age.

Make certain that all pill boxes, bottles and jars in the medicine chest are properly labeled. Take time to read lables and instructions before consuming or applying the contents of all containers in the medicine chest. Never try to take that pill or teaspoon of medicine in the dark. You could be mistaken.

Children are a curious lot. Keep the contents of the medicine chest out of their reach. Even non-poisonous medicine in overdosage can be harmful.

The Norfolk Naval Shipyard is not only the oldest Naval Shipyard in the United States, it is also older than the Navy.

The Child and the Tree
The Christmas tree should never be shopped for like groceries or a necktie.
It is no casual commodity. It is a green, living and breathing thing, and it is also a very special symbol.
As such, it should be chosen—after delicious deliberation—by the youngster who will rejoice in it through the holidays.
Its purchase is a ceremony in itself.
Through the bank window each Christmas eve we watch these joyous, small processions: we observe that another Yule tree has found its child.
Through the bank window, too, we see the last shoppers vanish. All the trees are home with all the Christmas-happy children.
It's wonderful. It's wearying. And it's worth it.

Editorials . . .

"Of all the old festivals, that of Christmas awakens the strongest and most heartfelt associations. There is a tone of solemn and sacred feeling that blends with our conviviality, and lifts the spirit to a state of hallowed and elevated enjoyment.

"The services of the church about this season are extremely tender and inspiring; they dwell on the beautiful story of the origin of our faith, and the pastoral scenes that accompanied its announcement; they gradually increase in fervor and pathos during the season of Advent, until they break forth in full jubilee on the morning that brought peace and good-will to men.

"It is a beautiful arrangement, also derived from the days of yore, that this festival, that commemorates the announcement of the religion of peace and love, has been made the season for gathering together family connections, and drawing closer again those bonds of kindred hearts, which the cares and pleasures and sorrows of the world are continually operating to cast loose; of calling back the children of a family, who have launched forth in life, and wandered widely asunder, once more to assemble about the paternal hearth, that rallying place of the affections, there to grow young and loving again among the endearing mementos of childhood."

—Washington Irving

Happy Christmas

Streets of the business section and homes in all parts of the city are radiantly aglow with the spirit of Christmas. The outdoor lighting effects are more beautiful than ever.

Maybe this can be laughed off as an expensive folly but we like the idea nevertheless. Some of the cheerfulness of the interiors of our homes during this season of good-will-to-man seeps out through windows to the rest of the world but the lights that twinkle from the outdoors decorations extend a direct and more cheery greeting to the passers-by.

In the spirit of the season, in the spirit of faith and hope and charity, we extend to one and all our sincere wishes for a Happy Christmas.

Success or Failure?

Representatives of the 15 member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met last week in Paris in what has been termed "the most crucial" meeting of the alliance. Fourteen of the 15 member nations were represented by their heads of government, and, according to the New York Times, not since the Versailles peace conference of 1919, have so many top government officials of the Western nations met under one roof. Under the circumstances it is fortunate that President Eisenhower was able to be present as our representative.

Whether the big NATO meeting succeeded or failed is a question for future historians to decide. Our Republican politicians say it was successful and our Democratic politicians say it failed. A few statesmen in both parties expressed themselves with moderation.

It appears that the Nato countries have agreed on two important issues, first that missile bases should be established in Europe, and, second, that discussions on disarmament proposals with the Russians should be encouraged. In authorizing missile bases the European and Middle East countries yielded to us. In agreeing that we should be more willing to discuss disarmament proposals with the Russians, we yielded to the wishes of the other members.

That appeals to us as being a reasonable compromise. There is little satisfaction in talking disarmament with the representatives of a military machine in whose integrity you have no confidence and whose real objective, you have every reason to suspect, is to destroy you. But talking takes time, and time is in our favor.

Possibly NATO would be more effective if there were more meetings of the kind held in Paris, and the member nations represented by their top-level officials. In a little more than a year the organization has been on the verge of falling apart several times because of the conflicting views on critical issues. More frequent meetings might tend to soften these differences and avert the danger of an explosion.

Is There A Silver Lining?

As was to be expected, secretary of agriculture Benson's announcement that dairy support prices would be reduced, met with a storm of protest from the areas where dairying is important. It is fair to state, we are sure, that he was not playing politics when he issued his unpopular statement.
ducts is a serious blow to those areas where most producers are selling their butterfat in a form that brings the lowest return and in a form that brings the lowest return and where processing costs are high. Our corner of the state, unfortunately, is in this unhappy position.

Looking to the silver lining that this cloud of lower price supports may have, there is the possibility that one of the good results will be a more determined effort by the industry to help itself. We have a marketing problem at the local level, for instance, that long has been crying for attention. Many thousands of our producers' dollars have gone down the drain because of our unwillingness to adjust ourselves to changes that must come.

And at the national level the price support reduction may have the good effect of speeding action on a self-help program that recently has gained important organization backing. In a recent issue of Hoard's Dairyman, editor Knox made the following cheerful comment about recent development in the industry. He said:

> "With the National Milk Producers Federation placing its stamp of approval on a new self-help bill dairy farmers get the biggest lift they have had in a long time. Previously no two farm or dairy organizations had ever agreed on a peacetime dairy program. Now the Federation and the Grange have joined forces. We are reliably informed that at least one other major farm organization, and several commodity organizations, will be on the team now that the Grange and the federation have ironed out their differences.
> "The key to the federation's action was a dramatic statement by federation president, Russell Waltz, before the federation's resolutions committee.
> "We are not so naive as to believe that the federation's unanimous vote indicates unanimous support by all its member dairy cooperatives and their 500,000 members. Those in high-fluid, high-price markets and those who are more processor- than producer-minded are, understandably, lukewarm. But the federation now has a policy position."
> Its powerful and effective staff has the "go" sign. With its allies and friends in Congress already committed to the dairy stabilization program, the federation should be able to make real progress.

Reports indicate that the "other major farm organization" that is expected to support this program is the Farmers Union. U. S. Senator Hubert Humphrey, a speaker at the Cincinnati convention, gave the proposal considerable encouragement, and that same week, Glenn Talbot, addressing the annual meeting of the North Dakota Farmers Union, suggested a new approach to the surplus problem through national commodity marketing organizations.

If the reduction in price supports will have these good results then the temporary loss to producers will be more than offset by future gains.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

Minnesota, as a state,—along with all of its citizens—begins a new year next week. I suppose that thousands of Minnesotans will be making new year's resolutions. We will be reviewing the accomplishments of the year just passed as we plan and look forward to the year just ahead. It is well for the state, as well as for individuals, to do a little stock-taking at the beginning of a new year.

Trustees for the People

We who are in elected positions in government are entrusted with the responsibility for managing the business of the state in the interest of the people,—and in accord with principles and policies that we have publicly proclaimed. It is also our duty to report to the people on what has been accomplished, and what is yet to be done.

The principal reason for this column is my conviction that a governor should report to the people as often and as completely as possible. And, once a year, it seems appropriate to give a complete and detailed report on the affairs of the state,—just as corporations give annual reports to their stockholders.

Non-Legislative Years

The practice in Minnesota, up to a few years ago, was for the governor to make such a report only in the years in which the legislative session was held. But I think the people are entitled to a report more often than once in two years. Therefore, in 1956, I initiated the practice of making what we have called an "interim report" in the year in which legislature did not meet. The people of Minnesota expressed a real interest in getting such a report during a non-legislative year. I am now preparing to make my second such interim report next month.

Nature of the Report

I intend to report first a summary of the progress we have made here in Minnesota in all of the fields in which our state government functions. Then, I have planned to travel over all parts of the state, where, at each major stop, I will go into a little more detail about each major field of activity.

In these out-state meetings, I hope to be accompanied by a department head or by other government personnel, in the particular field of discussion being undertaken. For what is accomplished in government is the result of activities by thousands of employees, as well as by citizens themselves.

A Two-Way Process

At these meetings held throughout the state, citizens who attend will have opportunity to ask questions and present their opinions. For, just as I believe it is important for citizens to know what their government is doing, I believe it is necessary for government officials to know what citizens think and want. So we hope that, by first hand contacts at these meetings, government and people will be drawn closer together.

Your local newspapers will report on the time and place of such meetings, and I want you to know that you are all welcome. They will be held, for the most part, during the last half of January.

A Happy Centennial Year

Meanwhile I would like to extend my best wishes for a very happy new year. During 1958 our state will be celebrating its 100th birthday. We will be reviewing our accomplishments of the past, and,—as a state as well as individuals,—will plan and look forward to a great future.

CONQUERING THE PASSING YEARS

Henry Wick first delivered mail on a Stewart rural route in June, 1914, from a horse-drawn buggy; now after 43-plus years, he is retiring. . . . Theanthropic Threes

Like new words? Or isn't theanthropic new to you? It was to me. It means "having both a divine and a human nature." That's the best one-word description of three-year-olds imaginable. They are more contradictory than consistent. They caricature all of the human frailties, and then when they are just about to be written off as debits, they privilege you with a glimpse of their closeness to the celestial.

It all makes sense, too, because at three children are midway between the complete dependence of infancy and the independence of the sixes. In their dependence they reflect an innocence and a pliability which lends itself to whatever idea of perfection we use to measure them. In their independence they resist our every effort and seem prone toward rash nonconformity.

They are the queerest combinations of adequacy and inadequacy. Queer to the degree that Timmy may be able to put on his left shoe but not his right, or he may be able to feed himself, but not to decide how large a portion he wants. He may understand that he is not to cross this street but not that the rule also applies to that street. If he is permitted to put his plastic toy in the water, he does not hesitate to dunk his woolly animal.

Sally may ask, "How do I do this, Daddy?" and, as soon as she is shown, may counter with a quick foot-stamping "I won't!" Or Mother may ask Sally, "Which of these two dresses would you like to wear today?" and Sally may balk half-way into the chosen one. One theory suggests that threes have reached their first experience with true choices: their first stage of being able to encompass two choice at once.

They have little experience to help them toward right answers, so they pull up short at the fork in the road in a state of confusion and uncertainty. This theory takes some of the sting out of their negativism and seeming stubbornness, and lets them rather be labeled "growth."

Exasperating as Timmy and Sally may have been all day, let them snuggle onto your lap at the end of the day ready to sit entranced at whatever story you will read and once again the human fades into the divine because of the "theanthropists" they truly are.

The Navy reports that more than 25,000 letters have been dispatched to "Operation Deepfreeze." Peak load was 5,000 in one week.

From His birth in a stable belonging to someone else . . . to His burial in a tomb prepared for someone else, Jesus had nothing. In the years of His teachings, the hot and dusty roads of Palestine were His home. And he sought no other . . . save in the hearts of men.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

It has come to my attention that a bill has been sponsored by Senator Newberger, Senator Humphrey and Senator Kefauver which would outlaw the steel trap.

This law has been tried in many states before and has been replaced for the reason that the predatory animals increase and the game animals decrease. The game animals and birds are not only hunted by man but the predators prey upon them 12 months of the year as well.

If these Senators had to sit up in a tree all night as my neighbors and I have done to protect our flocks from bear, wolves and bob cats, they would see the situation in a different light. Beyond this I can show anyone fox dens lined with feathers from game birds.

In the last session of the Minnesota Legislature the administration offered a bill which would outlaw the bounties on predatory animals. Eliminating these bounties is the wrong approach for the same reason I have indicated above.

I would recommend to all farmers and sportsman groups to be particularly alerted to Senate File No. 2489. If this bill becomes a law farmers' flocks, game birds and deer will suffer untold loss. Remember the predator travels by night, so how do these three men propose to catch these animals?

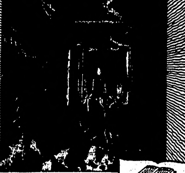
GREETINGS

We like to keep Christmas reverently, in full awareness of its deep spiritual significance. And we like to keep Christmas as He would have us do, with peace and good will, with friendly greetings to all.

GREEN FUNERAL HOME
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.



CANDLE IN THE NIGHT

Simplest, humblest gleam of light . . . yet it rolls back the shadows. And striking the new-fallen snow, it casts a dazzling halo upon boughs of pine and holly.

Like a candle in the night Christmas rolls back the shadows of time, and touching the life of man, gives an aura of peace and good will to every day and deed.

It was truly the simplest and humblest event in history, this birth of a child in a stable. But from it shines "the true Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." And to live in that Light, to reflect it upon the world around us; this is peace and good will.

Like a candle in the night the Church beckons us to the gleam of its ageless Truth. And as we come to live by the Church's teaching, our faith will roll back the shadows for those around us.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

CHRISTMAS IN THE WILDS

On December 25, 1805, not far from the present site of Brainerd, Lieutenant Zebulon Pike, discoverer of Pike's Peak, and his soldiers celebrated Christmas day by advancing three miles on their exploratory journey into the wilderness of northern Minnesota.

In the journal of the expedition, written by its famous leader, there is only a brief entry for December 25, 1805, but it calls up an interesting picture of the American soldiers who penetrated the area before its metamorphosis into a land teeming with white men's cities, roads, and farms.

"Marched, and encamped at 11 o'clock," wrote Pike. "Gave out two pounds extra of meat, two pounds extra of flour, one gill of whiskey, and some tobacco to each man, to distinguish Christmas Day; distance advanced three miles."

With twenty soldiers Pike had left St. Louis on August 9, 1805, on a trip to the sources of the Mississippi. Late in September the expedition reached the site of the future city by Minneapolis, and on October 16, not far from the present-day Little Falls, the building of a fort was begun.

With sleds and a pirogue "towed by three men," Lieutenant Pike and his force set out in December for the fur-trading posts at Sandy and Leech lakes, reaching the former on January 8. In February the explorer arrived at what he believed to be "the upper source of the Mississippi," Cass Lake.

Not until April 30, 1806, did Pike return to St. Louis, his starting point. His party endured great sufferings in its struggle through the snow and cold of the unknown wilderness.

UNKNOWN COUNTY

Few people are aware that an independent county once existed within the present metropolitan area of Minneapolis. From 1857 to 1869 some sixteen square miles in Fridley Township, Anoka County, were organized as Manomin County.

The leading resident of the little village of Manomin on the banks of the Mississippi River was Abram M. Fridley, Indian agent, farmer, and politician. When Anoka County was established in 1857, he succeeded in having his little domain made into a separate county, and there he lived as its virtual king until 1869, when he moved to a large farm near Becker in Sherburne County.

The year that Fridley left, Manomin County was incorporated into Anoka County as Manomin Township. Its name was changed to Fridley in 1870 and some years later its founder returned to his old home, where he died in 1888.

RED RIVER TRADE

Shortly before the War of 1812 the Scotch Earl of Selkirk secured from the Hudson's Bay Company a large grant of land, adjoining the present northern border of Minnesota. On this land he proposed to found an agricultural colony for evicted Scotch peasants.

In August, 1812, the first group of colonists arrived and settled at the junction of the Red and Assiniboine rivers on the future site of Winnipeg. Until about 1840 supplies were brought to the little colony from far-distant Hudson Bay. After that Red River ox carts came into use, and a steady trade with the settlements of southern Minnesota began. For twenty years the ox cart trade continued over two principal routes—one via the Minnesota and Red rivers and the other by way of the Sauk River and Otter Tail Lake.

During the 1850s the steamboat trade on the Mississippi and Minnesota rivers developed greatly, and the idea grew that perhaps the Red River also could support steamboat traffic. In the fall of 1858 a bonus of a thousand dollars was offered by the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce to anyone who would build a boat and have it ready for use on the Red River the next season. Anson Northup offered to build such a boat for two thousand dollars, and his offer was accepted by the St. Paul organization.

Northup bought the old Mississippi steamboat, "North Star." The engine, with enough newly sawed lumber for the proposed boat, was hauled overland by ox team to Lafayette, a townsite in Clay County, on the Red River opposite the mouth of the Cheyenne.

At Lafayette the work of constructing the new boat went on noisily for six weeks. At the end of that time, the finished vessel was christened the "Anson Northup" and started on its maiden trip to Fort Garry.

At Fort Abercrombie, the southern end of its run, the "Anson Northup" connected with the stage line from St. Cloud, which was started in the same year by J. C. Burbank and Russell Blakeley. Thus in 1859 public transportation was available for the first time between St. Paul and Fort Garry, or present-day Winnipeg.

A LETTER FROM THE FALLS

The earliest known letter written from the site of the city of 27, 1836. It was written by J. N. Nicollet, explorer and geographer, and it is in the possession of the Minnesota Historical Society.

It is addressed to the Indian agent at Fort Snelling, Lawrence Taliaferro, and was written after Nicollet's explorations of the source of the Mississippi. "I arrived last evening, about dusk, all's well, nothing lost, nothing broken, happy and very successful journey." Nicollet wrote "But I am done, exhausted, and nothing can relieve me but the pleasure to meet you again under your roof and see all the friends of the garrison who have been so kind to me.

"Flat Mouth, the Chief of Leech Lake, and suite, ten in number, are with me," he said. Nicollet had met the Indians at Swan River two days earlier. "Peace or War are at stake of the visit they pay you, please give them a good welcome until I have reported to you and Colonel Davenport all what has taken place during my stay among the Pillagers," the explorer concluded.

The nautical term "Cumshaw" comes from the Chinese beggar's plea for alms, "Cum-a-shaw." With Navy men, the word has come to be synonymous with graft or rake-off.

Offers Advice on Use of Christmas Trees

Diagnosis—possible first, second, or third degree burns—even death. Cause—an ignited Christmas tree. Opinion—this accident could have been prevented with proper safety measures.

Similar words are needlessly written across the medical case records of countless persons because Christmas tree caution was not exercised.

Christmas trees, because they contain pitch and resin, and dry out easily, will burn up in less than two minutes.

In the interest of a safe Christmas tree holiday season, the Minnesota State Medical association passes along the following Christmas tree safety measures.

1. Eliminate the increased hazard of a large tree by choosing a select small one.

2. Wait until just a few days before Christmas to set up the tree.

3. Store the tree outdoors until the time of installation.

4. Stand the tree in water, in the coolest part of the house—away from radiators, heaters or fireplaces.

5. Use only fireproof Christmas tree decorations.

6. Check the electrical safety of your tree. See that all wires and sockets, of lighting chains, extension cords, and plug-ins are in good repair. Never use candles.

8. Do not clutter the base of the Christmas tree with gift wrappings.

11. Discard the tree when the needles begin to fall.

Minneapolis Show Includes 183 Cars

Auto Show Scheduled for January 3 thru 12

"Never before have so many different 'breeds' of automobiles been gathered together under one roof between Chicago and the West Coast as will be exhibited in the Minneapolis Auditorium for the Upper Midwest Auto Show, January 3 through 12." This was the way H. E. (Ned) Warren, chairman of the executive show committee summed up the gigantic 183 car exhibit, which will fill every available space in the two-level structure of the Auditorium.

Max Winter, producer of the show, said all American cars will be on display with at least eight models of each make, for a total of 20; thirteen makes of foreign cars; eight hot rods and custom cars; ten home-made cars; eight classics; four special sport car racers; fourteen of America's most authentically restored antique cars and at least four special cars and two dream cars of advanced styling and construction. In addition, there will be more than 60 exhibits of automotive equipment, services and general merchandise.

Vocalist Georgia Gibbs, one of the nation's leading recording artists, will headline a twice-daily stage show, which will also feature statuesque strawberry blonde Dagmar, who will serve as Mistress of Ceremonies. Back for the third consecutive year will be one of the outstanding instrumental-vocal trios, the Topnotchers.

Fire Losses for for Year to Dec. 1 Hit $931 Million

Estimated fire losses in the United States during November amounted to $75,321,000, the National Board of Fire Underwriters reported in New York last Monday.

According to Lewis A. Vincent, NBFU's general manager, this $75,321,000 los represents a decrease of 6.4 per cent from losses of $80,481,000 reported for November, 1956, and a decrease of 3.1 per cent from losses of $77,753,000 for October (1957).

Losses for the first 11 months of 1957 now total $931,671,000 an increase of 4.4 per cent over the first 11 months of 1956, when they amounted to $892,805,000.

These estimated losses include an allowance for uninsured and unreported losses.

Aliens Required to Register Soon

Can Secure Blanks at Postoffice in January

Robert L. Woytych, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, St. Paul, state this week that aliens in the United States will be required to report their addresses to the attorney general within the near future.

All aliens, with few exceptions, who are in the United States on January 1 each year must report their addresses by the end of that month. Only the following classes of aliens are excused from this requirement: (1)accredited diplomats; (2) persons accredited to certain international organizations; and (3) those admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers.

Forms with which to make the report can be obtained from any post office or immigration office during the month of January.

Mr. Woytych said that the law provides severe penalties for failure to comply with the reporting requirement.

Make Coffee Stop on Holiday Trips, Motorists Urged

"Make a stop for coffee a step toward safety in holiday driving ahead," motorists were advised today by J. B. McDonald, Chairman of the Minnesota Petroleum Industries Committee.

He suggested that motorists use "coffee breaks" as a means of staying alert behind the wheel, especially in the coming weeks. He pointed out that 22 persons died in traffic accidents on Minnesota roads during the Christmas and New Year's holidays last year.

For the nation as a whole, last year's four-day Christmas holiday period saw 706 persons killed in highway accidents — the greatest single holiday toll in history. Another 409 persons died over the New Year's holidays, he observed.

Hardware Men to Convene Jan. 6-8 in Minneapolis

Some 2,000 hardware men and their wives from throughout Minnesota will be in Minneapolis January 6-8 to preview the latest in hardware merchandise and merchandising techniques.

"One of the highlights of our convention will be the honoring of four Minnesota hardware dealers for 50 years of service to their communities. Fourteen others will receive 25-year awards," said A. J. Pierre, North St. Paul hardware dealer and current president of the association.

TOPSY-TURVY WORLD

Once a year, at least for three straight years, New Ulm "car thefts" have turned out to be cases of mistaken identity—mechanics sent to pick up ailing vehicles and taking away identical cars belonging to someone else. . . . Carol Kendrick, winsome lass of Northfield, wheels a baby carriage with great pride and aplomb—out of which peeks her pet doggie, Skip, complete in mittens, bonnet, and scarf. . . . Floyd Martin, Owatonna, is debating which way to put his '58 license plates on—so the state name can be read, or so the upside-down 17-3180 can be read.

Ray Parnow and Roger Johnson Visit Grain Mart

Two 4-H leaders for the Kratka 4-H club received an expense paid trip to the Twin Cities and an award to the club for the accomplishments in the clean grain program, it was announced today by county agent Paul Steimaschuk.

Adult 4-H leader Ray Parnow and junior leader Roger Johnson participated in the trip.

Included in the tour were a visit to the F. H. Peavey agricultural department, a visit to the control laboratory where samples as drawn from carload lots were studied.

The leaders were then briefed on the operations of the grain exchange. They observed the trading in futures and actual buying and selling of grain on the floor of the exchange.

Following that study, the leaders of the five clubs represented then toured the Peavy feed mill where various livestock foods are prepared.

At the noon luncheon the leaders of the Kratka club were presented with a plaque and a certificate for the club's achievements in clean grain. Kratka 4-H members completed "clean grain survey sheets" and took many corrective steps to remedy grain contamination on their farms.

Mrs. Sylvia Austinson Given $59,950 Judgment

Mrs. Sylvia Austinson of Warren was awarded $59,950 in Walsh county court Saturday in her damage suit against Robert Kilpatrick and Sheriff's Ltd., both of Winnipeg, Man. The jury of 11 men and 1 woman returned a verdict after approximately one hour and 45 minutes of deliberation Saturday in Grafton, N. D.

The suit arose from an automobile accident Sept. 3, 1952, in which Delos H. Austinson of Warren was killed. Mrs. Austinson sought $60,000 in damages from both defendents and an additional $950 for funeral expenses.

In a previous court action Judge Albert Lundberg of Grafton had dismissed the case, but his ruling was reversed by the state supreme court. Lundberg had held the plaintiff in error in bringing the suit through the state highway department.

At the trial Saturday, Mrs. Austinson testified that her husband received $495 a month as cashier of a bank at Warren, his total yearly income being in the neighborhood of $6,000.

Specialist Third Class Richard J. Trochman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Trochman, Newfolden, recently participated in an annual Army training test with the 11th Airborne division's 111th Medical company in Germany. Trochman, a clerk-typist with the company, entered the Army in June, 1955, and arrived in Europe in February 1956.

Pennington County 4-H'ers have completed a successful year, County Agent Paul Steimaschuk stated today. A good representation of county's 4-H'ers have received state recognition for 4-H work over the last year. It takes several years for a 4-H'er to accumulate a record which will show progress, achievement and leadership to the degree which wins state recognition.

One of the important criteria in receiving a state award is a successful junior leadership record. Through junior leadership the 4-H'ers assist with many activities, help other younger 4-H members as well as helping themselves. The 4-H'ers who have received special recognition this year are:

Florence Anderson, Highlanding 4-H club for her work in bread baking, she received a United States saving bond from the Russell-Miller Milling Company and an extra cash award.

David Parnow and Stanley Olson of the Kratka 4-H club were champion clean grain demonstrators at the State Fair and both received saving bonds and an additional cash award from the Peavy Elevators.

Elinor Gustafson of the Wyanriver 4-H club received a gift from Daytons for her achievements in clothing. Loralea Larson of the Sanders 4-H club and Marie Breznay of the Mavie 4-H club received merchandise awards from the Foley Company for their achievements in food projects. Loralea received her award in pie baking and Marie Breznay in food preparation.

Two 4-H'ers were also recognized for their dairy work. They were Bill Svendsgaard of the Mavie 4-H club and Ray Nelson of Silverton 4-H club. Bill Svendsgaard has been presented a cash award by the National Dairy Products Corporation and Ray Nelson has also won a cash award from the Colgate Palmolive Company.

Mary Ann Lendobeja of the Kratka 4-H club was recognized for her work in horticulture. She has received a one year membership in the Minnesota State Horticultural Society and will receive the State Horticulturalist Magazine for one year. She was also presented a cash award from Mrs. Jean Sandvig of Minneapolis.

Ernest Breznay of the Mavie 4-H club was recognized for his work in farm and home shop. He has again won a merchandize award, as he did last year. The award is presented by the Craftsman tool company.

Wavell Seibert of the Star 4-H club received a cash award for her work in the sheep project, and Donald Wald of the Rocksbury 4-H club has been recognized for his work in the soil conservation project.

Other 4-H achievements included the success of the dairy team which won top honors at the Crookston Winter Shows. The team was comprized of Ray Nelson and Wayne Harder of the Silverton 4-H club and Bill Svendsgaard and Leighton Hamre of the Mavie club.

Norris Thune of the Rocksbury 4-H club won the top judging honors at the Greenbush Sheep Days. He was awarded two lambs for his achievement.

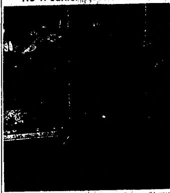
Two clubs won state recognition, added Steimaschuk. The Mavie 4-H club was again chosen as a blue ribbon club, an award which goes to only 15 club in the state and which permits a delegation of leaders to train at the short course at the University.

The Kratka 4-H club was presented a plaque and certificate for their work in the clean grain program and two leaders from the club won an all expense paid trip to the Twin Cities where they visited the Peavy Elevators, the Grain Exchange and Ford assembly plant.

Stores Are Closed Friday Evenings

Starting December 27, Thief River Falls stores will be closed Friday evenings until further notice next spring, local residents were reminded today by the merchants committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

No Weather Troubles Here!



The weatherman held back the usual white Christmas this year in northwest Minnesota, as he pulled a neat switch by giving the area a 45-degree high temperature Christmas Eve and followed it up with a 35-degree high Christmas day. It was one of the warmest Christmases on record in the area. Here Orvis Olen points out the unique situation by wearing a straw hat as he sweeps the sidewalk in front of the Fashion Shop. Sweeping the sidewalk, in itself, is unusual at this time of year—a snow shovel is generally more appropriate.

Three-car Accident Causes $625 Damage

A three-car accident was the worst incident on record here since Monday, but no personal injuries resulted from the crash, which caused an estimated $625 property damage to the cars involved.

The accident happened at the intersection of W. Third st. and Knight av. Monday about 3:37 p.m. when a car driven by Mrs. Orlando Erickson, city, going east on Third st. was hit by another car driven by Edward Fillatraut going south on Knight.

The Erickson car, in turn, bounced across the street and hit a third car belonging to Harlan Olson, rt. 4, city.

This Area Experienced 1st Christmas without Snow in Long Period

A high temperature record for Christmas Eve that will probably stand for many years to come was set here Tuesday when the mercury soared to a phenomenal 45 above.

The balmy-for-Christmas temperatures here came as a major portion of the nation enjoyed unusually fine weather for the Yule season. Among the shenanigans set off by the warm weather was water skiing in western North Dakota and a softball game between two eastern North Dakota small-town teams.

High winds and dust accompanied the warm temperatures, and Tuesday lacked the usual Christmas Eve atmosphere seeming more like an early spring day instead.

Other highs since Monday were 23 that day and 35 Christmas Day. Lows ranged from a chilly 4 above Thursday morning to 25 Wednesday. Barely a trace of precipitation fell in brief, light snow flurries Christmas day.

The forecast is for mostly fair and colder weather today, to be followed by mostly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures tonight. There may be occasional light snow Friday, along with more cold temperatures.

Winds will be northwesterly today, 15-25 m.p.h. switching to southerly, 25 m.p.h. tonight and turning northwesterly again Friday.

Highs today will be 15-20 and lows tonight probably won't drop below 10-15 degrees above zero.

Postal Workers Cleaned up Yule Mail Rush Today

While no local deliveries of mail were made on Christmas Day, a last-minute influx of belated holiday parcels and greeting cards gave the postoffice crew a good workout this morning. Postmaster R. J. Dryden stated, adding that the extra employes engaged for the holiday season will be released today. The Christmas mail volume here appeared to be as large as last year, said Dryden, but definite figures will not be tabulated until this weekend.

President Delivers Christmas Message to American People

The weather was unseasonably mild as a crowd of 9,000 gathered to watch the President light the 67-foot Minnesota spruce.

Mr. Eisenhower said:

"The spirit of Christmas helps bridge any difference among us. Faith and hope and charity are its universal countersigns. Peace and good will are its universal message. But these will be words only, hollow and empty, unless we confirm them:

"In sweat and toil that translate good intentions into fruitful action.

"In courage that does not hesitate because the risk is great or the odds immeasurable.

"In patience that does not quit because the road is hard or the goal far off.

"In self-sacrifice that does not dodge a heavy duty because the cost is high or the reward unsure."

Mr. Eisenhower said that, "in dedication to peace, in our determination and readiness collectively to sustain that peace, we are firmly joined with our NATO partners—as indeed we are with other friendly nations around the world."

Cigaret Smoking Hit new High Mark in Current Year

Americans smoked more cigarets in 1957 than ever before, a survey disclosed Wednesday.

An annual survey by Business Week magazine showed that a record 410 billion cigarets were consumed in this country during the year—19 billion more than in 1956.

The report said the gain—which came despite warnings against excessive smoking—was one of the largest single-year increases ever made.

The tobacco industry five years ago was staggered by medical reports linking lung cancer and smoking, which at the time sent sales into a two-year slide.

Education Board Sets up Insurance Policy Coverage

Two Agencies to Write Policies, Share Premiums with Nine Other Agencies

At an adjourned session of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening, it was voted to accept the proposal of the Union State bank and This Insurance agencies that the two agencies write policies covering $1,500,000 of extended coverage insurance on school buildings and equipment, with the stipulation that a fixed share of the premiums be rebated to each of the other nine agencies that had previously shared in writing the policies.

The policies will be written on a five-year basis, with one-fifth of the gross premium falling due each year.

The change was made to simplify the insurance coverage by greatly reducing the number of policies in effect and centralizing responsibility for handling them.

Marlene Kellberg Married To Gary P. Anderson

In a setting of white and yellow chrysanthemums, yellow gladioli and lighted candelabra Saturday evening, December 7, Miss Marlene Kellberg became the bride of Gary P. Anderson in the First Lutheran church of this city. Rev. Marvin Carlson performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of approximately 200 guests.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kellberg of this city, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Anderson, also of this city.

Mrs. Art Hamilton presided at the organ for a prelude of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches. She also accompanied Mrs. Martin who sang "Because", "The Wedding Prayer" and the "Lord's Prayer".

The bride given in marriage by her father was attired in a ballerina length gown of hand-clipped rosepoint lace and tulle over layers of net and bridal satin. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a madarine collar and long Mary Stuart sleeves which came to a point over the wrists. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a matching lace plateau hat and her only jewelry was a pair of pearl earrings, a gift from the groom. She carried a crescent style bouquet of red and white roses.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Dalys Kellberg of this city. The bridesmaids were Lou Tiernsky of Pine City, Minn., sister of the groom, and Marlis Anderson of this city, friend of the bride. Their identical ballerina length gowns were of turquoise Bol de taffeta with full circular skirts in princess lines. The fitted bodices featured modified scoop neck lines with a pleated accented shawl effect. They wore matching chenille dot veils and white gloves. Pearl earrings were their only jewelry. They carried bouquets of yellow roses, white carnations and bronze baby mums.

The groom was attended by Wallace Grovum of Minneapolis as bestman. Groomsmen were Oscar Odegaard of St. Paul and Jerry Furuseth of this city, all friends of the groom.

Mrs. Kellberg, mother of the bride, chose a coffee fruit knit sheath dress with matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. The groom's mother wore a navy blue sheath dress with matching accessories. Their identical corsages were of yellow roses and white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors with Myrna Lane acting as hostess. The bridal table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake which was cut and served by Mrs. Harvey Hanson of this city and Mrs. Tom Brubakken of Crookston; both aunts of the bride. Mrs. Milton Starekow of this city and Mrs. Mabel Haugen of Moorhead, poured. Waitresses were Delling Rockstad, Darlene Vad and Elaine Brubakken, cousin of the bride.

Elaine Balvin registered the guests and the gifts were arranged by Darlene Markstrom and Francho Thompson, all friends of the bride.

The groom's dinner was held at the Rex Cafe Friday evening, December 6 with Mr. and Mrs. Anderson as host and hostesses. There were 14 guests present.

For their wedding trip to Gary, Indiana, the bride chose a black sheath dress with matching accessories.

Mrs. Anderson is a 1955 graduate of Lincoln High school and was employed as a secretary at the Starekow clinic. Mr. Anderson is a 1952 graduate of Lincoln High school and also a graduate from the University of Minnesota. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are now at home in Gary, Indiana.

Propose Michigan Run for No. Central

CAB Counsel Recommends Extension in Service

A Civil Aeronautics Board staff member recommended last week that North Central Airlines be certificated to extend its route network to 10 additional cities in Michigan.

The brief was filed by James A. Thomas, counsel, bureau of air operations, with the CAB, which regulates commercial airlines. It was the first step in determining the outcome of the lengthy Great Lakes Area air service case now being considered by the Board to determine the need for additional airline service in Michigan.

The attorney recommended North Central be granted a route connecting Sault Ste. Marie with Chicago via Cheboygan, Traverse City, Manistee, Grand Rapids and Benton Harbor, Michigan. Another segment would be added between the Soo and Detroit by way of Cheboygan, Traverse City, Saginaw, Flint and Pontiac.

North Central would also be granted permission to operate between the Soo and Detroit via Cheboygan, Alpena, Saginaw and Port Huron.

Thieves & Roseau Meet Sunday in Loop Opener

Coach Paul Bedard's local sextet, although handicapped by lack of ice for their practice drills, has been able to engage in a few pre-season practice sessions.

The roster, as released by manager Darwin (Gus) Ferrier, indicates that the Thieves will be able to ice a strong club this season, being well-balanced as to veterans and youngsters. The squad lists as follows: goal, Jack McGill; defense, Mike McMahon, Fred Bablow, Mouse Efteland, Paul Bedard, and Darryl Durgin; and forwards, Al Steenerson, Sid Vaa, Monty Markstrom, Glen Carlson, DelRay Offerdahl, Gordy Bjerken, Mike Hajostek, Jimmy Knee, Art Cloutier, and possibly Darryl Lund.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The League Opener

After an absence of several years, league hockey, on the senior hockey level, will return to the Arena rink on Sunday afternoon when Paul Bedard's Thieves meet the Roseau Cloverleafs in a Northwest hockey league opener. Face-off time is slated for 2:30 p.m.

While it is to be acknowledged that this year's senior hockey will not approach the professional caliber of that provided the fans during the years of the States-Dominion league competition, it's probable that the enthusiasm of the players will be greater than that exhibited by the "play for pay" boys.

Sunday's opener, between the Thieves and the Leafs, should be a good one, for both teams will be bolstered by the presence of holiday-vacationing college players.

The start of another senior hockey season again gives us an opportunity to pay homage to Morris (Mouse) Efteland for the contribution he has made to local hockey. Ever since the 1930's, the late 1930's, that is, Mouse has been a member of a local organized hockey team, in a junior, high school or senior hockey class. On Sunday, Mouse will be starting his 18th or 19th year in local hockey competition. (He missed several seasons during the World War II years, being in action in the India-Burma theater of operations).

That the years are beginning to catch up with Mouse, and with coach Paul Bedard, too, is indicated by the fact that the two players have been listed on the Thieves' roster as defensemen. We don't know if this listing was done with the knowledge and consent of goalie Jack McGill. McGill, the old Saskatoon Quaker, is no kid himself, and if he believes that he can perform capably in the nets with Mouse and Paul as his blue-liners, well, more power to Jack!

We have mentioned a number of times, and the event is one of the most vivid in our memory, that Mouse's finest hour as a hockey player occurred one Saturday afternoon late in February of 1942 when, in an invitational hockey tournament, a high school tournament, played at Roseau, he scored the one goal that gave the Prowlers a 1 to 0 win over Cliff Thompson's Eveleth Golden Bears. The win was in a semi-finals match, and the Prowlers, in the championship finals, defeated Baudette, 4 to 1, for the title.

While Mouse was the offensive star in that Prowler victory, we must add that goalie John Rebarge, with his phenomenal work in the nets (and he won the grudging admiration of Eveleth's Thompson) protected that one goal lead.

End of the Lessons

Those bowling lessons, to be given to the Viking Tavern boys by the Plummer all-stars, came to an end, at the close of the second lesson, on the Pla-Mor alleys here Sunday afternoon. The Viking team, with Don Haugen rolling games of 200-171-221 to take the high individual honors, defeated the Plummer keglers, 2606 to 2599. Close enough, but still a cherished win for the "students" over the "tutors."

It's true that the Vikings needed their home alleys in order to edge out the Plummer squad, but these Pla-Mor alleys aren't entirely foreign to the Plummer boys. By the way, do any other teams wish to give "lessons" to Emil Dostal and his high school boys?

Hope for the New Year

In behalf of several of the local golfers, we express the hope that the Red Lake county golf champion has been following the All-Star golf matches that have been televised for Saturday afternoon viewings. We hope that this golfer has noticed, and made a mental note of the fact, that these golfers do not accept, nor do they give, any conceded putts. Not even the one-footers.

It is to be hoped that come next golf season, that this golfer will be putting out those four and five footers. Those are the putts that he has been self-conceding.

The club house chatter is to the effect that this county champion will card scores of 44 or 45 if he is forced to "can" all his putts instead of making concessions and marking cards of 39 or 40.

There is apparently no truth to the rumor that this golfer, unless watched, will be playing "winter" rules when in the rough.

Blooms May Continue on Christmas Plants

The poinsettia and other potted plants that are adding to the beauty of your home this Christmas will keep their gay blooms longer if you give them plenty of bright light and enough water.

All the popular Christmas gift plants, including poinsettia, azalea, cyclamen, Christmas cactus, begonia, Christmas cherry and Kalanchoe, will blossom for a longer time if they are kept near or in a window so they get sufficient light. Water the plants before they wilt, but wait until the soil surface is beginning to look dry before watering. Extremely hot day-time temperatures will shorten the life of any of these plants, Widmer says. All of these plants, except the poinsettia, will do better if kept in a cool location at night.

The poinsettia is especially sensitive to sudden temperature changes. Don't subject this plant to drafts will cause the leaves to turn yellow and to drop.

When watering the cyclamen, Widmer recommends particular care so that water does not get into the crown of the plant. To remove dead flowers or yellow leaves, pull up the whole stem by giving it a quick jerk instead of cutting it off. Leaves may turn yellow if the plant gets to dry, if night temperature is too high or if the plant has insufficient light. Buds will not develop if the night temperature is too high or the light intensity too low.

Loss of leaves and fruit on the Christmas cherry may be caused by insufficient water, insufficient light or too high night temperatures.

Because the azalea has a particularly high water requirement, the soil should be kept moist constantly, Widmer says, but not bog-like.

'Save Wetlands' Project Catches Eye of Ontario

The success of the "Save Minnesota's Wetlands," is being noticed elsewhere. A recent letter to the conservation department from the Conservation Council of Ontario said in part, "it (the wetlands program) seems a most ambitious undertaking which rather puts us to shame in Ontario . . . we have no wetlands in public ownership in southern Ontario where the need for them is very great."

Representatives from the Ontario Council have been invited by Richard Dorer, game chief, to visit Minnesota and inspect the acquisition project. Said Dorer, "Agricultural drainage of wetlands in southern Ontario is currently underway, causing great concern to conservationists in that province. We are indeed happy to show them our work here in Minnesota."

Jehovah Group at Virginia Session

"Lasting peace can come only by an act of God," said A. K. Wagner of New York, district supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses, addressing a convention at the National Guard Armory in Virginia. In attendance were 24 persons from Thief River Falls.

Mr. Wagner told the audience that the common people of all nations desire peace, and there are only a few concerned with the profits of war, such as militarists, munition makers, and power-hungry dictators, who do not want lasting peace.

Speakers Bureau Formed by State Centennial Group

Dr. J. O. Christianson of 'U' of M. School of Agriculture is Chairman

Formation of a Minnesota Centennial speakers information bureau, headed by Dr. J. O. Christianson of the University of Minnesota agriculture school, was announced December 23.

Dr. Christianson, superintendent of the University's School of Agriculture and director of its short courses, said invitations are being sent to "many distinguished Minnesotans" who will make up the Centennial speakers bureau.

He said the bureau's purpose will be to prepare a list of competent speakers on the Centennial program.

"Many of the day-to-day requests for speakers can be filled by County Centennial Committee members and state Centennial staff members," Dr. Christianson said. "There will be, however, a number of programs of sufficient importance to require a speaker of statewide renown."

Plans are to make a list of speakers available shortly after January 1. State Centennial personnel already have assembled speakers kits containing information on Minnesota's history, attributes, progress and future potential.

Dr. Christianson was named one of Minnesota's "100 Living Greats" by the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce during the 1949 Territorial Centennial. Among many honors he has received during his life-long association with agriculture, Dr. Christianson "prizes most highly" the degree of doctor of humane letters which he received from Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter in 1950. Also receiving the honor were Dr. Ralph Bunche of the United Nations and Swedens' American Ambassador Erik Boheman.

C. J. Johnston of State Highway Dept. Staff Dies

A veteran of more than three decades of newspaper and public relations activity in Minnesota, C. D. (Johnnie) Johnston, died Friday, Dec. 20, in the Minneapolis Veterans administration hospital. He was stricken a week previously with pneumonia. A former St. Paul resident, he was living in Minneapolis at the time of his death.

As a St. Paul newspaper man for 15 years and public information director in the Minnesota Highway department for nearly 20 years, he was widely acquainted among editorial, civic and political leaders throughout the state.

Johnston was city editor of the old St. Paul Daily News from 1920 to 1925, city editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, and then general city editor of the Pioneer Press and St. Paul Dispatch until 1929.

Johnston was a director of the state highway department's public information division from 1936 to 1956, except for a 4½ year leave of absence granted in 1942 for wartime public relations service.

Dividend Coming on GI Insurance

Average Payment of $53 to Be Made During 1958

Regular annual dividends will be paid to World War I and II GI insurance policyholders next year, W. B. Carroll, manager, Veterans Administration Center, at Fargo, announced today.

The dividends will be paid as near as possible to the anniversary date of each policy during calendar year 1958. For example, he said, if a policy is issued on June 1, the anniversary date will be June 1, 1958.

The dividend declarations do not include the non-participating post-Korean type of GI insurance, Mr. Carroll pointed out, since the law makes no provision for dividend payments on those policies.

He requested World War I and II policyholders who will share in the dividends not to inquire in advance about payments so as not to delay the processing time.

The two dividend declarations are:

1. National Service Life Insurance (NSLI), which originated in World War II.
2. U. S. Government Life Insurance USGLI), which originated in World War I.

Dividends will be paid to both term and permanent plan policyholders, Mr. Carroll said. The average individual payment will be about $53.00.

The phrase "sardonic laughter" is derived from the name of the island of Sardina in the Mediterranean. An herb growing there was once believed to make anyone who ate it laugh himself to death.

"There is an old Spanish proverb which says, 'Enjoy the little you have while the fool is hunting for more.' The energetic American ought to turn this proverb upside down and make it read, 'While the fool is enjoying the little he has, I will hunt for more.'

"The way to hunt for more is to utilize your odd moments.

"Every minute that you save by making it useful, more profitable, is so much added to your life and its possibilities. Every minute lost is a neglected by-product—once gone, you will never get it back."

Encouraging Prospect

Our area has a direct interest in a proposed power plant development that will serve four electric power producers, all faced with the need to expand generating capacity in the near future. Especially significant about this proposal is the fact that two of the companies are cooperatives and two are privately owned.

Working together in the preliminary stages of planning are the Minnkota Power Cooperative, Grand Forks; Central Power Electric Cooperative, Minot; Northern States Power Co., Minneapolis, and Otter Tail Power Co., Fergus Falls. They are considering the building of a 100,000-kilowatt, lignite-burning steam plant in central North Dakota, at the source of their fuel supply.

By pooling their power-generating resources these companies gain in two ways. The large plants made possible by such pooling greatly reduce generating costs. And by the combined hook-up they provide standby power for the emergency needs of each other, reducing the investment in standby equipment that each company would otherwise be required to maintain.

These four companies have already reduced the cost of transmission by the elimination of unnecessary duplication of lines and transmission facilities. They are providing a network transmission system that greatly reduces the chance for any serious interruption of service.

The prospect for dependable low-cost power in this area is encouraging. We are fortunate in being a part of the big system.

"Forest Facts"

We have received a copy of the 1958 edition of Minnesota Forest Facts, published by the Minnesota Committee of American Forest Products Industries. As publications go, it is not an elaborate pamphlet, but it is loaded with information that is important to our state.

It reminds us of a natural resource that now is [illegible] one of our state's most important industries. Because this resource is a crop that not only is replaceable, but can be made many times more productive than it is at present, it is a reminder of a great potential that we continue to neglect.

Among the states of the Union, Minnesota is singularly rich in forest-potential. We have enormous publicly-owned forest acreage, most of it growing an inferior crop. By proper development and protection, this forest acreage, most of it unsuited for other purposes, could be made to yield a crop that would be far more valuable to future generations than our deposits of iron ore.

We have many informed and dedicated conservationists in the state, who are performing a great service in promoting worthwhile conservation practices. Unfortunately, too much of our conservation effort is misdirected into meaningless and nonsensical programs that serve no good purpose and in some instances do considerable harm.

In the best interests of a conservation program, that would be beneficial both to sportsmen and to taxpayers, we suggest that the special tax hunters now are required to pay for the restoration of wetlands be changed to a tax for the restoration and development of our forests. In an area where too much water is the problem rather than too little water, and where farmers are much more important to our economy than waterfowl and muskrats, we are not in favor of more beaver dams and bigger bogs.

Power Must Be Controlled

New York City's recent strike of subway employees emphasizes the need for reasonable curbs on the acts of irresponsible employee groups. The New York strike, that inconvenienced millions of people, some seriously, was the result of internal union differences. A group of motormen, backed by signalmen and towermen, insisted on their right to bargain directly with the city's Transit Authority, separately from the Transport Workers Union of which they were a part.

The strike was an internal revolt against a union. It was a strike by government employees against government, which is against the law. And the strikers ignored a court injunction to stop the strike.

It is not right to blame the rank and file members of organized labor for a situation of this kind. Incidents of this nature can generally be attributed to racketeer labor leadership and unprincipled politicians.

During the past year a congressional investigation of labor unions has been helpful in revealing to the public some of the abuses of power that have come with centralized authority in the control of labor organizations. Out of this information probably will come more effective regulation.

It has been necessary, over a period of many years, to establish curbs and controls on big business to protect the public from the abuses of monopoly control. As labor organizations become bigger, and their monopoly powers greater, they too will have to be curbed and controlled in the public interest.

Fortunately there is a strong segment both within the ranks and among the leaders of organized labor that understands this need.

Upward, Ever Upward

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

Raw materials, both those we produce and those we import, are generally down—some of them severely down—in price. But the cost of living reached a record high of 123.4 on Oct. 1, and on Nov. 1 was 123.3, this minuscule drop being due to lower food prices. Shelter, clothing and furniture continued their merry way upward.

Wages and salaries are our prime cost, accounting for half the cost of our total output. They have been going up at a rate which wipes out whatever price reductions Canadian consumers might have expected as a result of the fall in raw material prices. Thus, lumber is down, but not the price of housing; industrial raw materials are down, but not the price of the end-products. How, then can we ever expect the cost of living to decline?

True enough, it has held approximately steady for the last three months. But this stability cannot continue if we get further rounds of indiscriminate wage increases, inevitably followed by price increases.

And that is the trouble. So long as we have yearly rounds of wage increases, unrelated to productivity or indeed to anything else, consumer prices are bound to rise regardless of how material prices may fluctuate. The process can end only when indiscriminate wage increases are halted, as the British Government is trying to do; or when wages are again related to productivity, as would seem appropriate to this country. Given the latter, Canadians could expect at least a stable price level, if not regular price reductions. They could expect, in short, what the majority of them profess to want.

Raise Postal Rates

(Ed Morrison, The Morris Tribune)

For several sessions congress has been toying around with bills to increase rates in order to balance the books in the post office department. Very little has been done, perhaps because the public is somewhat apathetic to post office deficits. Also there may be individuals and firms who would rather pay their postage bills in the form of taxes rather than in higher postal rates.

Actually postal deficits of any size are of comparatively recent origin. Until about 1945 the post office as a whole operated on a nearly break-even basis. There is every reason why it should do so today. Deficit operations have no place in a prosperous economy.

All that is required is a slight increase in the rates for all classes of mail. After the post office department has computed the actual cost of rendering service as accurately as possible, rates should be adjusted to cover these costs.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With

Clinton Davidson

Look into the sky this Christmas night and what you see may not be the bright star of Bethlehem that guided the three wise men to the Manger almost 2,000 years ago, but a man-made sputnik.

Listen carefully for what you hear may not be the angels who sang "Peace on Earth" that wonderful night Christ was born, but the awesome beep-beep-beep of a machine circling the earth with the body of a dog.

Search the world over and you will find millions of people kneeling in silent prayer for the promise of "peace on earth and good will among men." Join them, for that is our only hope.

Christmas means peace. Jesus said to his disciples "have peace with one another . . . follow peace with all men" and "peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." He told them "these things have I spoken unto you, that in me you might have peace."

The Apostle Paul said "the Kingdom of God is joy and peace," and he began his letters to the churches with the salutation, "peace be with you." He also said "God has called us to peace."

While the world trembles on the brink of war, you can find strength and personal peace in the scripture which says "thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee."

The only peace that we can have this Christmas is peace of mind and spirit. Material peace is not to be found. Twenty years ago, in the midst of a great financial depression, I talked with two men, each of whom had amassed a personal fortune of over $100 million.

They were talking about President Roosevelt and the great powers he exercised over business, and both were fearful that in their old age they might not have a proper shelter and sufficient food. They began seeking means that would guarantee them the necessities of life as long as they lived.

Finally, they concluded that the only safe method was to deposit gold in safe deposit vaults of London banks. They did just that, and three years later the Germans were bombing London.

I could not help but contrast the fears of these men, who had over $200 million between them, with my brother-in-law who was then a preacher for a small church in Kentucky. He received $150 a month and he owned nothing except a mortgaged home.

He, however, had no fears or worries whatsoever regarding his having a proper shelter and sufficient food as long as he lived. His mind was stayed on God and God kept him in perfect peace. He still has that peace.

Anyone who reads the New Testament cannot help but be impressed by the spirit of joy and peace that filled the lives of Christians at that time. Some will say that those people were not confronted with the dangers and fears that we face today. They are mistaken.

The Apostolic letters which spoke of their great joy and peace were written while Nero was persecuting the Christians, throwing them into the arena to be devoured by lions, or burning them at the stake.

They had the "peace of God that passeth all understanding." How those people at that time could be happy, joyful, and filled with the peace of God is indeed beyond understanding, unless you can understand what having Christ in your life means—unless you can understand that the Christmas message, beginning with the day of Christ's birth and continuing through the ages, is a message of peace, the only peace that exists in the world today.

Nominations Are Asked for Jaycee Award

Distinguished Service Key Will Be Given Young Man

President N. H. Kortuem of the Thief River Falls Jaycees announced today that the local chapter, in keeping with presentations to be made by nearly all Junior Chambers of Commerce during Jaycee Week in January, will present a distinguished service award key to Thief River Falls' outstanding young man.

Selection of the recipient is to be made by a committee of local citizens and the award is to be presented after approval of the committee's nominee by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. The award will be presented on or about January 15, to the young man the judges believe has contributed most to the welfare of this community during the past twelve months.

"It should be noted that the winner need not be a member of Jaycees", Kortuem said. "The entire community is asked to participate in a search for a worthy candidate for this community award".

Any person knowing of an outstanding person, age 21 to 35, who has contributed highly to the benefit of this city is invited to place the name of that individual in nomination. A blank for this purpose can be obtained at either the Northern State bank or the Union State bank in Thief River Falls, or the nomination blank as printed in the Jan. 2 issue of the Times may also be used.

At the same time as Thief River Falls' outstanding young man is honored, by the local Jaycee chapter, more than 2,000 other young men will be recognized is similar ceremonies by Jaycees all over America.

$390 Damage When Car Rams Another

Greenbush Man Collides with J. M. Roche Car

A collision Saturday noon in which one car rammed the rear of another resulted in approximately $390 to the cars involved, police reported here today.

J. M. Roche, city, was driving north on Main av. when he had to stop to allow a car pulling onto Main from E. Fourth st. to cross traffic. Roche's car was hit in the right rear fender by another car driven by Walter Stromlund, Greenbush, who was travelling in the same direction as Roche.

Damage to Roche's car was estimated at $90, while Stromlund's car was more extensively damaged in front with the estimate running to $300.

No charges were filed. Police said the accident may have been caused by faulty brakes, according to evidence at the scene, and Stromlund was issued a "fix" ticket instructing him to have his brakes checked and repaired if necessary.

ROGER W. BABSON

Internationally known business commentator, whose Business and Financial Forecast for 1958 will appear in the next issue of the Times. A careful checking of his predictions for 1957, published in this paper a year ago, shows that they upheld the remarkable average of past years by being 88 per cent correct.

Group Parties and Special Services Set Tuesday Night

With only one day of 1957 remaining, local citizens are reviewing the record of the past year and looking ahead to 1958 with mixed feelings of hope and apprehension, the latter feeling being due to the international situation and to a growing belief that the long-continued boom times for business are coming to an end.

Regardless of what the new year may hold in store, residents of this community are preparing to welcome it in a variety of ways. Many will attend New Years Eve parties sponsored by various local groups, while others will assemble in the churches for watchnight services.

Among the local groups sponsoring parties Tuesday night are the Thief River Golf club, Elks lodge, Eagles aerie, American Legion and the VFW post. Orchestras will supply music for dancing, and there will be caps and noisemakers to add a festive touch. Lunch will be served.

Trinity Lutheran church will hold special services at 8 o'clock New Years Eve, while the First Lutheran church will conduct rites at 8:30, and the Evangelical Free church at 11 o'clock.

Young people of the First Baptist church are sponsoring a Wake Night service at 9 o'clock Tuesday, and St. John's Lutheran church will hold services at 7:30 Tuesday and at 10:30 New Year's Day. The Church of the Nazarene will meet Tuesday at 9 p.m., followed by a prayer service and Communion at 11.

103 Farmers Sign up New Conservation Reserve Contracts

Patrick W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office reports that to date 103 new conservation reserve contracts have been signed by Pennington county producers. These are in addition to the 274 which were in effect and will be carried over into the 1958 program year.

The final date for signing contracts under the Conservation Reserve program is April 15, 1958.

Due to the fact that all farms going into the conservation reserve program in 1958 require an on-the-farm inspection before the contract can be negotiated, the office suggests that all interested producers contact the county office at their very earliest convenience.

New seeding requirements under the 1958 conservation reserve program are somewhat different than were in effect in 1957. They are as follows:

Seeding requirements — At least six pounds per acre of grasses when seeded alone; or at least six pounds of a mixture of legumes and grasses containing not less than four pounds of grasses. Straight seedings of legumes are not eligible.

The acreage reserve program will get under way on January 13, and will close on March 8, 1958. 301 Pennington county wheat producers participated in the program in 1957. All wheat producers who intend to cooperate in this part of the Soil Bank program in 1958 are are urged to contact the county ASC office immediately after January 13, 1958. Funds are limited under this program agreements will be accepted on a first come—first served basis.

Following the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's mother in the church parlors. Approximately 100 guests were present. Rev. Hoseth acted as master of ceremonies with several toasts being given. Floyd Hanson and Mrs. Bjornrud sang during the reception.

The bridal table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with yellow and orchid roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Gladys Wold and Arlene Melvie of this city cut and served the cake while Kathryn Newfeld and Judith Wold, also of this city, poured.

Marshall-Beltrami Soil District Makes Plans for Next Year

Plans for next year were discussed at the December meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil conservation district board of supervisors. "Our main objective for next year will be to further encourage farmers to adopt a soil conserving program for their farms," said Oliver Howland, chairman of the board. "The experience of this past year has effectively demonstrated the value of a farm conservation plan."

Accordingly, several tours have been planned which will point out the advantage of a land management plan which will include a crop rotation, use of crop residues, and the use of green and barnyard manures. A ditching demonstration is planned illustrating the different ditches which can be constructed. The district will sponsor a land judging contest for F.F.A. and 4-H boys. They will have an exhibit stressing soil conservation in the district at the Marshall and Beltrami county fairs, as well as at the Grygla fall festival.

The district is also eager to promote interest in the proposed Mud River watershed project. Accordingly, they plan to write letters to those in authority to find out how soon the project can be planned and what can be done to get the project successfully completed. They will particularly stress the soil conservation and land management program in that portion of the district which falls within the watershed.

The district also plans a campaign to show state legislators and others the damage the beaver are doing within the district and adjacent areas in the hope that enabling legislation, if needed, will aid the state conservation department to control these pests. They will continue to aid the state conservation department in controlling the beaver in the farming areas by informing them where the troublesome dams are.

Don't Shrug Off A Cold You Can't Shake Off

A cold isn't something to be shrugged off as a minor nuisance or inconvenience. In addition to being a source of much discomfort, a cold is a "break" in your resistance to more serious respiratory infections and, if neglected, it may develop into a long and costly illness. Take every sensible precaution to avoid catching cold—and should you come down with one, get after it immediately. If a cold doesn't respond quickly to home treatment—or if it is accompanied by chills and fever—call your doctor without delay. The sooner you obtain his prescribed treatment — the sooner you'll be rid of your cold.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

A man who knows and appreciates fine guns is O. M. Bishop of this city. Bishop, who operates Bishop Auto Co., also does repairs and other work on "shootin' irons" and his shop is full of unique guns, as well as the new weapons.

He is a shotgun, rifle and pistol fancier and some of his pieces date back as much as two centuries or more. One of his current projects is rebuilding and old Kentucky rifle, one of the famous long rifles that played such a large part in winning the west in the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

It's true that he likes and owns some fine slide-action repeaters—but the side-byside double is still his true love and some of the pieces on his shelves go away back in shotgun history and carry such famous names as L. C. Smith, Fox and others.

He doesn't have any extra-fancy guns that we saw when we visited his gun shop . . . you know the kind that have selective single triggers and automatic ejectors—but his guns do sport some mighty fancy engraving, excellent actions and overall good looks.

One of Bishop's stories concern the fellow who brought a gun into his shop last fall. It was probably the fanciest piece even he'd ever seen, a little English 20-gauge double, beautifully engraved and a masterpiece in every way.

Fellow who owned the gun told Bishop he could never afford such a gun if he had to buy it—he'd inherited it, instead. Value of this gun was about the same as a low-priced four-door sedan.

Despite the fact the gun was so fancy as to merit a case something like one of the better violin cases' the owner took it out in the swamp for ducks last fall.

"Guess he couldn't see owning such a gun just to look at," Bishop laughed.

We'll add a footnote of our own at this point to comment it's a great pity the double gun has lost so much favor. With small game limits and such a large army of hunters in the field to compete for what game there is, the five or six-shot repeater isn't quite necessary.

A lot of people won't agree, but it's seldom one gets his bird on the third shot if he misses the first two. More often than not the third shot is superfluous anyway, since your bird is generally a "fur piece" away by the time one can trigger No. 3. All too often the third shot results in a cripple—and a cripple is usually a lost bird for all practical purposes.

One could just as well go afield with a ball and chain attached to his ankle as to carry an 8-pound cannon, commonly known as a duck gun, and try to fill your bag of partridge, for instance. (We're speaking in terms of wing-shooting here, of course.)

A heavy gun is OK on ducks. When you have to tote it around all day, as in upland hunting, that's quite another matter!

Well, 1957 is fast going over the hill. It hasn't been the best of years for some folks but for us it has been a red-letter year and we hate to see it go, in a way.

But, we also look forward to 1958. And, we hope to do better in 1958 by accomplishing more, by doing our job better, with less grumbling about minor matters and greater enthusiasm in everything.

Among our new year wishes: for the farmer, a good crop year with good prices for his produce and lower expenses.

For our local businessmen, a brisk business with fast turnover of all their stock, and less overhead. For everyone: lower prices and taxes, a smaller fuel bill, better health, less troubles, more enjoyment in life in general, peace and prosperity.

But, we do wish you and yours the best of everything for the coming New Year. Happy holidays and SO LONG!

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Educational Toys Are Fun Plus

What makes a toy a good choice? The word "educational" on a toy label is looked upon with suspicion by many purchasers. Perhaps it sounds overserious and "stuffed-shirty." Or perhaps it sounds more like work than play and seems to take the joy out of toy. How unfortunate this is—because to get an "educational" label the most important single factor a toy must have is child appeal.

No matter how serious the study of play behavior may have been, which resulted in judging the toy "educational," if the children had not enjoyed it enough to stay with it, the toy could not earn the label. Because one thing the educators know FOR SURE is that learning takes place best where there is real meaning, real interest, and real satisfaction inherent in the materials.

Educational levels, therefore, take much of the guesswork out of toy buying. It should be gratifying to know that a toy has interested many children. More than that, an educational toy has usually been tested at several age levels so that suggestions are offered as to what age child will be most interested in it.

It is true that there are always individual considerations for each child. Does he have much or litle play space? Is he an only child? What are the main family interests? What geographic factors are important? What are his special talents? Is he shy or aggressive, active or inactive? Toys can be chosen to be compatible with as many such individual considerations as possible, to encourage strengths or discourage weaknesses. But, basically, they must first appeal to him and be designed for his level of mastery.

Parents are familiar with the occasion where an elaborate toy is given to a child and soon the toy is cast aside as the child plays for hours with the wrappings. Why? Because the packaging may come closer than the toy to meeting the criteria of challenging the child's stimulating thinking, requiring manipulation, experimentation, and construction. There are other criteria, too, all of them bent upon helping toy purchasers and children get the most in quality, learning, and FUN for their money.

Thieves Take Roseau 6-3

Coach Paul Bedard's senior hockey Thieves opened play on their 1957-58 Northwest Hockey league schedule on Sunday afternoon, meeting the Roseau Cloverleafs on the Arena ice sheet, and the local sextet marked up a well-earned 6 to 3 triumph over the Leafs.

The Thieves will travel to Grand Forks on Friday night, Jan. 3rd., for a league game against the Grand Forks club, with face-off time at the Winter Sports Building slated for 8:00 p.m.

Mike McMahon's slap shot, from the point, gave the Thieves a 1 to 0 lead at the 11:50 mark of the first period of Sunday afternoon's game. The shot, taken by McMahon after he received a pass from Art Cloutier, was partially screened, and goalie Duane Olson, in the north net, didn't have a chance to make the save.

A neat combination play, with Bedard dunking a pass to Sid Vraa in front of the Roseau cage, and with Sid faking the goalie out of position, gave the Thieves a 2 to 0 lead at the 18:02 mark. And when DelRay Offerdahl poke-checked the puck off of a Roseau defenseman's stick and into the net, the locals had a 3 to 0 lead with less than two minutes of the period to play. Roseau notched their first goal at the 19:08 mark, with Jerry Greften finishing off a three-man rush, with Dickie Johnson and Frank Nystrom getting the assists.

Glenn Carlson, with Monty Markstrom assisting, opened the scoring in the second period, hitting the twine at the 3:24 mark. Wayne Hites found the range for the Leafs with a goal at 9:41, and when Orris Hasselstrom, on a shot that was deflected into the net off a Thieves' defenseman's skate, scored at 18:52, the Leafs were within a goal of tying the locals.

In the final period, Carlson and Darryl Durgin put in game-clinching goals, with Glenn scoring at the 1:04 mark and Darryl beating Olson at 13:35.

Playing a sparkling game in the nets for the Thieves was the veteran Jack McGill. The former St. Paul Saints proved a stalwart in the locals' goal, being particularly sturdy in the second period when he shoved aside ten on-goal shots.

County Attorney and Sheriff Back from Conventions

Sheriff John Cahill of Bemidji Named Head of State Association

County Attorney L. W. Rullen returned last week-end from St. Paul, where he attended the annual convention of the Minnesota County Attorneys association, while Sheriff Charles R. Richards was present at the annual session of the Minnesota Sheriffs association, also in St. Paul.

Gov. Freeman told the sheriffs association Friday that 1958 will see a drastic crackdown on drunken drivers using the state's streets and highways.

Freeman said reports had reached his office that some such motorists, through local pressure, had drunken driving charges reduced to those of careless driving.

"We must not make a farce of this law," the governor told the sheriffs. "These practices must be resisted. In the past no deviations from proper law enforcement has been made and this policy will be continued."

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

One of the Finest

One of the finest, if not the finest, college hockey lines to ever come out of Prowler hockey was in action at the Arena rink last Monday night during a practice session of the senior hockey Thieves.

We are referring, of course, to the line that included Lyle Guttu of Harvard, Marv Jorde of Minnesota, and Joey Poole of North Dakota. These three boys were teammates on the Prowler state champions of 1954, and Monday night was the first time that they had been together on the ice since that season.

Lyle, in his senior year, is a wing on the Harvard team; Marv, also a senior, is a wingman on the Gopher squad; and Joey, a junior, is center ice man for the powerful North Dakota Sioux. And these three boys are vital factors in the play of their respective college teams.

In spite of the boys' unquestioned ability, their flashing speed, their stickhandling skill, and hockey sense, they weren't able to make a shambles of the Thieves' practice session. They were "contained" pretty well, and this was due to a bit of strategy employed by player-coach Paul Bedard.

Explains Paul: "We knew that we couldn't skate with Lyle and Marv and Joey, and that they would try to circle out defense. We kind of out-foxed them, don't you know, for we moved the nets out fifteen feet. When they tried to circle the defense to get in position in front of the cage, they usually were forced behind the net. And were they surprised! It's the old strategy that pays off."

Confidential Information

We have learned, through reliable and authoritative channels, that Al Holzknecht has made several wagers to the effect that Ohio State will win their New Year's Day Rose Bowl game by a margin of eighteen points.

And further, these sources of information reveals that Holzknecht has made a modest wager that Murray Warmath will not be coaching the football Gophers next season.

This is the same Mr. Holzknecht who made wagers this past baseball season that the Brooklyn Dodgers would win the National league pennant.

Preview of Things to Come

It could very well be that the high school hockey game played in Minneapolis on Friday night, between St. Paul Johnson and the Roseau Rams, and which was won by Johnson by a 5 to 3 score, was a preview of one of the state tournament games that will be in St. Paul during the week of Feb. 20, 21, and 22.

The two teams, St. Paul Johnson favorites to win state tournament berths and, along with the Eveleth Golden Bears, are entitled to be rated as state tournament favorites.

It was admitted that last season was a rebuilding year for the St. Paul Johnson team, and that this is to be the year when they make a bid for a third state championship. Could be.

The Roseau Rams lost such players as Neal Johnson, Dave Wallestad, Frank Nystrom, and Steve Halvorson by graduation, but Oscar Almquist's regional champions of last season were primarily an under-graduate club. And the popular Roseau hockey mentor has the good fortune of having a number of boys coming up from the state championship peewee club of a couple of seasons ago. As the saying is, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer, and that's the way it is with the hockey-rich Roseau club.

A Warning

In addition to wishing a happy New Year to all sportsmen, we wish to include a warning to the hunters and fishermen that their 1957 hunting and angling licenses will expire as of midnight on Dec. 31st.

If you intend to do any hunting, for rabbits perhaps, or any fishing, for walleyes or crappies, during the New Year, be sure to secure a 1958 license.

Prowler Hockey Six Defeated by Eveleth, Ties Grand Rapids 3-3

Coach Johnny Matchefts and his hockey Prowlers returned on Saturday night from a two-game tour into the Iron Range, and the blue-and-gold performed creditably in losing one game, to Eveleth by a 2 to 1 score, and drawing with Grand Rapids, 3 to 3.

The Prowlers will remain out of competition until Tuesday night, Jan. 7th, when they travel to Crookston for a return game with coach Bill Sullivan's Crookston Cathedral sextet. And on Wednesday night, Jan. 8th, the Prowlers will open their eighth regional conference schedule when they meet the Red Lake Falls Eagles on the Arena rink.

Playing at Eveleth on Friday night, the Prowlers, on defenseman Harold Froehle's slap shot in the opening minute of play, gained a short-lived 1 to 0 lead. The veteran Eveleth team, with Jim Drobnick finishing off a play with Jim Curphy and Gust Hendrickson, evened the tally a minute later.

The game moved along in a 1-all deadlock until midway in the second period when Eveleth's Gerry Rosati, on a solo rush, beat goalie Wayne Erickson to notch the game-winning marker.

Playing at Grand Rapids on Saturday afternoon the ever-trying Prowlers, trailing by a 3 to 1 score entering the final minutes of game, scored a pair of quick goals, with Dale Wennberg and Arlan Hjelle hitting the twine, to even the game and force an overtime period. Neither team scored in the overtime period, and the game ended as a 3-all draw. Mike Poole tallying in the second period, gave the Prowlers a 1 to 0 lead, only to have the Grand Rapids club erase that lead and move into what appeared to be a comfortable 3 to 1 advantage.

2 Hurt in Mishap Due to Icy Street

Ice Resulting from Broken Main Causes Car Accident

With roads and streets in the area in good to excellent driving condition last week chances of a person's having an accident because of losing control on ice were somewhat the same as a person's chance of being struck by lightening.

But, in the case of Thomas G. Belland, city, the one-in-a-million chance of an accident caused by ice happened.

Belland was driving east on E. Third st. about 2:20 p.m. Friday when he lost control of his car on the ice between Maple and Spruce avenues. The ice had been caused by a broken water main in the vicinity Christmas day and had flooded E. Third st. in that area.

As a result of losing control on the ice Belland hit a tree near the alley between Spruce and Maple, causing an estimated $750 damage to his 1957 model car.

Both Thomas Belland and his passenger, Gerald Belland, rt. 4, city were taken to Northwestern Hospital. Thomas was released after examination but Gerald is still hospitalized here from injuries received in the crash.

Highway department crews had removed most of the ice the day after the main broke but enough was left to make the roadway slippery. The department was notified by city police to sand the icy area, following Friday's accident there.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

SPORTSMEN most intimately familiar with the great world outdoors are continually learning that Mother Nature has the peculiar habit of taking care of all her children.

Mother Nature provides the instinct for self preservation which guides and motivates the actions and habits of all her creatures. Quite often, the unexpected arrival of an early winter will catch you and me unaware. The storm doors and windows will still be in the cellar; the snow tires in the garage and the car in desperate and immediate need of winterizing. But nature's furred and feathered creatures have made their usual, mechanical preparations and are ready.

The blackbirds, ducks and geese have winged southward to warmer climes; the deer has shed the short red hair of summer for a heavier coat of longer hair and a more negative color which blends easier into the somber days of winter. In the colder parts of our country, the snowshoe hare and the weasel receive protective coloration, as their fur coats become white during months of heavy snow.

Winter is a time of full hibernation or semi-activity for many of natures creatures. Such animals prepare themselves by stuffing their stomachs and dens with food. The black bear getting ready for a winter nap will stuff and cram himself until it becomes difficult for him to walk—and his stomach has developed a fatty layer that is inches thick. The bear, however, is not a true hibernator. During warm spells of winter, he may forsake his "nap" and make a short venture in search of a few tasty morsels of food.

St. Hilaire 4-H'ers Win Safety Award

41-member Group Places First Among County Clubs

The St. Hilaire 4-H club again won safety honors in Pennington county, according to county agent Paul Stelmaschuk. The St. Hilaire group is one of the large clubs in the county with forty-one members in the last year. All of the members were enrolled in the safety project.

In addition to executing safety measures on their farms, the members prepared a float with a safety theme for the Eagles parade, gave demonstrations in their club and erected a window display on safety at St. Hilaire Agsco, carried out a reflectorizing program which all the farm families participated and an estimated one hundred machines were reflectorized, and 95 percent of the club members exhibited safety posters at the county fair.

The total results and activities engaged in by the members in safety work were of a high calibre, says Stelmaschuk. The St. Hilaire club has been presented a cash award by the J. I. Case Company of Minneapolis, and this is the second year they are so honored.

The leaders of the club are Mrs. Wendel Corbet, Mrs. Al Brink, Oliver Haugen and Gerald Yonke.

Two Win Trips to National Meeting

Twin Valley and Pinewood 4-H'ers Go to Kansas City

Two northern Minnesota 4-H poultry project members have been selected to attend the junior section of the national poultry and egg fact-finding conference February 13-16 in Kansas City, Mo.

They are Dalmon Larson, 18, Twin Valley, and Diane Helgeson, 16, Pinewood. They were selected on the basis of their outstanding work in poultry projects.

Larson has raised nearly 10,000 turkeys in the last three years, maintaining livability at 99 percent. He won the Norman county turkey championship three times. In 1956 his record placed fifth in competition at the National Turkey Federation meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Manley Larson.

Miss Helgeson started her poultry project with 25 chicks. She is now in partnership with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Helgeson, on their Beltrami county farm. Twice she demonstrated egg production at the Minnesota state fair and twice she won county poultry championships.

The Minnesota Poultry, Butter and Egg association, Minneapolis, is sponsoring the trips.

3% SAVINGS
CERTIFICATES

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL EXPLAIN THIS PLAN

Q. What about risk??
A. Unlike many other investments you are sure of a regular, guaranteed return on your savings investment with a Union State Savings Certificate. And—its value does not fluctuate.
Q. How regular?
A. Every six months.
Q. Starting after six months?
A. No. Interest starts the day you buy a Union State Savings Certificate.
Q. In addition to being regular, you also said the return is "guaranteed"—what do you mean by that?
A. The interest rate, 3%, is guaranteed by the Union State Bank.
Q. How else are these Savings Certificates a "no-risk" investment?
A. They're backed by the resources of your Bank and insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, of which Union State Bank is a member.
Q. Suppose I decide suddenly to cash in my Certificates—how long must I wait?
A. You can withdraw your money as readily as from any bank savings account.
Q. And I will receive interest?
A. Yes, you receive interest every six months.
Q. Must I come to the bank to collect my interest?
A. No. Your interest checks will be mailed to you automatically every six months.
Q. When does a Savings Certificate mature?
A. There is no maturity date. Savings Certificate, unlike most savings certificates, goes on indefinitely—paying you interest every six months. There's nothing for you to do but cash or redeposit your interest checks.
Q. I've been out of college only a short while so my savings arent' large. Wouldn't you say these Certificates are mostly for people with substantial savings?
A. Not at all. Many young people like yourself buy Savings Certificates. They keep buying and holding them long enough to accumulate savings for a particular purpose. Perhaps buy a car, make a down payment on a home . . . for many things. Yet they know it's only business-like to let their savings provide additional income while they're being accumulated.
Q. What is the smallest amount I can invest in a Savings Certificate?
A. As little as $100.
Q. I have $163. Can I buy a $163 certificate—or are they available only in multiples of $100?
A. You certainly can buy a Savings Certificate for $163 . . . or one for $175 . . . $412 . . . $3,000—any amount $100 or over.
Q. With my husband gone, my savings must, in part, provide my income. Would you say Savings Certificates are for me?
A. Many are bought by people who must depend on their savings' earnings for part of their income. Savings Certificates are ideal for them. True, the return may be slightly lower than on more speculative things but its' dependable. The security of 3% bank interest makes for more peace of mind. And 3% is a good return.
Q. I'm a working girl. But I do have a small amount saved. How does a Savings Certificate differ from a regular savings account?
A. Regular savings accounts earn 2% interest which is compounded quarterly, while a Union State Savings Certificate earns 3% paid semi-annually.
Q. What's the difference between a Savings Certificate and a Certificate of Deposit?
A. They are similar but not the same. A Certificate of Deposit with its fixed maturity can be redeemed only on specified dates except for emergencies. A Savings Certificate is more flexible—you can withdraw your money as readily as from any bank savings account and it continues indefinitely.
Q. Suppose I lose a Savings Certificate—or it is destroyed or stolen?
A. The Certificate is registered when you buy it. It's not negotiable, assignable, or transferable. Replacement is simple. However, it's always business-like to keep valuables together in one safe place. Consider a Bank Safe Deposit Box. Rental is inexpensive.
Q. It's inconvenient for me to get to the bank—can a Savings Certificate be purchased by mail?

$24 Million Jobless Benefits Paid in '57

Claimants for benefits under the Minnesota employment security Law received an estimated $24 million in 1957, according to a year-end summary issued today by Commissioner Frank T. Starkey of the department of employment security.

This figure is an increase of 18.5% over 1956 payments and is the second highest annual amount paid to the state's unemployed workers in the twenty years the program has been in operation. In 1954, the high year, $26.5 million were paid out.

This increase in benefits payments is the result of a number of factors. Included among them are the extension of coverage to firms employing 4-7 employees in cities of less than 10,000 population; and increase in unemployment in the latter part of the year, higher wage rates, and the higher benefit schedule that became effective on July 1, 1957.

In 1957 the weeks of compensated unemployment totaled 970,000; about 11% more than in 1956. The average weekly payment was $24.66, about $1.10 more than the 1956 average. The number of unemployed workers drawing benefits for one or more weeks of unemployment was 76,000 or 5% greater. The 14,000 workers who drew all of their benefits during the year is about the same as those who exhausted their benefit rights in 1956.

In addition to its responsibilities in the administration of the state law, the Department also handles the unemployment insurance programs for federal employees and for veterans in Minnesota, under an agreement with the government at Washington.

In 1957, benefits payments to unemployed veterans declined 18%, and jobless benefits for federal employees, which started in 1955, increased 80%.

The purpose of the "UC" program is to provide workers with funds to meet essential needs until they get back to work, should they become unemployed. Thus, the welfare of the entire state is served by avoiding the shock of the jobless group having no buying power at all, Starkey said, adding that this steadying factor has been in operation ever since the program was started, nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Broadcasts Straight From The Heart

Only 1/20th of an inch in diameter and 3/4ths of an inch in length, this recently developed ultra-sensitive heart microphone is so small that it can be passed through an artery or vein into any part of human heart where it "broadcasts" on-the-spot sounds of heart-beat and blood-flow. With the help of a radiologist, a physician specializing in the diagnostic and therapeutic uses of x-ray, the mike is guided carefully and accurately into the heart and operates without interfering noises from breathing, digestive activity or normal room sounds. Device also eliminates natural inaccuracies that may develop in use of the stethoscope because heart sounds must travel through the lungs and body tissues of chest walls before reaching the stethoscope—and finally the doctor's ears.

Announce St. Paul Winter Carnival

Ten-day Event Slated to Open January 24

The ten-day St. Paul Winter Carnival, which opens on January 24 and runs through February 2, will help commemorate the 100th anniversary of Minnesota statehood. The festival theme will be "Centennial Holiday."

Frigid temperatures and snow and ice again will form the backdrop for a series of parades, pageants and winter sports activities to be presided over by the legendary character, Boreas, King of the North Wind, and his Queen of Snows.

St. Paul will be out to prove to the rest of the nation that winter in Minnesota can be an exciting adventure.

This year's festival will attract several stars of movies, stage, radio and television. Five nation-wide TV network shows already have been scheduled to originate from St. Paul during Carnival week.

The Carnival, which ranks among the ten most famous festivals in the nation, again will feature its ice fishing contest, mutt dog races, a grand parade, the Queen of Snows coronation spectacle, nation speed skating championships, ski jumping contest, baton twirling competition, and a square dance that is expected to attract more than 2,500 men and women from 12 mid-west states.

The Winter Carnival has set aside Saturday, February 1, to entertain Minnesota mayors, editors and legislators.

Cash farm income in the U. S. was $30.5 billion in 1956. California, Iowa and Illinois led in that order.

Another Year

(W. R. Hunt)

The sun is just rising on the morning of another day, the first day of a new year. What can I wish that this day, this year, may bring me? Nothing that shall make the world or others poorer, nothing at the expense of other men; but just those things which in their coming do not stop with me, but touch me rather, and gather strength:

—a few friends who understand me, and yet remain my friends.

—a work to do which has real value without which the world would feel the poorer. A return for such work small enough not to tax unduly any one who pays.

—a mind unafraid to travel, even though the trail be not blazed. An understanding heart.

—a sight of the eternal hills and unresting sea, and of something beautiful the hand of man has made. A sense of humor and the power to laugh.

—a little leisure with nothing to do.

—a few moments of quiet, silent meditation. The sense of the presence of God.

And the patience to wait for the coming of these things, with the wisdom to know when they come.

—W.R. Hunt

In The Good Old Days

Several years ago the last day of the year was also the last day of business for a great New York City department store, Wanamakers. For more than a century Wanamakers had served the city and was recognized nationally as one of the most successful organizations of the country. The record of its rise and fall follows the common pattern of life.

The liquidation of the old store revealed an interesting document, a bulletin board notice that dated back to the year 1854. In this statement by the management employees were told:

"Store must be open at 6:30 a.m., and remain open until 9:00 p.m. the year around.

"The store must be swept, counters, base shelves and show cases dusted. Lamps trimmed, filled and the chimneys cleaned; pens made; doors and windows opened; a pail of water and a scuttle of coal must be brought in by each clerk before breakfast, if there is time to do so, and attend to customers who call.

"The store must not be open on the Sabbath day unless absolutely necessary, and then only for a few minutes. Any employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, getting shaved at the barber shop, going to dances and other places of amusement will most surely give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and all-around honesty.

"Each employee must not pay less than $5.00 per year to the church and must attend Sunday School every Sunday.

"After 14 hours of work in the store, the leisure time must be spent in reading good literature.

"Men employees are given an evening a week for courting purposes, and two if they go to prayer meeting regularly."

This is interesting not because it came from Wanamakers but because it tells us clearly what general working conditions were in the country at that time. The generations who preceded us; whether they were employed in stores or in the fields and forests and on the sea, or whether they labored at the forge or built canals and railroads; had working days that were long and hard.

Compensation was meager. In order to exist a day they had to work a day. By our standards they were slaves.

But maybe we should keep in mind the fact that our high living standards are largely the result of their sacrifices. We have inherited the fruits of their labors.

Traditionaly, the arrival if a new year is a season of dedication and high resolve. In looking forward to the future we review the past. The records of the past reveal quite clearly that all that lives will die, and that applies not only to man but also to all that man creates, his institutions and his nations.

We know that America is now great and strong. The records tell us convincingly that America will not always be great and strong. With the flowering begins the corruption that leads to death.

Fortunately there is an area of choice in the matter. By our conduct we may prolong the period of greatness. By our misconduct we may speed the cycle of decay.

Our generation has inherited its greatness. We owe our heritage to the industry and thrift of preceding generations. Our appreciation is too often expressed by the holding of mass meetings for the purpose of feeling sorry for ourselves. Our favorite politicians remind us constantly of the great injustices we suffer.

Maybe our own futures, and the future of our nation, would be brighter if we gave more consideration to what coming generations will inherit from us.

Centennial Year

Minnesota will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its statehood in 1958 and that should make the new year especially interesting for us. The Centennial observances that will be held in various forms thruout the state, will remind some of us not so much how old but rather how young our state is. Many of us have personal recollections of events that occurred, and public problems with which we have been confronted, during more than half of those hundred years.

Starting next week the Monday Times will present the first of a series of historical sketches of the area that became a state in 1858 and its progress during the century that it has been organized as the self-governing member of our United States. These articles have been prepared under the direction and sponsorship of the State Historical Society and the Minnesota Editorial Association. They will be supplemented by our own biographical sketches of local sponsors—both individuals and organizations—and with stories of local historical interest.

As one of the youngest communities in this young state we have not yet become particularly history minded. The past is still so close to us that it has no special historical significance.

In our own county several attempts have been made to develop interest in a historical society. A room that provides ample space for the immediate needs of such an organization has been provided in the new court house. Maybe the Centennial will generate enough interest in our history locally to give the historical society the encouragement and support it must have to function successfully.

To all who follow through to this point in the column we are particularly grateful, and to them we offer our very best wishes for an especially happy New Year.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

LOST COUNTIES

The Minnesota territorial legislature in establishing counties and defining boundaries, often disregarded previous acts or moved without sufficient knowledge of the country. As a result, some counties overlapped, boundaries were confused, and citizens did not know in which county they lived.

In 1858 Judge Moses Sherburne and William Hollinshead were appointed to bring together all the Minnesota laws passed by the territorial legislatures into a single volume. The poor men were never able to bring order out of the many conflicting county boundary lines that had been set up.

The legislature endeavored to remedy the situation by creating new counties, and in this way some of Minnesota's original counties disappeared. Among the counties lost were Pierce, which was created in 1853 and adjoined Nicollet County; Davis, which lay north and west of Renville and Carver counties; Buchanan, which is now largely in Pine County; and Monroe, now in Mille Lacs County.

Many counties, once established by the legislature, fell by the wayside because there were not enough people in them to organize a government. These areas later became a part of other counties. The names of some of these counties were Keating, Seward, St. Anthony, Ripley, McPhail, Franklin and Canby.

CAPITAL REMOVAL

After the capital of Minnesota was established in St. Paul in 1849, various forces worked from time to time to move it to Stillwater, Mendota, St. Peter, Kandiyohi, Minneapolis, or other cities.

An editorial writer for the "Minneapolis Daily Tribune" remarked in the issue of February 27, 1873, that the bill pending in the state legislature to remove the capitol from St. Paul to Kandiyohi probably would not pass, and added, "it is a pity." He went on to say that "It is a shocking thing that our legislators are compelled to meet annually in the 'wickedest city' in the State, where gin mills and other disorderly places gap at them from every corner." In St. Paul, he wrote, the legislators were surrounded by "greedy office-holders" and "corrupt politicians" who "haunt the legislative halls by day, and by night fasten upon the weary members at their hotels . . . tempting them to downfall by their vile and corrupt propositions. Many a man's life has been wrecked by reason of his having been elected to spend the winter in St. Paul."

Though he thought Kandiyohi would be better than St. Paul, it comes as no surprise to read that the Minneapolis editor's suggestion for the best place in which the legislators might meet in peace was — Minneapolis. "With its virtuous surroundings," he wrote, "it is undoubtedly the fittest place in the State for the Capitol."

FIRST FEDERAL COURTS

On June 11, 1849, Governor Alexander Ramsey issued a proclamation establishing three federal judicial districts in Minnesota Territory and naming three successive Monday in the following August as court days at Stillwater, the Falls of St. Anthony, and Mendota, respectively.

The First District court convened at Stillwater on August 13 with Judge Aaron Goodrich presiding. Governor and Mrs. Ramsey attended the proceedings and were entertained that evening at a dinner in Stillwater.

In the Second District, Judge Bradley B. Meeker held court on August 20 in a house attached to the government sawmill on the west side of St. Anthony Falls. There was no business to come before the court on that occasion.

The first court session in the Third District, held in Henry H. Sibley's warehouse at Mendota on August 27, likewise had no cases on its docket. It was, however, memorable because of an address that Judge David Cooper delivered to the assembled grand jury. Cooper's speech, on the value of the grand jury in a democracy, has been admired by lawyers and jurists, and it is familiarly known to them as "Cooper's Charge."

Despite the excellence of Judge Cooper's speech and the obvious care with which it had bee prepared, it was largely wasted on the grand jury, for most of them spoke only French.

LEWIS CASS

The curiosity of the governor of a territory concerning the extreme western portions of his domain put the name of Lewis Cass on the list of Minnesota trail blazers. Cass was governor of Michigan territory in 1818 when it was enlarged to include all the land between lake Michigan and the Mississippi River north of Illinois.

In order to become personally acquainted with the Indian tribes and the geography of his territory, Cass organized and led an exploring expedition through the new region in the summer of 1820. The party reached Fond du Lac by way of Sault Ste. Marie and Lake Superior, followed the usual canoe route to Sandy Lake, then proceeded up the Mississippi to a "beautiful sheet of transparent water" which was named Cassina in honor of the leader. It is now known as Cass Lake.

In his journal of the trip, Henry R. Schoolcraft, who accompanied Cass, recorded that Cas Lake "may be considered the true source of the Mississippi River." Apparently Schoolcraft did not really believe this to be true, however, for twelve years later he again invaded the northern wilderness to search for the "true source" of the Father of Waters, which he discovered and named Lake Itasca.

After leaving Cass Lake the party traveled by canoe down the Mississippi to Fort Snelling and then returned to Detroit. Cass is known not only as a frontier governor and explorer, but as a statesman, for he later served as United States minister to France, as a senator from Michigan, and as secretary of state under President Buchanan.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

Minnesota is entering its centennial year. During the century since Minnesota became a state it has seen tremendous growth and development. Throughout the coming year celebrations noting the highlights of Minnesota history will be held in scores of communities.

The Past

A study of Minnesota's history reveals a wealth of romance, adventure, and solid achievement. During our centennial year we hope that more of our citizens than ever before will become familiar with our past. A greater recognition of the struggles and accomplishments of earlier years bring with it a greater pride in our state and a better understanding of the substantial progress we have made.

The Future

But the greatest value inherent in a review of the past lies in the hope, inspiration, and incentive it provides for the future. I am confident that we in Minnesota are on the threshold of a new century of progress that will far surpass anything we have known.

Our Part

It is really exciting and thrilling to realize how much we can contribute to that future. But we cannot enjoy that thrill unless we are able to look ahead, to visualize what can come of our work. Failure to look ahead has cost us much in the past. The ability to look ahead will mean much for our future.

Looking Ahead

An example of this is found in a recent report I received from the Minnesota department of conservation, which contained this statement: "Headline Of The Year—41,230,000 tree seeds planted."

During the early years of our history, Minnesota's great timber resources were depleted by too rapid exploitation, by a cutting down of trees with too little regard for the future of our forests. At that time the supply seemed so great, and the undeveloped areas of our country so vast, that scarcity of this kind of raw material seemed very remote.

Now we know that the need for timber and wood products will be great. And, unlike many of our other crops, a tree crop must be planned in terms of generations rather than in seasons or years.

Tree Seedlings

The conservation department report goes on to note that the 41,230,000 tree seeds were planted at three state nurseries last fall, with more to be planted next spring. Allowing for losses due to poor seeds, rodent and insect destruction, and extreme weather conditions, it is estimated that from 38,000,000 to 40,000,000 seedlings will be dug and shipped during the next three years. Minnesota's future will be brighter because of this project.

In fact, the whole reason for activities in the field of conservation is to provide for the future,—either the immediate future or years ahead. Studies to learn more about game and fish are made so that we may have greater supplies in the future. Study, planning, and control of our water resources are carried out so that our presently adequate water supply will continue to be one of Minnesota's great advantages.

52 Estates Were Handled in 1957 in Probate Court

15 Cases of Juvenile Delinquency Entered in Past Year, Report Shows

A total of 52 estates, including six wills, were entered in probate court here in 1957, the figure being substantially below the 1956 total of 65, Judge Herman A. Kjos announced today. Six guardianships were opened during the year.

Committed to state institutions were six mentally ill persons, including, one non-resident; three inebriates and two senile persons.

Fifteen cases involving juvenile delinquency were entered last year, including only boys and no girls, the total being slightly less than in 1956. Only one dependency hearing was conducted.

A total of 35 traffic cases involving juveniles were heard, with drivers licenses being suspended in 26 cases for from 15 to 60 days. Judge Kjos called attention to the fact that too many parents permit their children to drive a car without the protection of liability insurance, thus laying themselves open to damage suits.

Seek Chaperones for Teen Dances

Next Dance Friday Night in Municipal Auditorium

Teen-age dances are held on Friday nights at the city Auditorium under the sponsorship of the city recreation board, assisted by the five Senior Girl Scout troops of the city.

These dances are open to all teen-agers in the vicinity and a small admission fee is made to defray the music expense. They are well chaperoned, but the need for more volunteer adults to help is very great and would be appreciated if any interested adults would offer to chaperone. They may do so by calling the Girl Scout Office, MU 1-3070 and giving their names.

On Friday, Jan. 3, a special New Years dance will be held at the Auditorium with Girl Scout Troop 11 in charge.

43 Men Complete Course in Steam Boiler Operation

Most of Them Are Given Licenses after Passing State Board Examinations

A group of 43 men who recently completed a 12 week adult evening school course in stationary steam boiler operation came from the following 18 towns in Northwestern Minnesota—St. Hilaire, Grygla, Goodridge, Holt, Erskine, Winger, Viking, Roseau, Mahnomen, Greenbush, Middle River, Plummer, Thief River Falls, Gatzke, Ada, Bagley, McIntosh, and Oklee. This course was one of 24 adult evening school courses that were offered at the Area Vocational School during the fall semester.

At the completion of the course, the graduates were given the opportunity of taking the state board examination for either 1st or 2nd class licenses if their practical working experience was sufficient for eligibility. All persons taking the 2nd class license examination and 80% of those taking the 1st class examination were successful and have been licensed.

A new series of adult evening school classes will begin in January and February. Another class in stationary steam boiler operation will begin on Thursday evening, January 16 and a course in commercial refrigeration maintenance, especially designed for retail and wholesale establishments utilizing refrigeration equipment, will begin on Wednesday evening, January 15.

A more complete list of courses to be offered will be published at a later date.

Small Headway Made in Chest Drive Lately

40 Pct. of Business District Remains to Be Canvassed

Contributions to the 1957 Pennington county Community Chest drive continue to trickle in at a slow rate, although there is no substantial change in the approximately $3000 last reported, Harold Storhaug, secretary-treasurer, said today.

Only two phases of the drive are complete to date, according to Storhaug. These are the residential and industrial drives, which were finished some weeks ago.

Storhaug stated about 40 per cent of the business area drive remains to be completed.

He also estimated the rural county drive at only 75 per cent finished. Township clerks are asked to finish as quickly as possible and turn in the proceeds directly to Storhaug, since Paul Engelstad, drive chairman, is on a west coast vacation now.

Practically no returns from the governmental offices drive have been turned in to him to date, Storhaug reported. However, Paul Anderson said two weeks ago that some envelopes had been turned in and that progress was being made.

All workers who have packets out are asked to pick them up and turn them in as quickly as possible, preferably this week, in order to avoid conflict with other drives to start soon in the city and county.

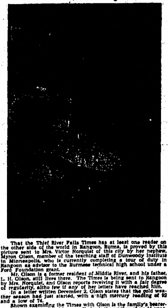
Times Has Reader in Rangoon, Burma



That the Thief River Falls Times has at least one reader on the other side of the world in Rangoon, Burma, is proved by this picture sent to Mrs. Victor Norquist of this city by her nephew, Myron Olson, member of the teaching staff of Dunwoody Institute in Minneapolis, who is currently completing a tour of duty in Rangoon as advisor to the Burmese technical high school under a Ford Foundation grant.

Mr. Olson is a former resident of Middle River, and his father, L. H. Olson, still lives there. The Times is being sent to Rangoon by Mrs. Norquist, and Olson reports receiving it with a fair degree of regularity, altho few if any of her letters have reached him.

In a letter written December 2, Olson states that the cold weather season had just started, with a high mercury reading of 92 and a low of 74.

Intensified Cold War Due in 1958, Babson Predicts

Babson's Authentic Statement
By Roger W. Babson

Next to the Russian situation, President Eisenhower's condition will be of supreme importance. What its influence upon Russia will be, nobody knows. It probably will not affect general business. I believe that for some time our president has not been making important policies and, much to his disappointment, his recommendations have been largely ignored. The major effect of the president's condition will be political. Those close to the president for both friendship and political reasons, are hoping for his recovery both in health and in memory. Others in charge of the Republican party, anxious about his possible incapacitation or death, would like to see him resign and drop out of the picture in order to give Vice-President Nixon a good buildup in the hope of re-electing the Republican party again in 1960.

For evident reasons, the Democrats are hoping that Vice-President Nixon will not have an opportunity to function as President before the coming election. Therefore, President Eisenhower's condition could greatly influence the political situation during the next few years. This would cause uncertainty and retard large corporate expansion programs as well as consumer buying.

I cannot believe that Russia wants World War III; in fact, I am confident that Russia will go to some lengths to avoid World War III. In case of any retaliation by us, Russia would suffer great losses. Moreover, if Russia has any hope of conquering our country, she certainly wishes to preserve our cities; industries, and other valuable assets. Russia has land enough now; it is our industries which Russia wants. This also applies to England and Western Europe as well as the United States. Therefore my forecasts for 1958 are as follows:

1. The present cold war will be intensified during 1958. This will
